THIS IS LETTER NUMBER TWENTY-ONE OF A SERIES WRITTEN TO ALL OF YOU ABOUT A MATTER WHICH IS VITAL TO YOUR SUCCESS. IF YOU MISSED ANY OF THE PREVIOUS LETTERS AND WOULD LIKE COPIES, I WILL MAIL THEM TO YOU.

• • •

"A. N. G.," Realty Specalist, 51 East 42d Street, wrote me under date of January 20 (I have permission to use his letter) as follows:

"How can you be properly compensated or thanked for the enormous amount of good you are doing through your Thrift lessons on behalf of Henry L. Doherty & Company?

"May I impose upon your good nature and kindness by asking the Doherty Company to take care of investing the $90.00 enclosed herewith which is the surplus of the Good Fellows Christmas Fund, which you, no doubt, will recall is collected for the ers, mittens, mufflers and purpose of supplying sweat-shoes to the needy children and is collected and disposed of without any overhead charge.

"It seems to be found on investigation that most of these kiddies need help, because their fathers have been improvident and do not realize what Thrift means, and, in fact, most of them have lost what should have gone into the home by gambling. By this circumstance the investment scheme of Doherty seems to safeguard our fund particularly well."

A 7 per cent. security was purchased for "A. N. G." because it combined safety and high yield ("yield" to those who may not understand means percentage of interest return on amount invested). This was bought for $85.41 (a very low market value, for its par is $100, and interest is paid on par).

I have permission to quote from another letter, written to me by KENDALL D. STUART, associated with the Business Department of the New York Herald. Mr. Stuart concluded his letter by saying: "If this thought can do you any good, or if you can in any way use the information, I shall be happy to have you do so."

"The other day I was walking by the Union Dime Saving Bank at the corner of Fortieth Street and Sixth Avenue. On looking in the door I noticed several lines of people waiting for something. I became curious and went in to ask the man in uniform what it was all about. He said that all these people were waiting to put their money IN the bank; I did not see a single person taking money OUT. There were at least eight lines from thirty to sixty feet long of depositors. The personnel included negroes, messenger boys, laborers, clerks and men who by their appearance were earning a substantial income.

"I was so impressed with this scene that I walked up to one of the receiving tellers and asked him how many new depositors they had taken so far that particular morning. Mind you, the time was eleven o'clock; the bank opened at nine, and THEY HAD ALREADY RECEIVED MONEY FROM ONE HUNDRED EIGHTY PEOPLE THEY HAD NEVER DEALT WITH BEFORE.

"All of which proves to me at least one thing, viz.:

"That a great many more people are laying by money than I ever dreamed of.

"If you are reaching these people by your letters, and I think you are, you are certainly sowing wheat in the most fertile ground imaginable."

• • •

In the offices of Henry L. Doherty & Company, 60 Wall Street, evidence is accumulating rapidly that people have made up their minds to live within their incomes—to deposit some money in banks—and to invest some in safe securities of small denomination.

• • •

The Thrift idea is undoubtedly reaching the intelligence of the people.

You will find Henry L. Doherty & Company, 60 Wall Street, very willing to advise you how to invest your money in safe securities. Either write to them or call at their offices.

Sincerely yours,
WILLIAM C. FREEMAN,

TOOK FOUR WIVES, SAYS RUM DID IT

G. Roy Salisbury Wed a Screen Artist, a Manicure, an Artist's Model and a Country Girl.

ADMITS THREE MARRIAGES

Police Say There Was a Fourth—Says He Squandered $500,000 on Broadway.

"Wild hootch made a wild man of me," remarked G. Roy Salisbury yesterday in a confidential chat with reporters through the bars of a cell in Jefferson Market Court. This, in a sentence, was G. Roy's explanation of it all, after Magistrate Harris had heard that he had married a manicure, an artist's model, a motion picture actress and a simple country girl—all quicker, the authorities said, than the law allowed.

Mr. Salisbury, a brunette, all of six feet, careful in his garb, charming in speech and manner, was originally arrested on Jan. 21 on a charge of grand larceny in issuing a worthless check to Rogers, Peet & Co. Last Saturday he was held in $1,500 bail on a charge of being wanted on a similar charge in Shreveport, La. Then there came word of an indictment against Salisbury in Philadelphia.

Married a Hotel Manicure.

The young woman whom G. Roy married in Philadelphia, said the detectives, was formerly Miss Rita Zimmerman, a manicure at one time in the Hotel McAlpin. She was in court, and she had, figuratively speaking, an arsenal of daggers in her eyes—snappy black ones, it may be added.

It was a "case of love at first sight" when the defendant came into her life, she told the court. He had plenty of money, said he was a broker, used to get his nails done up regularly, "and he made love to me repeatedly," she said, "and I loved him then, too, but now I could tear him to pieces."

They were married on June 10 in Philadelphia, she continued, but soon Mr. Salisbury had to go away to Oklahoma. He left a note in their suite at the Bellevue-Stratford "telling me he had directed his attorney to look after me and had left $1,000,000 in trust for me."

Looking through her husband's papers, however, the former manicure said she found something that made her think G. Roy had married another girl last February. The name of this girl was furnished to Assistant District Attorney Direnzo. She was an artist's model, according to the papers Miss Zimmerman said she found, and the marriage was alleged to have taken place in Calvary Church, Fourth Avenue and Twenty-first Street, the Rev. Wolcoot Cutler officiating.

Investigating, the detectives said they found Mr. Salisbury living at 476 Clinton Avenue, Brooklyn, which, according to the connoisseuring detectives, "is all fixed up like a millionaire's." There was, they added, a Mrs. Salisbury there. She was the girl from the country. Then, they added, they discovered trace of the screen wife.

After listening to all this, Magistrate Harris and the authorities conferred and decided to drop the charges against Salisbury locally and hold him to await the arrival of police from Philadelphia.

Prisoner Says "Hootch" Did It.

Greeting the reporters with a pleasant smile, G. Roy blamed all his troubles upon "the kind of hootch they've been selling since prohibition." He admitted that he had three wives living, even though the police suspected him of having one or maybe two more. Two of the "wives" he said he married while under the influence of liquor and separated from them almost immediately after marriage by mutual agreement. The third marriage, he said, was to "a little country girl whom I still love."

"Are you the owner of three wives?" he was asked.

"Unfortunately, yes," he replied, rather pleasantly, two." One was all I really wanted, but I seem to have taken more than my share. It gave me quite a turn to see two of them in court today. This trouble all started a little over a year ago, when I came to New York with about $500,000 which I had made through speculation in oil properties in the West. Like many another fool, I started in to see New York and to see it right.

"But, believe me, you can only see about three blocks of the Gay White Way on $500,000. Well, I had my little fling and I'm now broke and sober, and I suppose I will have to see this thing through."

$300,000 FIRE IN CLEVELAND.

10,000 Rounds of Armory Cartridges Explode as Grays' Armory Burns.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 26.—Ten thousand rounds of rifle ammunition stored in the basement of the Cleveland Grays' Armory, exploded this morning when flames swept through the structure. Three firemen were overcome in the suffocating smoke that rolled through the big auditorium and were rescued by their comrades just as the roof fell in. The loss is estimated at $300,000, of which $50,000 was in Government paraphernalia.

The fire destroyed everything but the walls in the rear of the old structure, which has housed everything from prize fights to national conventions. The records of the famous Cleveland Grays were saved. The cause of the fire is unknown.

The firemen were driven back twice by the explosion of thousands of cartridges.

A Standard of Value for Thrifty Buyers

THE practise of thrift is not a new habit to the wearers of Coward shoes. For more than half a century Coward Shoes have been a standard of value for thrifty buyers everywhere.

The standard is maintained just as scrupulously today as it always has been, which means the finest obtainable leathers and materials, and a quality of workmanship unexcelled. The price is as low as fair dealing with the public, our employees and ourselves can make it.

In Coward Shoes, furthermore, there is no taking advantage of foreign exchange rates; Coward Shoes are made in American factories, from the best American materials, by skilled American workmen paid with plenty of good American dollars.

"Within Four Days, Liberty Mutual Had Settled the Whole Matter"

Number One of a Series of Actual Happenings

"ONE of our men, a careful driver, was moving slowly along a crowded street. A team was approaching from the opposite direction. Just as it came by him, a boy—who had been stealing a ride—jumped off, directly in front of our car. The driver jammed both brakes hard. But it was too late.

"We notified the Liberty Mutual at once. Within four days a settlement was made, satisfactory to all concerned, and the matter closed. We certainly are glad that we carry Liberty Mutual insurance on our cars."

(Signed) G. W. BENT CO., Boston, Mass.

SAYS BRINES SWORE HE'D 'GET' DREWES

Peter Malloy Tells of the Defendant's Enmity for Murdered Dartmouth Man.

QUARREL OVER MAP SALES

Brines Is Said to Have Charged That Drewes Had "Beaten Him Out of $75 or $100."

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 26.—Animosity of William P. Brines toward Elmer C. Drewes, the Dartmouth senior whom he is accused of having murdered, was indicated in the most sensational testimony given thus far in Brines's trial.

"I'll get him if it's the last thing I ever do," Peter J. S. Malloy of Curwensville, Pa., testified that the University of Pennsylvania sophomore told him in speaking of Drewes. He declared that Brines had asserted to him that Drewes had "beaten him out of $75 or $100 while they were delivering maps together and that the defendant had said with anger that he would post $500 forfeit, put on boxing gloves and meet Drewes in a prize ring. Malloy helped Brines to sell maps last Summer.

The automatic pistol with which Drewes is alleged to have been shot, and which was found in the abandoned automobile said to have belonged to the defendant, was shown to Malloy. He said the weapon was similar to one which Brines offered to sell him.

Malloy was followed on the stand by his mother, Mrs. Rebecca Malloy, who corroborated her son's testimony concerning Brines's offer to fight Drewes for "$500 a side."

"He said there was only one man he carried a grudge against," the witness said, "and that man had cheated him out of some money, and that when he went back to Philadelphia he would challenge him to fight for $500 a side."

Twelve classmates of Brines at the University of Pennsylvania were called to show that Brines had attended classes the day after Drewes's body was found. William Henry Barton, instructor of civil engineering at the university, was called upon to furnish class records.

When Dr. William C. Robinson, City Chemist, took the stand, prepared to testify concerning his analysis of the stains found on the so-called "murder car," he said the color of the machine was maroon. It was described by other witnesses variously as brown, chocolate and tan, and counsel for the defense raised the question of the possibility of there having been two cars. He was upheld by the Court in contending that the machine the chemist examined might not have been "the one in which we are interested."

HOLD-UP MEN IN MARION MAKE A $14,750 HAUL

Two Motor Robbers Stun the County Treasurer in His Office in Harding's Home Town.

MARION, Ohio, Jan. 26.—Two robbers this morning entered the office of the County Treasurer in the Court House here, knocked Treasurer Harry E. Forry unconscious with the butt-end of a revolver and escaped in an automobile with $14,750 in cash.

Mr. Forry arrived at his office unusually early to arrange for the receipt of taxes. He had opened the big office vault, obtained several thousand dollars in change and had again closed and locked the vault when the men entered.

The two robbers crept upon him and knocked him over the head, dropping him unconscious to the floor, seized the $14,750 and ran out to their car.

The vault contained between $50,000 and $75,000 in tax money, which the robbers did not get because of Mr. Forry's foresight in locking the safe after taking out the money to be used as change in the day's business.

He told the police that not a word was spoken in the course of the robbery. One robber stood guard at the door, while the other pointed a revolver at the Treasurer, hitting him over the head when he got close enough.

Mr. Forry said he noticed the two young men loafing in the Court House corridor when he entered the building, but he told the police he could identify only the man who hit him. This man, he said, weighed about 150 pounds, was youthful in appearance and wore a brown suit and cap.

No other county employes were in the building at the time of the robbery.

The police of all towns and cities in Central Ohio have been notified to be on the lookout for the robbers.

The Great Polish Pianist

IGNACE FRIEDMAN

who appeared on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week with the National Symphony Orchestra, Willem Mengelberg conducting, will give his

Second New York Recital

at Aeolian Hall

on Saturday afternoon, February fifth

HERE is a great pianist—recognized throughout Europe as one of that small group who have achieved pre-eminence as masters of the piano-playing art This—Ignace Friedman's first visit to the United States—is an epoch in the musical history of the country

Born in Poland, the birthplace of so many great pianists, Friedman's experience and training has been the best that Europe has to offer He was the pupil and for years the intimate friend of Theodor Leschetizky, the instructor of Paderewski, and most famous piano teacher of his time

Friedman's tour of this country will include the principal cities where he will play in recital and as soloist with leading orchestras Critics and all who have been privileged to hear him, are unanimous in conceding him one of the greatest pianists who has ever come to America, and one whom every lover of music and the piano should not fail to hear

While Mr. Friedman's contract to make records exclusively for the Duo-Art Piano was made in London at the English House of the Aeolian Company and his first records were made there, he is also making some representative recordings while in New York and these, together with the records made in England, will shortly be on sale at Aeolian Hall.

New York, Jan. 13, 1921

The Aeolian Company, New York

Gentlemen:

It is impossible to clothe in suitable words my profound astonishment and high admiration for the wonderful performance of the Duo-Art.

Taken artistically, historically and pedagogically, this instrument is of the greatest value and interest, and in its perfect reproduction it is beyond comparison. To realize this, the instrument must and should be heard.

Cordially yours,

Ignace Friedman

Friedman Records Exclusively for

The DUO-ART Reproducing Piano

THE value of the Duo-Art to the Art of Music and to the music-lover is beyond computation. By means of the Artists' Authorized Record-Rolls, the Duo-Art Piano will reproduce the playing of the great pianists with such absolute fidelity that the reproduction is not to be distinguished from the original performance.

This means nothing more nor less than that the possession of a Duo-Art Piano commands the services of Paderewski, Hofmann, Busoni, Friedman, Bauer, Cortot, Ganz, Grainger, and all the other famous musicians who are making Duo-Art Music Rolls, to play for him at his will, for his pleasure and benefit. No such privilege has ever been accessible to a music lover before, because no such instrument as the Duo-Art Piano has ever been hitherto available.

Three Great Instruments in One

Besides its wonderful reproducing feature, the Duo-Art Piano is an instrument upon which anyone without musical skill can play practically all piano music, and play it well. For it is also the original Pianola—providing a wonderful technique which you may employ for self expression in music. The fascination of striving for the same effects that the great masters display in their Record-Rolls may be imagined.

Also, finally, the Duo-Art Piano is a pianoforte of highest excellence. Its desirability as an instrument for hand playing is entirely unaffected by the two Arts which so greatly enhance its value and broaden its scope. The Duo-Art Piano is obtainable in the Steinway, Steck, Wheelock, Stroud, and celebrated Weber Pianos, Grands and Uprights.

THE OPERA

By Richard Aldrich

"Tosca" by the Chicago Company.

The Chicago Opera Company last evening gave a performance of Puccini's "Tosca" in the Manhattan Opera House that had some excellent and interesting features, although there seemed, from the number of empty chairs, to have been some deficiency of public interest. One of the new tenors of the company, Joseph Hislop, a Scotch singer, made his first appearance in it as Cavaradossi. The Tosca was Miss Yvonne Gall, the Scarpia Mr. Baklanoff.

Mr. Hislop at once showed himself to possess valuable qualities as a lyric tenor. "Tosca" is not exactly the opera that a singer would choose to exhibit his powers of vocalism in at a first appearance; but it was made evident that Mr. Hislop's voice is an important asset to any opera company. It is rather light, and lyric in character, but not wanting in power; fresh, of good quality and for the most part used with skill. He made more demands on it for power last evening than was necessary; more, doubtless, than he will make when he finds what the acoustics of the theatre are.

Mr. Hislop also has the advantage of a slim and youthful figure, a sympathetic personality, which stood him in good stead in the part he took last evening. He is not, however, so youthful in reality as to lack experience upon the stage. He showed ample reserves of it in his impersonation, which was vivid and flexible. He had, in fact, had much experience in Sweden as well as in the opera houses of other countries before his appearance in Chicago.

Miss Gall's Tosca is a fiery and temperamental personage; and she gives in the part some powerful and swiftly moving melodramatic acting. Likewise, her singing has much that is commendable, among which is not, however, her disposition in tense and tragic moments to let the voice go beyond the limits of musical utterance. Indeed, in the latter part of the scene of the second act, in Scarpia's apartment, she abandoned musical tones altogether and spoke her lines.

The Scarpia of Mr. Baklanoff was an efficient and striking representation, not overladen with finesse, but drawn rather in bold outlines. His singing was not all that could have been hoped, but his participation in the previous night's opera should be remembered.

The setting of the first act, the Church of St. Andrea della Valle, was architecturally inept and rather shabby; but this was in part made up by the elegance of the design of the second. Mr. Marinuzzi conducted, not with great fire or energy, but kept his orchestra judiciously subordinated. There was recognition of the work of the principal singers, who were called before the curtain after each act. There was a special round of applause for Miss Gall after the impassioned song in the second act.

Mme. Samaroff's Beethoven Recital.

Mme. Olga Samaroff began yesterday afternoon in Aeolian Hall the arduous undertaking of playing through the thirty-two piano sonatas of Beethoven in a series of eight recitals. The plan has apparently no particular connection with the Beethoven anniversary, for it was said to have been projected three years ago and postponed on account of illness.

This presentation of a complete series, whether of piano sonatas, string quartets or symphonies, offers some serious problems, owing, in part, to the development of Beethoven's styles, the progress in length, complexity and profundity that his works show as his genius ripened. The last concerts are so much more weighty than the first, and there is always the question of variety and contrast. But Beethoven raises this question much less than many others.

A part of the enterprise consists of an informal talk by Mr. Leopold Stokowski on aspects of Beethoven's work. His first one yesterday came in the middle of the recital and was announced to be on Beethoven's early period. Mr. Stokowski traced stages of development in musical history that brought Beethoven, as he said, into a most fortunate period. He found the early influences of the young composer to be, besides his teacher, the excellent musician Neefe, those of C. P. E. Bach, F. W. Rust, Haydn and Mozart. He suggested some of the steps in the development of the sonata form; and he devoted the close of his remarks—rather too much of them, in fact—to an eulogy of Beethoven's music, in which he got off the first period into the second and third.

Mme. Samaroff's playing has greatly improved in the last few years. She has taken on the stature of a mistress of her art, not merely in greater technical security but in depth of understanding, in a higher power of expression, in the musical qualities of her tone and phrasing. The program included the first four sonatas, Op. 2, Nos. 1, 2 and 3, and Op. 7. Her performance of them was in many respects beautiful in the clarity, directness and simplicity with which she delivered this music, in itself clear, direct and simple; in the warmth of expression she put into them. They had a true ring of Beethoven.

GIRL, 16, DOES WELL ON HOOVER RATIONS

Lives 10 Days on Diet of Starving Children in Europe—Movie Day a Success.

Results of a voluntary diet on rations fed to children overseas by the European Relief Council were made public yesterday by dietitians of the Hoover Committee, after Mary Schaefer, 16 years old, of 731 Amsterdam Avenue, had finished her ten-day experiment of subsisting upon cocoa, rice and dry bread. Although she did not take the full ration for the ten days, dietitians found her in excellent physical condition.

Mary read that hundreds of persons had partaken of the "Hoover ration" at the "invisible guest" dinner at the Hotel Commodore, and decided to try the ration for ten days. Her father, Otto Schaefer, a moving-picture cameraman, consented, and Miss Mary Huddleston, dietitian at a Red Cross teaching centre, was assigned to take notes on the test. The test was timed so it would end yesterday, "Motion Picture Day," when the movie industry throughout the country combined to raise $2,500,000 for the $33,000,000 fund of the European Relief Council.

Miss Huddleston estimated that a girl of Mary's age and normal weight at 5 feet 4 inches in height would need 2,300 calories a day. Mary struggled along on fewer than three meals a day, comprising 200 calories, and lost only six pounds. Over weight when she began the diet, she dropped to normal in seven days and then remained at 117 pounds. She felt better than at the beginning of the partial fast, and was able to sleep more than usual.

Early figures were that the motion picture industry had raised $307,000 before yesterday's campaign started, and C. C. Pettijohn, Chairman of the National Committee, was confident last night that the quota of the industry had been oversubscribed. Special features were put on in the theatres here, and at many of them motion picture actors appeared in person to appeal for the Hoover Fund. Tickets were sold for the special children's performances Saturday morning. The Audubon Theatre reported that a man who had forgotten his purse dropped a gold watch into the collection there.

A special performance was given at the Capitol Theatre last midnight by S. L. Rothafel, Chairman of the New York Committee, for the members of the Hoover Committee and all persons who contributed $100 or more to the quota of the motion picture industry.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

St. John Ervine's "Mixed Marriage," which has been playing matinees at the Times Square, will be moved to the Sixty-third Street Theatre next Monday night. This theatre, around the corner from the Century, has been remodeled and enlarged by John Cort.

Ruth Draper, who has not appeared in this country since early in the war, will be seen at the Princess Theatre this afternoon in the first of dramatic recitals.

John Murray Anderson, who has just produced a revue in London, is at present in Paris. He will return to New York in two weeks to begin work on a new musical piece.

YOUNG VIOLINIST PLEASES.

Erika Morini Deeply Interests Big Audience at Her Debut.

Erika Morini, a violinist of whom more is likely to be heard, made her first appearance here yesterday in Carnegie Hall, playing concertos of Vieuxtemps, in E major, and of Mendelssohn, with "a symphony orchestra," recognizably that of the Metropolitan, under the direction of Mr. Bodanzky.

There will be opportunity for more critical estimate of the young artist in future, but it can be said at once that she profoundly interested a musical audience that filled the hall at her unheralded matinee. She gives the impression, too, of being a singularly complete artist, starting where too many others leave off, taking the technical fiddler's bag of tricks for granted, and making the violin a seemingly alive and breathing thing.

Her tone is never mechanical or dull; from a whisper on the strings to a roundly proclaimed phrase, the constant play of light and shade is like an April day in the sun. After the orchestra had left the stage she added, with her sister Alice at the piano, little pieces by Martini and Kreisler, Sarasate's version of the waltz in "Faust," like a waltz in an aviary, and a rondo, by Mozart.

Miss Morini is said to be just under 17 years old, an Italian by descent, and with her father, who was present yesterday, formerly resided at Trieste, then Austrian territory. The young girl showed good self-control yesterday when she was sent out on the stage before the house was seated, and again when sagging strings forced her to stop and tune up before the cadenza in Vieuxtemps's concerto.

Benefit to Equip Prison Inmates.

Under the auspices of the National Committee on Prisons and Prison Labor, a benefit performance will take place at the Casino Theatre on Sunday night, Feb. 6. The receipts will be devoted to a fund designed to equip the inmates of prisons with some trade or craft which they may practice upon their release. The head of the committee is Adolph Lewisohn, and its members include Mrs. Rita de Acosta Lydig, Mrs. Charles F. Guggenheimer, Mrs. Albert Sterner, Mrs. Newbold Leroy Edgar, Mrs. Douglas Robinson, Mrs. George Gordon Battle, Mrs. Albert Gallatin, Mrs. Coleman du Pont, Mrs. J. N. Seligman and others.

The program for the benefit will include Margaret Wycherly in an episode from "Within the Law," Frank Tinney, Savoy and Brennan, Ivan Bankoff and Mlle. Phoebe, Willie and Eugene Howard, Cortez and Peggy, Hal Forde and many others.

"Mefistofele" Sung for Fifth Time.

Boito's "Mefistofele" was sung for the fifth time at the Metropolitan last evening, before the usual crowded house. Mmes. Alda and Easton, Messrs. Gigli, Mardones and others appeared, and Mr. Moranzoni conducted. Today Mr. Gatti-Casazza was to open his series of special Thusday matinees, beginning with "Aida," also a fifth time, followed by "Madame Butterfly" this evening, and tomorrow by a gala night of "La Bohème" on the return after five years of Lucrezia Bori.

Mr. Gigli sang his role of Faust in "Mefistophele" last night just after receiving by cable from Italy the news of the death of his father, Domenico Gigli, 80 years old, a native of Recanati, in the Adriatic Province of the Marche.

Chicago Co.'s Operas Next Week.

The Manhattan's revised program of operas for next week includes a first hearing of Gino Marinuzzi's "Jacquerie" on Friday evening, with Yvonne Gall, Edward Johnson and Carlo Galeffi, conducted by the composer. Other operas of the Chicago stars' second week here will be "Lucia" on Monday and a Saturday matinee, "Sonnambula," with Galli-Curci; Tuesday, "Otello," a début for Charles Marshall; Wednesday "Manon," Gall and Muratore; Thursday, "Thaïs," and Saturday night, "Faust," with Mary Garden.

THE PEOPLE AND THE TRACTION PROBLEM.

Criticism of the Governor's plan for solving the traction problem, much of it hasty and prompted by misunderstanding, has one basis that is as solid as a rock. The people of this city, who have invested more than $300,000,000 in their rapid transit system, will never consent to the establishment of a form of administration and control of that system about which they have nothing to say. If Governor MILLER had proposed that, his plan would not be worth a moment's discussion. But does he propose that? Absolutely no, nothing of the kind. Here is his recommendation:

> What I am recommending is that, instead of dealing with this problem piecemeal, instead of having two or three agencies, one with the power to check the other, some impartial tribunal shall be created completely to investigate the whole subject to determine what is the plan to put the transportation problem in the City of New York on a proper basis; to deal with it without ulterior motives, either political or otherwise, and to deal with it in such fashion that it will not be necessary for the city to come here and ask for weapons of defense; to deal with it in such fashion that everybody shall be satisfied that it is dealt with on the level in the interests of the people.

This plain, straightforward statement of his purpose is what brings to his support the business sentiment of the city; the sentiment of business, we mean, as distinguished from the sentiment of the politicians. First of all, the Governor would have a thorough investigation of the whole subject by an impartial tribunal. Before that tribunal the people of the city would appear, they would have their say. They would say all that was to be said, for practically nobody else would ask a hearing. Opponents and advocates of the Governor's plan would have their day in court. Thus, the tribunal or committee of investigation would be fully informed as to the wishes of the people of New York City. What would be the next step? The problem would be considered "without ulterior motives, either political or otherwise," and it is the Governor's hope and aspiration that the problem would be solved "in such fashion that everybody shall be satisfied that it is dealt with on the level in the interests of the people."

Anybody who opposes that plan of settlement must have far better reasons than those advanced by Controller CRAIG, for instance, who ventures this positive affirmation:

> The people of the City of New York will never tolerate the administration and control of an investment of approximately $400,000,000 of their own money in the subways by any public body or commission that is not directly responsible to the people of the City of New York.

Beyond doubt the Hylan Administration is directly responsible to the people. What plan does it put forward for the solution of the rapid transit problem? Buses! Absolutely no other. Filled with high hopes, it went to Albany to urge upon the Governor that comprehensive remedy for evils that have come upon us largely through its own obstinacy. But note that the Hylan Administration went to Albany. That journey was a concession of the Governor's foundation point that control over these matters is vested in the State. If Mr. CRAIG, Mr. CURRAN, Mr. LAGUARDIA, if the Tammany politicians who want full city control of the traction system, if the Republican politicians who feel that the raising of that question will re-elect Mayor HYLAN, would make any headway in their opposition to the Governor's proposal, they must hasten to put forward some better plan than his. It is not a question of eight-cent fares or any other rate of fare, it is a question between chaos and order.

When we speak of the people of the city, we mean all the people, and all the people pay taxes. Some pay directly, all either directly or indirectly. Taxes are increased by the city's losses on its rapid transit investment. The deficit is growing, it must be made up. Governor MILLER proposes that we inquire how it may best be made up, and not only that, how the entire passenger-carrying system of the city may be administered so as to provide full accommodation for the more than two billion annual passengers. He is no friend of the people who opposes that impartial investigation, who would obstruct an attempt to establish a system that would at once meet the daily needs of the people and stop the loss to the City Treasury.

STARTLING DISCOVERIES.

Senator JONES of Washington had a fine time for several days with a nice little mare's nest of his own. He had discovered a sinister "secret agreement" between the International Mercantile Marine and British shipping companies. With this he startled not only himself but sundry people in Washington. Then the facts slowly came out. The agreement did not mean what he thought it did, and it was never secret. When it was made in 1902 it was published in England and also separately by our own Department of Commerce. It made a great hubbub in the press at the time. English newspapers were patriotically alarmed at the prospective absorption of British ships. Many in America wagged triumphant heads at the blow dealt to English supremacy on the sea. Then it was all forgotten until Senator JONES dragged it out to frighten himself withal.

He is not especially to be blamed. Doubtless to him the idea would seem preposterous that a public man should be expected to remember what happened seventeen years before. He must be familiar with the old Western "statute of limitations" in politics: "All records east of the Red River barred." And anything that flowed by in the river of time so long ago as the International Mercantile Marine agreement is likewise to be regarded as if it had never been known. If a long memory were to be made a test of statesmen, which of them would be safe? And as for asking them to consult indexes and year books, or in other ways to verify their mares' nests, that would plainly be to violate their inherent right to pursue happiness in discovering things that are not.

ECONOMIC EDUCATION.

After forty years of unblemished credit in private life Mr. SCHWAB finds himself compelled publicly to defend his integrity in circumstances which prompt the investigators to express their dislike of the situation in which the muckrakers have placed them and their satisfaction with Mr. SCHWAB'S conduct. It is a complete exoneration. The reason for mentioning the incident is to lend the weight of Mr. SCHWAB'S lifetime experience in business to his advice to the Government in its business perplexity. The Government has at risk in its shipbuilding adventure more capital than is represented in some of the single Liberty bond issues, the source of the three billions spent on shipping. What shall the Government do in circumstances which make the investment a source of continuing loss?

Some five hundred ships of the Government fleet are tied up idle. They are worse than idle, for idle ships, like idle factories, are a source of cost. Even that does not fully state the case, for the Government fleet can work only under conditions imposed by law which make profit impossible even for private ships, conducted more economically than Government ships, and in competition with ships of other nations which are allowed to earn what they can by economies and efficiency. The situation is peculiar to the United States, for it is the only commercial nation operating ships on Government account. A few score ships operating under authority of the Shipping Board have gone into receivership, but that only illustrates the situation. Bankruptcy would solve the problem for private operators, but that way out is not open to the National Treasury nor to its instrumentalities.

The policy of the present managers of the ships is to turn the waste of war to the promotion of commerce. It is a happy thought, but it does not work out prettily. It is not unlike the attempt of the Interstate Commerce Commission to use the railways to promote theories of social benefits and to correct the errors of nature in placing some markets at the seaboard and other markets in midcontinent, across mountains. Zeal in that high enterprise has flagged and the railways are now dealing with the situation, with the co-operation of the chastened regulators. The Shipping Board announces a policy of equalizing rates at the different ports, which under economic conditions offer different attractions to commerce. It has shown the power of diverting export business by rate concessions, but the ships run only partly loaded going out and less loaded coming back, for imports prefer other ports, and sellers of foreign goods have the power to deliver in their own ships. We are in the quicksand to our knees, and the question is whether we shall sink to our necks or save our legs by pulling our feet out of their shoes.

Mr. SCHWAB'S advice is that of a business man under the necessity of confronting a balance sheet and a payroll. He would rather cut the loss than throw good money after bad. His way is to bow to the inevitable force of economics, scrapping ships, politics and theories of social benefit with tax money all together. The shipping investment ought to be charged off as a war cost, less only what can be realized by sales "at any price within reason." The object is to get Government out of the shipping business, because if we want a real merchant marine it must be a private marine.

SAGES OF THE FIVE BOROUGHS.

If the Republican "leaders" of the five boroughs, assembled, each with his little Cabinet, in the National Republican Club to dine and consult, really decided that there can be no fusion in the municipal election this year, they need to be reminded of the late GEORGE M. STEARNS'S hospitable offer to the Vermont Democrats to meet in his back yard. This is a Democratic city, as everybody knows. Except under rarely fortunate conditions, only by a combination of Democrats, Republicans, Independents, can a Tammany ticket be beaten. From time to time Tammany maladministration is extreme enough to stir all the elements in the community that want an honest, competent and economical City Government. Those elements see nothing to be gained by the substitution of one set of partisans for another. The Republican record of complicity or semi-alliance with Tammany and such incidents as the appearance, in 1917, of the irrepressible Mr. WILLIAM M. BENNETT to hold up the banner of the stern and unbending Republicans still linger in the public mind.

It is not credible that the Republican local "leaders," eccentric as are their reported views in favor of an inquiry into Mayor HYLAN'S Administration that shall merely scratch the surface, are duped by the enrolment figures here. They must know that enrolment and election are quite different things; and be shrewd enough to make an enormous discount of the Republican Party's strength in the unusual circumstances of the last national election as compared with its actual strength or weakness in the five boroughs. It is to be feared, however, that the magic power of former Governor SMITH in vote-getting, a power whose essential magic consists in his will and capacity for good government, has become an obsession and almost panic fear to Republican heads that ought to have more sense in them. They can't elude him, if he doesn't want to be eluded. They might try to borrow from him a little of his art of acquiring popularity by single-minded devotion to the public service.

Still, all this January talk about the impracticability of fusion is presumably a rather clumsy finesse. The sages pooh-pooh fusion in the hope of getting more terms and better places on the ticket when fusion is arranged. That is not a lofty but it is a "practical" theory.

A MODERN FIGHTING NAVY.

The best news concerning the navy that has come from Washington for some time is the announcement by Secretary DANIELS of instructions to the General Board to report upon the comparative values of capital ships, aircraft, submarines and submersibles as units of the fleet. On the day Mr. DANIELS made this announcement Mr. BORAH introduced in the Senate a resolution calling upon the Naval Affairs Committee to inform the Senate whether it was practicable to suspend for six months "our naval building program now in progress," so that there could be "a full investigation and free discussion" as to what constitutes "a modern fighting navy." An inquiry of the kind has been going on in England recently, and the newspapers have printed many letters from retired Admirals and other naval officers in answer to Sir PERCY SCOTT'S persistent question, "What is the use of a battleship?" He is a retired Admiral himself and spends much of his time in trying to prove that the dreadnought is obsolete.

A year ago the British Admiralty entertained no doubts concerning the superior value of the capital ship, and held that with a strong screen of destroyers it would be secure from submarine attack. Nevertheless, the Council of Imperial Defense was directed in December last to inquire into the question of naval strength as affected by the lessons of the late war. The Council appointed Earl BEATTY, BONAR LAW, WALTER LONG, Sir ERIC GEDDES, WINSTON CHURCHILL and Sir ROBERT HORNE as a subcommittee to make the inquiry. Hearings were held, but a report has not yet been made. There seems to be an impression in England that capital ship construction as a naval policy will be abandoned. Intolerable cost of building greater superdreadnoughts and their cruiser and destroyer screens, together with huge docks, has been given as the reason why Great Britain might turn to heavily gunned submarines and submersibles and to airships for offensive and defensive purposes, but this is not a scientific reason. It is well known that many officers on the active list agree with Sir PERCY SCOTT that the capital ship has been doomed by the submersible, which term includes the submarine, and by the bombing airplane and torpedo-plane. The Admiralty is tempted to accept this view, chiefly because submersibles can be fitted with long-range guns, and in part because a flotilla of them could be built for the cost of one superdreadnought. Such vessels attended by airplane carriers would make a formidable fighting fleet.

In the United States Navy there are officers who lean toward the new naval developments, submersibles and torpedo-planes, and who doubt the enduring power of the great capital ship. Hitherto the General Board has stood for the superdreadnought. But it should be an open question, debatable before Congress commits itself to finishing the three-year program and authorizing more capital ships. Secretary DANIELS seems to have come round to that view.

SPOILS IN REFORM BILLS.

Governor MILLER has invited frank and helpful criticism, and got some yesterday in the shape of an analysis presented to him of one of the bills introduced in the Legislature to carry out his projected reforms in the State Government. This particular measure is the one to reorganize the Department of Labor. In addition to other defects in it as drawn, it seems to open the door to evasions of the civil service laws. Thus the Industrial Commissioner is empowered to name referees in compensation cases, who, along with every head of a division or a bureau, are to be classified as holding "confidential positions," and so made exempt from competitive examination.

This may seem in itself a small abuse, but it is indicative of the kind of thing the politicians are sure to attempt in connection with all the bills ostensibly designed to effectuate the Governor's plans for economy and consolidations in the public service. Wherever there is a chance to stick a political plum in the pie it will be seized. And the Governor will be artfully approached by party managers with effusive offers of support, provided enough offices are put at their disposal to fire the zeal and strengthen the loyalty of the members of the Legislature. Governor MILLER has too astute a mind to be deceived by blandishments and insinuations of this kind, and may be appealed to with confidence, we believe, to head off at least the more flagrant efforts to make spoils out of reform bills.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Licensed to Prey on the Public.

In a report from its Committee on Legal Education, received by the Bar Association of this city last evening, it was advised that at least a year of college education or its equivalent should be required of would-be lawyers before they began their course in one of the schools of their profession.

It seems that the same committee would have made a like recommendation a year ago if it had not encountered so much opposition that delay was deemed advisable. It also seems that the opposition persists, but this year the committee refused to withhold its demand.

As reason for making the demand the report refers in apparent acquiescence to criticism the committee has heard, "directed toward the lack of a developed moral character on the part of candidates" and to "the absence of the kind of training and intellectual development which fits them to conform to the intellectual and ethical standards which are essential to the bar." Then follows a sentence which, coming from such a source, is more disquieting than it otherwise would be. "Too often," says the report, "the license to practice law becomes a license to prey on the public."

That statement gives support to current suspicions that laymen of good-will have hoped were not true of more than a few black sheep in the law's flock. But is one year in college sure, or even likely, much to change the nature of a youth who so would misuse his lawyer's license? Surely a more rigid and severe investigation of character before admission to the bar would be a better protection—if it were efficient; but the determination of character is not as easy as the determination of knowledge or intelligence.

Women Before the Law.

Two cases were reported this week, one in this country and one in England, which, though different in some essential ways, both illustrate the fact that though the law may proclaim the equality in rights, duties and privileges of women and men, yet it cannot, or at any rate does not, either abolish or ignore the dissimilarity of the two.

On this side of the water a Judge refused to allow women to form part of the jury in a murder trial. He did not deny that at present the law knows no such distinction in making its selection for such juries, any more than for others, and did not question the competency of women to give a just verdict; he only said in explanation of his decision that as the members of the jury would have to be locked up together every night until the trial ended, it would be impracticable—he doubtless meant improper—to have women in the box.

The point made is obvious enough, but a thoroughgoing feminist might, and probably will, meet it by telling that Judge not to exclude women from a place where they have a right to be and where either defense or prosecution had a right to demand that they should be, but to make or cause to be made for the sequestration of jurors arrangements in accord with the new conditions. That this could not be done is a contention nobody would make seriously—not even a Judge who didn't want women in his juries, as this one probably didn't.

Feminine Ears Protected.

In the English case the difficulty arose during the trial of a suit for divorce that was proceeding before a "mixed" jury. Among the letters introduced as evidence were some that were described as "terrible." At any rate they were of such a nature that the lawyers on both sides were reluctant to read them in the presence of women. After consultation between counsel and the court, it was agreed and decided that the letters should be seen only by the men on the jury. That was done and the trial went on.

That it did so was in clear violation of the very fundamental principle on which the jury system rests, and the proprieties or conventions were preserved at a decidedly heavy cost—at the cost, among others, of making possible and even probable a successful attack on the verdict reached if either the plaintiff or the defendant disliked it sufficiently to get new counsel and contend that his or her rights had not been maintained and guarded as they should be.

In withholding the offensive letters from the woman jurors, stress was laid on the fact that some of them were unmarried. That seems more than a bit mid-Victorian. The eminently modern spinsters of the sort likely to get on juries are not apt either to faint or to scream as the result of any disclosures regarding human error or weakness, or, if they be thus delicate, the jury law should be so drawn as to discriminate between the young and the—not so young, and between the married and the unmarried. And how would the "advanced" folk like that?

Reasonable Reforms Suggested.

As a result of the John Doe investigation recently made into the giving of bail bonds in criminal cases a report is to be presented to the Legislature which is in effect a severe arraignment of the methods followed by the surety companies and a demand that those companies be compelled to adopt new methods of a very different character.

In other words, the report confirms practically all of the charges so often made of late about the aid given to known criminals in escaping justice by the ease and promptness with which they can secure bail.

It has been asserted with more than plausibility that stolen property is often accepted as security for bail, and that thieves thus set at liberty utilize their freedom to commit more thefts in order that with the proceeds they may pay the fees exacted for the service rendered by irresponsible intermediaries between themselves and the surety companies.

If the law were changed as the report recommends, this no longer would be possible; and while the innovations proposed would be very likely to decrease the amount of business done, not one of them is unreasonable or likely to work any hardship to any honest man or to any corporation willing to confine its activities within the limits set by public safety and interest.

Comfort for Provincial New Yorkers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

One of your recent news articles stated that the report of arrests in New York for drunkenness, &c., since prohibition went into effect was much greater than before. The article seemed to convey the impression (at least it did to my mind) that prohibition was responsible for an increase in drunkenness.

You New Yorkers are such a provincial lot that somehow or other you have the idea that the sun rises and sets in New York, and your vision seems to be circumscribed by your own Island of Manhattan. Now take Cincinnati, for example. It was a very wet city, famed for its beer, and it was full of distilleries that had the pleasant habit of sending their output across the Ohio River and shipping it from Kentucky. Somehow or other the Cincinnati product crossing the beautiful river and starting on its trip into the world from Kentucky had an added value in dollars and added to the flavor. Cincinnati has been an honest, God-fearing and decent town and has obeyed the law by enforcing prohibition. The result has been that in Cincinnati the arrests for drunkenness and disorderly conduct since prohibition are just a little less than 10 per cent. of what they were in the old wet days.

We have closed the Cincinnati Workhouse (this was our great municipal prison, corresponding to your Blackwell's Island) because finally there were more guards in attendance than there were prisoners. The saloons furnished more than nine-tenths of the people who were in the workhouse. Now the arrests are for traffic violation or for crime, which as a rule has little to do with drink. The few people who have to be locked up are locked up in the police stations or sent to the county jail, and the population of the county jail since prohibition has steadily decreased, so that it is about two-thirds of what it used to be, even with the workhouse prisoners included.

This Cincinnati record is duplicated in all the Middle West and Southern towns where prohibition has really been enforced. And I believe there is no honest man with eyes in his head to see and with the capacity of putting two and two together who would ever want the saloons back, or who would ever want to see a town wet that was once dry.

The League of Nations Articles.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I want to express my appreciation of the remarkable article on the League of Nations in this morning's TIMES. Its cultivated English, its clarity of reasoning, its knowledge of political history, its recognition that in a two-party government political expediency is a necessary concomitant of disinterested statesmanship, its dispassionate recognition of both the noble aspirations and practical defects of President Wilson, and its persuasive differentiation of a judicatory association of nations from a political association mark the article as coming from a master hand.

If this first article is a fair sample of the entire five, the TIMES is doing a fine public service in printing them.

NICOLAI LENIN.

*"Lenin demanded! 'Duty all national loans!'"—*NEW YORK TIMES dispatch.

"What man hath builded up,
My fools,
Drag down!
Efface the fruit of fancy, toil and skill.
Destroy the work, and blunt the tools
By which ambition wrought its will.
Burn broidered copa. Break jeweled cup.
O fellow-rogues, drag down
Dear shrines that old tradition guards
In temples where Time's dust is brown.
Send plowshares through the world's graveyards,
And laugh!"
Quoth rogue and clown!

"What God hath given us,
O clowns,
Destroy!—
The mystic's dream, the poet's sacred line.
Come! banish thought of Wisdom's frowns.
Kill all that's rare and tried and fine.
Break the old oaths. We've shriven us,
O fellow-rogues and clowns,
Of everything of honored name—
Conscience, and Faith and Fair-renown—
Of everything except black shame!
Amen."
Quoth rogue and clown!

FORCES THAT MAKE THE LEAGUE INEVITABLE

The International Court Is Developing, Not as a Rival of the Council, but as an Indispensable Aid in Its Proper Functioning.

By A PRO-LEAGUE REPUBLICAN.

FOURTH ARTICLE.

COURT AND COUNCIL.

All controversy as to Article X. has, as we have seen, been eliminated by recent action at Geneva. Even the "automatic" economic boycott as enjoined by Article XVI. has been repudiated by numerous nations, who refuse to undertake the political and military responsibility as to indefinite future crises. Thus the Council has been abridged in its most questionable functions. The international court, meantime, has steadily gained adherents and now bids fair, by the action of the League itself, to become a co-ordinate power with the Council.

This is a clear reversal of the intention of the men who framed the Covenant. In the first draft it was stipulated merely that when a dispute arises which the members "recognise to be suitable for submission to arbitration" they will submit it to a court "agreed upon by the parties." As Elihu Root pointed out in his letter of March 29, 1919, "an agreement to arbitrate only 'when the parties choose to arbitrate' is 'no agreement at all.'" In this respect the Covenant was manifestly reactionary. For a quarter of a century civilized nations, in the effort to minimize warfare, had executed treaties with one another solemnly binding themselves to submit to arbitration before going to war. Two hundred such dual treaties were already in force—to over twenty of which the United States was a party. Yet this most significant movement in the cause of peace the Covenant absolutely ignored.

It did more than that. Under a subsequent article the contracting parties accept the Covenant "as abrogating all obligations inter se which are inconsistent with the terms thereof," thus giving the nations that had ratified dual arbitration treaties a plausible ground for repudiating them. As Mr. Root said, it "threw those conventions upon the scrap heap," and put the cause of arbitration "back where it was twenty-five years ago."

The one effective arm of the League was the Council, a body of diplomatic or ambassadorial—essentially political—representatives. Such men are necessarily bound in honor and loyalty to their several nations, even to factional parties; they are compelled by the very nature of their office to act from motives of present expediency, the advantage of the moment, rather than in accordance with such permanent principles of right as engage the honor and loyalty of a judge. Yet this political Council was the only authority in several matters of a purely judicial nature, such as determining questions of fact and deciding when the terms of treaties, even of the Covenant itself, had been violated. The refusal of the Scandinavian countries to stand by the economic boycott was largely due to the fact that there was no authority other than the political Council to declare when a nation has broken its pledges under the Covenant.

Much more was at stake than the allaying of particular crises, important as that is. Whether or not world peace is backed by the armed force of nations, if it is to endure it must be founded upon international justice. That is a truism. Is it not equally evident that international justice must, as far as possible, be based, not upon the shifting sands of political counsel, but upon established principles of law as interpreted by impartial judges who command the respect of mankind? The difficulty is in establishing those principles. Hitherto international law has dwelt in a vague and shadowy region, a twilight zone fluctuating between the conscience, the enlightened self-interest, of nations and the grim necessities of armed conflict. Many authorities deny that such a thing exists. Yet it is clearly within the power of nations to create it, and if we are ever to have peace where there is now no peace, they must somehow manage to do so. Can any more efficient means be imagined than a League of Nations in which both legislative and judicial functions are properly developed, properly balanced? Through council and assembly, the nations will declare the principles of international right, and these principles the court will interpret in their continuous application. Thus a definite code will be established and, in the slow course of time, ever widened and strengthened.

Most disputes between nations are, it is true, political, and properly within the sphere of the political arm. Nothing is further from the purpose of the advocates of a court than to curtail the activity and influence of the Council. The point is that, if disputes between nations are to be handled with a probability of success—a probability at best none too great—all questions must be eliminated which are determinable upon permanent principles of right and justice. As was so clearly seen in the fate of Article XVI. at Geneva, international law, more than any other factor, is essential to the success of the high functions of the Council itself.

Mr. Root supplemented his criticisms of the first draft of the Covenant with the following draft of an amendment, which calls for a court with obligatory jurisdiction even over matters affecting national honor and vital interests. These are the "teeth" which he, and afterward Senator Harding, proposed to put into arbitration as hitherto practiced:

> The high contracting powers agree to refer to the existing Permanent Court of Arbitration at The Hague, or to the Court of Arbitral Justice proposed at the Second Hague Conference when established, or to some other arbitral tribunal, all disputes between them (including those affecting honor and vital interests) which are of a justiciable character, and which the powers concerned have failed to settle by diplomatic methods. The powers so referring to arbitration agree to accept and give effect to the award of the tribunal.

That in proposing this dentistry Mr. Root had any great hope that the nations would immediately submit to it is not probable. Doubt is ever present in the minds of those who project large mansions of peace for the future of belligerent man. In the convention that framed our American Constitution, doubt was perhaps the dominant mood. Yet when it threatened to degenerate into mere palliatives and half measures, Washington arose and uttered what is perhaps the most memorable of his few great sayings. "It is too probable that no plan we propose will be adopted. Perhaps another dreadful conflict is to be sustained. If, to please the people, we offer what we ourselves disapprove, how can we afterward defend our work? Let us raise a standard to which the wise and the honest can repair; the event is in the hand of God."

The revised version of the Covenant does not provide for the court as Mr. Root outlined it. In his letter to Senator Lodge dated June 19, 1919, he said: "Nothing has been done to provide for the re-establishment and strengthening of a system of arbitration or judicial decision upon questions of legal right. Nothing has been done toward providing for the revision or development of international law. In these respects principles maintained by the United States without variation for half a century are still ignored, and we are left with a program which rests the hope of the world for future peace in a government of men and not of laws, following the dictates of expediency and not of right." It may be noted, however, that a skilful definition of justiciable questions which was a part of Mr. Root's amendment is included in Article XIII., though with the addition of a word, "generally," which greatly weakens its application; and that provision is made for the establishment of a Permanent Court of International Justice—the jurisdiction of which is, however, limited to disputes "which the parties thereto submit to it."

When a committee of jurists was appointed to draft a scheme for this court, Mr. Root was included. In 1907, when the conference at The Hague had attempted to set up such a court, an insuperable obstacle was encountered in the question of selecting nine judges to preside over the causes of two score nations. Now a means was easily found in the Assembly of the League—an admirable example of the manner in which impartial justice may profit by the action of a purely political body. Advocates of the court as the sole international authority may well ask themselves whether, without legislation, there can be any real law. Obligatory jurisdiction is not authorized by the Covenant; but, in the face of this, Article 33 of the Hague draft provided that "the party complaining may bring the case before the Court" and Article 34 that "the Court shall have jurisdiction (and this without any special convention giving it jurisdiction) to hear and determine cases of a legal nature." The committee adopted the draft unanimously.

In a speech in New York before the Bar Association on Oct. 21, 1920, Mr. Root expressed a doubt whether the League, which was presently to convene at Geneva, would accept obligatory jurisdiction; and in fact it proved that all the great nations—Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan—stood against it. At the time it was said that they objected to enabling any small nation which happened to be a member of the League to hale them before the bar of justice. That was obviously the truth, though not very sympathetically expressed. It may well be doubted whether the time is yet ripe for obligatory jurisdiction. International law is at best rudimentary, and the attempt to interpret and amplify it by means of a permanent court is inchoate. Questions arising from the foreign relations of States that have far-flung obligations and power are especially delicate—and indeterminate. As to the vast majority of such questions there is as yet no firm body of law. Many causes would have to be dismissed as not subject to the jurisdiction of the court. In such an event, however, the nation presenting its cause before the court would gain prestige by the very act of presenting it. The sympathy and opinion of the world seldom fail to incline toward the smaller and weaker. Thus the court might become the agent not of justice, but of inequity. However good our intentions, it is as yet not clear that nations are equal, or can very soon be made so, even before the law. This at least is the position naturally and perhaps inevitably taken by large nations.

It is equally inevitable that the smaller nations should resent it. At Geneva obligatory jurisdiction had only to be mentioned in the Assembly to call forth whirlwinds of applause. When the day for voting came, oratory burgeoned and flourished. Said Henri la Fontaine of Belgium: "When it was announced that a court of international jurisdiction was to be set up, we all hoped that justice would replace force in the world. We have been bitterly deceived. * * * Not to compel the nations to resort to the court is to leave the way wide open to war. It speaks the maintenance of armaments." Delegates from Norway, Holland, Uruguay, Brazil, Panama, Colombia, Bolivia, Jugoslavia, China and many other nations echoed the cry. In all their home countries their eloquence has doubtless reverberated. The international court of obligatory jurisdiction has made partisans by the million throughout the world. Last, but not least in love, it has been stoutly championed in the United States. A standard has been raised, and the wise and the honest are repairing to it.

Nor is the estate of the great nations in the Council wholly unregenerate. There are still those two hundred treaties by which nations agree, each with the other, that differences of a legal nature shall, as a matter of obligation, be arbitrated. A full proportion of these have been ratified by the nations which at Geneva refused to accept an international court with universally obligatory jurisdiction. In this movement the United States, largely under the guidance of Elihu Root, has been a leader, and has ratified over twenty treaties with provisions reading generally as follows:

> Differences which may arise of a legal nature, or relating to the interpretation of treaties existing between the two contracting parties, and which it may not have been possible to settle by diplomacy, shall be referred to the Permanent Court of Arbitration established at The Hague by the convention of the 29th of July, 1899, provided, nevertheless, that they do not affect the vital interests, the independence, or the honor of the contracting States, and do not concern the interests of third parties.

As the new court proves its worth, and builds up the body of international law upon a sure foundation, the great nations may reasonably be relied on to increase their commitments in this kind, one by one—perhaps even to waive the question of honor and vital interests. Thus the system of interlocking treaties will be extended, until eventually it will make the obligation to appear before the International Court virtually universal among members of the League. In any case it is far better that the more responsible nations proceed step by step, over ground that they feel to be sure, than that they should accept a blanket commitment under the presumption of an international law which as yet hardly exists, and of a universal equality of nations which has little warrant in the opinion of the several nations themselves and is perhaps not in strict accord with the fact.

As we have seen, the breakdown of Articles X. and XVI. at Geneva has left the League without provision for the instant and "automatic" exertion of armed force or even of an economic boycott. The nations have refused to commit themselves definitely to the supreme exertion of their forces until the crisis is definite and at hand. This leaves the International Court without what is commonly called a "sanction." To many this is a deficiency so vital as to destroy all confidence in it. If ever international law is to avail, some such sanction is doubtless essential; yet there is reason for believing that its precise character has been popularly misconceived.

Just what do we mean when we speak of a sanction? It is scarcely to be believed that, in a world which is still so largely human, armies and navies can ever move mechanically, as automata. There must always be something behind the gun. Especially in a world of free nations is it true that no war can be successfully waged which is not supported by the force of a united public opinion. The real sanction of international law, likewise, is international opinion. That, in fact, is the real sanction of merely national law, even of municipal law—not the Federal agent and the policeman, as must now be evident even to the champions of so simple a thing as prohibition. The ultimate sanction of an International Court, in short, is the enlightened conscience, the nobly enkindled passions, of mankind. If ever the nations can be relied on to exert the force of their armaments it will be when the high court has rendered its verdict.

A political council is swayed by the expediency of the moment; this cannot be too often said, for in the fact lies its indispensable value, if also its great weakness. As its deliberations are still largely secret, the world is all too liable to be ill-informed as to its action; and, even with the fullest knowledge, men and parties are bound to differ—to differ sharply and even passionately—as to the wisdom of its measures. Law, being evolved through the long experience of mankind, has behind it the accumulated weight of centuries of human conviction. For what other reason is our Supreme Court, which is so remote from the popular consciousness, so universally revered—whereas Congress the ever-active, Congress the indispensable, is a byword?

Opponents of the court have urged that, no less than the Council, it will bring with the development of its power a corresponding surrender of national sovereignty. Be it so. Without some such surrender it is impossible to safeguard the peace of the world—to pluck our young men from slaughter, to relieve the bent back of humanity from the crushing weight of armaments. If it were a question between the two, to which could this surrender more safely be made—to a court of judges or to a council of politicians? We are not, however, confronted by any such alternative. Last, as first, the utility of the court lies in the fact that, by giving its authority to such decisions as are properly subject to law, it relieves the Council of embarrassment and facilitates it in the use of its proper power of dealing with purely political crises. It is only by accepting the court as a co-ordinate arm of the League that the Council can reach its normal development. In the homely phrase of Oom Paul Kruger, "one hand washes the other."

The "Bungling" League.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The writer has been on the lookout since the publication in your issue of Jan. 19 for some comment in your columns on the letter of President-elect Harding addressed to John A. Stewart of the Sulgrave Institute. Failing to see where any one has taken issue with this, to put it mildly, provoking deliverance, it seems to be due to the maintenance of the proper self-respect of all good Democrats, as it should be to all genuine Americans, that some exception be taken to the following statement of Mr. Harding contained in the letter in question:

> "I believe that, when the wisdom of America is summoned to assist the world in building a workable, as distinguished from a bungling, agreement or association for the prevention of war, unity of English speaking peoples will play no small part, not to invade the rights or to exclude the fellowship of other nations, but to protect and include them."

A distinguished French statesman recently called attention to the "Yankee conceit" shown in the position taken by the Republican Party leaders and the incoming Administration when it is assumed that the party coming into power will be able to present a plan to secure peace to the world so superior to the plan, however "bungling," that has been already adopted by nearly half a hundred of the leading nations of the world, as to cause the League of Nations to be immediately "scrapped," and after March 4 next to prompt the Governments and chancelleries of the world to turn eager eyes to Washington for guidance in all questions pertaining to matters international.

Every patriotic American hopes that the President-elect may be able, with the help of his numerous and various advisers, satisfactorily to settle the many vexed questions, both domestic and international, that threaten the well-being of this country and the world, and every such citizen should lend all possible aid to this end, whatever be his politics. But it does seem that at a time like the present, when so many things conspire to weaken the patriotism of many of our citizens, Mr. Harding and all other Republican leaders would do well to refrain from putting further strain on a weakened tie by unduly belittling a defeated party and its leader and by giving self-respecting Americans further reason to blush at the inordinate conceit of some of their countrymen.

Record of the League.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Cannot something be done to give the widest possible circulation to that admirable perspectus of the doings of the League of Nations during the last year prepared by Mr. Charles R. Lowermore and published in THE TIMES for Jan. 9? It is a remarkable record of achievement for the first year's life of the League of Nations, and it should convince even such obdurate and insensate enemies of the League as Borah, Johnson, Reed, Brandegee and the other visionless implacables that the League is vital with power and purpose for good and has promise of vast blessing to mankind.

ANGLO-SAXON UNITY GAINING, SAYS DEPEW

Declares Friendliness Among English-Speaking Peoples Grew in 1920.

RECALLS PRINCE'S VISIT

Tells Pilgrims That Reconstruction Can Come Only Through Understanding.

Chauncey M. Depew, principal speaker at the annual luncheon of the Pilgrims Society of the Bankers' Club yesterday, proclaimed the discovery of the first Pilgrim. He was, according to the venerable orator, Coke of Norfolk, a member of the House of Commons who declined a peerage, remaining a commoner all his life and who supported the contention of the American colonists that there could be no taxation among Englishmen without just representation.

Mr. Depew spoke in his usual optimistic, humorous vein, devoting his more serious paragraphs to the friendliness between this country and Great Britain.

I have a distinct recollection of about eighty years, and none of them has apparently received more abuse and execrations than 1920. I do not share in this view of the year just closed, he said.

"The purpose of this organization is to promote, increase and maintain friendly relations among English-speaking peoples of the world. In the enlargement and enforcement of that idea 1920 has made large contributions. Nothing knits people together and creates brotherhood like fighting side by side and sharing the perils of battle. So, after the victory which made liberty safe, the returning soldiers brought back with them a feeling of camaraderie which they have carried to all parts of our country and to all parts of the globe which are dominated by English-speaking peopels.

Recalls Prince's Visit.

"This society, in performance of its mission, has entertained during the year the Ambassador from Great Britain and distinguished members in many departments of British life. We have also had as our guests brilliant representatives of the self-governing colonies of Australia and Canada. Among the most successful of our entertainments was the one when we welcomed the Prince of Wales, and we were delighted with his youthful enthusiasm, his frank cordiality, his sensible speech and his enjoyment of the evening. His grandfather, King Edward VII., visited us when he was a very young man and had everywhere the time of his life. The effect of that youthful visit of King Edward VII. was to make him afterward during his whole life a loyal and devoted supporter of friendship and continuing closer relations between the United States and Great Britain.

"I heard a delightful story of Professor John Fiske, whom I had the pleasure of knowing very well. He was a distinguished historian, lecturer and essayist, but always a philosopher. His wife said to him one day, 'Our son has been making nasty remarks about our neighbors, the Joneses, and you must correct him.' 'All right,' said the Professor said, 'Johnnie, did you say about fessor said, 'Jonnie, did you say about our neighbors that Mrs. Jones was a fool and Mr. Jones a d—d fool?' The boy answered, 'Yes, father.' Instantly the parent was merged into the philosopher, and the Professor said, 'Well, my boy, I would make just about the same difference between them.'

So we dismiss the critics and objectors of 1920 and rejoice that for the purpose of our organization it has been a successful year.

"I have always been a good deal of an antiquarian and love to dig into the past for hidden treasures. In doing so recently, I made a discovery of the first importance. The Pilgrim Society on the other side is nineteen years old and ours is eighteen, but in these researches I have found the first pilgrim. He was a man of distinction 145 years ago. He was elected to the House of Commons several years before we broke away from Great Britain and began the Revolutionary War. He remained in Parliament for half a century. He was a successful English farmer and a sturdy liberal in his principles. The Crown tried to win him by repeated offers of a peerage, but he preferred to remain a commoner. He was known all his life as Coke of Norfolk. He was the main supporter of that brilliant statesman, Charles James Fox.

M. P. Backed America's Cause.

"When the troubles with the American colonies began by George III. and his Prime Minister, Lord North, attempting to tax the colonies, Coke of Norfolk supported the American patriots in their claim that there cannot be among Englishmen taxation without representation. He was our friend during the whole of the Revolution, as were Fox, Burke and Chatham.

"When the war was over and peace declared, George III refused to acknowledge American independence, and his obstinacy was one of the causes of power being taken from the throne and transferred to Parliament.

"It was a matter of vital importance to our Republic at that early period of our new Government that Great Britain should acknowledge our independence, because then all the other nations would follow. Coke of Norfolk offered a resolution demanding of the King the recognition of American independence. He carried it through the Commons after an all night's fight, and then was designated as a representative of the Commons to carry their mandate to the King. Instead of going in court dress, he shocked and outraged the courtiers by appearing in his ordinary dress as a Norfolk farmer. When he presented the order of the House of Commons to his Majesty, he saw standing beside the throne Benedict Arnold. The King did not dare to risk a revolution by defying the Commons and so at once recognized the independence of the United States. It was to Benedict Arnold, standing beside the throne, a decree of perpetual banishment from the country he had betrayed.

"Many years afterward, a grateful American went down to Norfolk to visit Coke at his home. Coke said to him, 'I supported you because you were right. During the whole of the war, I drank every night a toast to General Washington as the greatest man in the world.' In those heroic days such a tribute was possible to a hero and a patriot.

"The alarmist tells us of impending war. War requires money and credit. The world is burdened with unprecedented debts, and has little credit. War on a great scale is impossible. Hostile battle ships will not bombard Kansas City, nor cruisers endanger Denver or Syracuse, nor destroyers disturb the peace of a former pacifist and now warlike Secretary of the Navy at his home in Charlotte, N. C.

"The necessity of the time is reconstruction, and reconstruction can only come through peace and international understanding. The autocratic and military nations of Europe one hundred years ago formed the Holy Alliance to end representative government. The United States, through President Monroe, and Great Britain, through its Prime Minister, George Canning, agreed to and announced the Monroe Doctrine. This defeated the aims of the Holy Alliance and protected the South and Central American republics and Mexico. A century after the Holy Alliance the forces of autocracy and militarism believed they were powerful enough for universal conquest. Again we were together, and with gallant France, brave Italy and heroic Belgium won a decisive victory.

"We, the English-speaking peoples, must take the lead in the great task of saving in peace what has been won in war. Each national group can preserve its independence and retain its policies and activities, and at the same time work harmoniously with a constructive genius for civilization and liberty equal to the resourcefulness and courage with which they fought."

Other speakers were Sir Algernon Firth, former President of the British Association of Chambers of Commerce, and Sir Ernest Raeburn, who said certain assertions that England was trying to throttle American trade were contrary to the fact; that she would rather trade with us than with Germany.

The society will elect officers for the ensuing year at the Lawyers' Club tomorrow.

OLD GREEK PULPIT FOR $105

Opening Sale of Roman Marbles at Anderson's Yields $6,857.

There opened yesterday at the Anderson Galleries the first of a series of six sales of a collection of Greek and Roman marbles, Gothic sculptures, primitive paintings, ancient rugs, altars, &c., gathered in France, Austria, Italy and the Levant by a well-known European connoisseur, an interesting old pulpit being one of the first things sold.

This was Greek of the seventeenth-eighteenth centuries, of carved and gilt wood, semi-octagonal in shape, with four arches having floral ornamentation and supported by elaborately carved and gilded wood columns. It was 3 feet 10 inches high and went to A. R. Louis & Co. for $105. The arcaded railing of an iconostas, the partition dividing the choir of a church, early fifteenth-sixteenth century Greek, fourteen beautiful carved arcades, in three pieces, with angels' heads in the niches, was bought by A. U. Pope for $150. Another interesting piece sold was a marble slab of the Roman imperial period, a slab of the kind found in the Catacombs of Rome, and bearing the name of the deceased, Aurelius Lucius, and that of his son and his wife Agathe, who placed the stone. It was 11 inches square and sold to Dr. B. A. Baer for $170.

Dr. Baer purchased a large pottery jar, Kashan ware, Persian of the eighteenth century, cream colored, with blue underglaze decoration of flowers and leaves, for $110, and also a kylix with cover, black foundation, with two figures in red in the decoration, a winged genius in flight and a lady sitting in her boudoir holding a mirror. This was Apulian, third century B. C., from the Lord Swansea collection, and sold for $155. A large blue and white pottery dish, Persian of the sixteenth century, in Chinese style, with the design of a Foo lion on a background of peony scrolls on the bottom, was bought by A. U. Pope for $210, and a Persian seventeenth-eighteenth century bluish-green pottery jar, with a darker green underglaze decoration, went to the same buyer for $125.

A large Persian seventeenth century dish, 18½ inches in diameter, with an elaborate eight-pointed star medallion in light red, blue and olive green on the bottom, went to A. Louis & Co. for $266. Of the marbles, a Greek fourth century female head, 13½ inches high, slightly damaged, was bought by A. Brummer for $370, the highest price of the afternoon. The returns for 151 numbers were $6,857. The sale will be continued today, with afternoon and evening sessions.

WILL NOT AID METHODISTS.

Hal Forde Refuses to Appear and "Honeydew" Is Canceled.

A proposed benefit performance of "Honeydew" at the Casino Theatre, scheduled as one of a series to be given next Sunday night in aid of the China Famine Fund, has been canceled because of the refusal of Hal Forde, who plays the principal rôle in the piece, to appear for any charity connected with the Methodist Episcopal Church. The Sunday performances are to be under the auspices of the Bible House of the Methodist Church.

Mr. Forde said yesterday that he had never before refused to appear for charity in his thirty-eight years on the stage, but that the attitude of the Methodist Church toward the theatre had determined him. So long as it saw fit to place a ban upon the theatre, he declared, he would not appear under its auspices. Similar sentiments were expressed by Theresa Maxwell-Conover of the same company.

UNTERMYER REPLIES TO PALMER 'REHASH'

Declares "Stale Misrepresentations" Were All Disproved at Overman Inquiry.

"DUST THROWING," HE SAYS

Wants Attorney General Investigated for Failing to Enforce Anti-Trust Laws.

Samuel Untermyer made the following reply yesterday to the attack made against him by Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer:

"The Palmer attack was withheld by Palmer until too late last night to permit of the publication of the full reply prepared by me. On reflection, I do not regret that fact because this junklot of stale misrepresentations was published almost three years ago, and then I had the opportunity, of which I availed myself at the time, of demonstrating their falsity under oath before the Overman Senate Committee, where I insisted on appearing. This stuff either was or was not public property. The public can form its own conclusions of a public official who rehashes such stuff or who digs into the archives of his office and uses his so-called 'information' when brought to account for neglect or violation of duty. It is he and not I who is charged. It is an old, cheap trick where you have no defense just to abuse the other fellow.

"Mr. Palmer does not produce a line written to or by me or of which I ever knew or heard to support his garbled documents or false statements, all of which were disproved before the Overman committee. He is forced to confess that all this hub-bub he is making apropos of nothing except to throw dust in the eyes of the people to cover his own tracks and to obscure and enable him to escape answering the specific charges made against him, took place while we were at peace with the world and at a time when every one had the right to act as he chose. He knows, moreover, that I was the one man at the bar at the time who consistently refused retainers from every German interest, including the Embassy, although the acceptance of retainers at that time was no reflection on any other member of the bar.

"My complaints against Mr. Palmer are very specific. His persistent refusal to enforce the Anti-Trust laws which has largely precipitated the housing crisis are the offenses which I at the moment primarily want to see investigated. They relate to my present job and that was my reason for calling attention to them. His many other derelictions such as his abuse of his office of Alien Property Custodian to promote his grotesque political ambitions in the respects I have heretofore specified and his incompetency in administering the Sedition and Internment acts are bound to come to the light of day sooner or later for our country will not permit its honor to be tarnished in the eyes of the world. How much the Government has lost and has squandered through his actions will appear in due time. If Congress does not order an investigation the facts will be independently collected.

"The man's confession, forced from him, that he suspended the enforcement of the Anti-Trust laws until I drove him into sullen action ought to be enough to compel Congress to remove him now as an object lesson, although he has only five weeks more to serve, instead of permitting him to disappear into the sort of obscurity that his unfortunate administrations have so richly deserved.

"To this fanatical Anglomaniac the war will never be over. He even resents and sneers at my characterization as 'unfortunate people' the German citizens who invested their hundreds of millions in this country and have had their property confiscated in violation of the world's best traditions. I suppose he considers them as criminals for having trusted to our treaty obligations and the security of our institutions. He should be deported to England, where he might learn how a great and generous people know how to heal the wounds of war—if it were possible to teach him anything."

SCHOOL BOARD GETS BILL TO MEET CRISIS

Ettinger Measure Would Permit Board of Estimate to Issue Bonds.

A bill, for presentation to the Legislature, was submitted to the Board of Education for approval yesterday by City Superintendent of Schools Ettinger.

It was an enabling act allowing the Board of Estimate to raise funds to meet the 1921 deficit of $27,000,000 in the budget of the Board of Education.

Dr. Ettinger sent a letter with the proposed bill, in which he said the bill had been drawn to meet the increasing seriousness of the public school situation, and the fact that delay in settling the problem was creating cumulative difficulties in the conduct of the schools.

Miss Ellen G. Phillips, principal of Public School 2, Manhattan, was elected to succeed Mrs. Ruth G. McGray, and Edward Mandell, principal of Public School 97, to succeed Henry W. Jameson as district superintendents. The pay is $6,600 a year.

On recommendation of the Committee on Buildings and Sites, the board withdrew its decision to occupy the Yorkville Playground on East 101st Street, between Second and Third Avenues, as an addition to Public School 121. The Playground Association, civic bodies and the Park Commissioner protested against doing away with the playground. The board decided again to ask for a plot of land adjoining the school on the south side of East 103d Street.

Meyer-Goodman.

The wedding of Miss Mildred Goodman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Goodman of 2 West Eighty-sixth Street, and David Meyer of this city took place at 6:30 o'clock last evening in the Louis XVI. suite of the St. Regis, the Rev. Dr. Ephiran Firsch officiating.

The bride, whose father gave her in marriage, had her sister, Mrs. Daniel Auslander, for her matron of honor and only attendant. Milton Meyer served as his brother's best man, and the ushers were Jerome Rosenthal, David Sulver, Milton Heins and Daniel Auslander.

Following the ceremony there was a reception and dinner for about a hundred and twenty. Later Mr. and Mrs. Meyer left on their honeymoon, which they will spend in the South.

CURLEY PUTS BAN ON THE HEADLOCK

Wrestling Promoter Will Not Allow Use of Hold in Matches Conducted by Him.

BOWS TO PUBLIC DEMAND

Hostile Demonstration Against Lewis in Caddock Bout Partly Responsible for Decision.

What may be construed as the first official move toward the elimination of the headlock from wrestling has been taken by Jack Curley, promoter of all the important mat contests in this city during the last two years and probably the most prominent person identified with the game outside of the wrestlers themselves.

Curley has announced definitely that the headlock will be barred from all future matches conducted by him. In his statement announcing the decision Curley declares he is "bowing to the demands of the press and the wrestling public." Agitation against the headlock, as used by Ed (Strangler) Lewis, world's heavyweight champion, has been growing of late as a result of injuries to Lewis's opponents, and it culminated on Monday night in a menacing demonstration against Lewis at the Seventy-first Regiment Armory. The champion made his way from ring to dressing room under guard, while a crowd which filled the armory heaped abuse upon him and then turned to cheer Earl Caddock, who had been defeated through the medium of the headlock.

It was a demonstration against a champion that probably never had been equaled in the annals of sport in this country, and it satisfied Curley that if wrestling was to survive, this particular hold would have to go. From the time Lewis first made his appearance for the bout with Caddock the spectators made plain their hostile feelings toward him. He had never given any occasion for unpopularity here, and Curley realized that the demonstration was against the hold in which Lewis specialized rather than against the man personally.

Sentiment Against the Hold.

Curley admits in his statement that the sentiment is entirely against the headlock. Besides the criticism leveled at the hold in the press, Curley has been deluged with letters and telephone calls from persons desiring to offer individual protest against the headlock. Physicians have joined in the chorus of protest, warning the promoter against serious injuries that may result. The vote was so heavy that Curley yesterday sent out the following statement:

Since the sensational finish between Strangler Lewis and Earl Caddock I have read the various accounts of the match in the papers, have listened to many telephone calls, received and answered several hundreds of letters and listened to much talk pro and con of the headlock. All of which makes me conclude that at the present time there is considerable sentiment against the use of the hold.

Bowing to the demands of the press and wrestling public, I will not stage any more matches where the headlock is permitted. Strange to say the most interested in the last match—Earl Caddock—registered no complaint. However, I am conducting shows catering to the wrestling public and strive to please.

It is my opinion that the headlock is objectionable, and I do not care what any other promoter will do in the matter. I am simply complying with the requests of the public.

While on the subject of the Lewis-Caddock match, may I be permitted to add that I feel that Caddock came out of the match with flying colors and proved that he is very popular. I am now trying to land Jim Londos, the Greek champion, to meet Caddock in a finish match. This I am also doing after being requested and urged to do so by many of the New York fans.

As for a little criticism that the Caddock-Lewis bout was poor matchmaking, I can only point to the fact that Caddock twice defeated Lewis in finish matches, the last time only six months ago. Caddock also defeated Joe Stecher in a finish match; in fact, was the first man to pin the Nebraskan wonder to the mat.

Will Have Wrestlers' Support.

As Curley has put the mat game on its present high plane in this section of the country and has promoted virtually all the big bouts in this city, it is expected that he will have the support of all the wrestlers, with the possible exception of Lewis, in his warfare on the head lock. Up to the present time no complaint against the hold has been lodged by the three leading contenders for Lewis's crown—Joe Stecher, Wladek Zbyszko and Earl Caddock. They have taken the attitude that the head lock is part of the game, and have been willing to take their chances against the hold whenever a match with Lewis was arranged.

It is expected that Lewis will put up a strong protest against this move by Curley, and it may mean that he will do all his wrestling in defense of his heavyweight title elsewhere. Curley's attitude may mean the advent of some other promoter into metropolitan wrestling circles willing to match Lewis against some contender in a bout involving no restrictions against the head lock. Whether the leading contenders would enroll with an opposition promoter is doubtful, and whether such a match would draw here is also a question, in view of the hostility that is felt against this particular hold. If Lewis declines to enter into a championship match with the head lock barred, he may be forced into a long spell of idleness, as it is presumed that the agitation against the head lock, growing in volume, will soon include other promoters and other wrestlers.

When Lewis won the heavyweight title from Joe Stecher here a little more than a month ago, there was no marked opposition to the hold which he had used so effectively for some time past. Wladek Zbyszko spent some days in a hospital after a bout with Lewis, but little attention was paid to this fact. The announcement from Dodge City, Neb., two weeks ago that Stecher was suffering from an attack of paralysis as a result of the head lock started the agitation against the hold. When Daviscourt, a Texas grappler, was injured in a bout with Lewis at Rochester through the same head lock the hostility was increased.

The demonstration at the Seventy-first Regiment Armory Monday night was considered to be the natural outgrowth of the growing opinion among sport followers that sport has no place for torture or for anything likely to result in serious injury to a contestant. For this reason the strangle hold was forced out of wrestling some years ago.

DEMPSEY SIGNED FOR BOUT.

Will Defend Title at Portland, Ore., in April—Rival Not Named.

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 26.—Frank E. Watkins, Chairman of the Portland Boxing Commission, announced that an agreement had been reached whereby Jack Dempsey will defend his title here next April in a ten-round decision match against the best man who can be obtained as an opponent by the Boxing Commission, which is arranging the match. Jack Kearns confirmed the announcement.

The announcement followed a conference between Kearns and representatives of the Boxing Commission.

The consideration for which Dempsey's appearance here was insured was not made public. It was said the match would be on a percentage basis. Appearance forfeits and a check will be signed immediately, it was said. The fight will be staged at the pavilion of the Pacific International Live Stock Exposition.

To Test Law Prohibiting the Transporting of Fight Films

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 26.—Motion pictures of the Dempsey-Brennan championship fight recently held at New York are on their way to Milwaukee, and will be shown next week as a test of the Federal law prohibiting transportation of prize fight films in interstate commerce, it was announced today by Ray Cannon, attorney for Dempsey. The pictures are not to be shown for profit, Cannon said, and Federal officials are invited to arrest the exhibitors, he added.

RICKARD ATTRACTED BY MONTREAL OFFER

Canadian Representatives on Way for Today's Conference on Heavyweight Bout.

Whether the Jack Dempsey-Georges Carpentier world's heavyweight championship battle will go to Montreal probably will be decided today, when representatives of the Eastern Canada Securities, Ltd., are scheduled to confer with Promoter Tex Rickard. C. F. Graham and F. O. Goodspeed, members of the Dominion syndicate eager to secure the bout, have arranged for a meeting with Promoter Rickard this morning, probably at 11 o'clock. The Garden promoter yesterday received a telegram from the New York-bound Canadians, advising him that their mission was to be regarded as confidential. For this reason, Rickard said, he is undecided whether to divulge the developments of today's scheduled conference. Promoter Rickard declared there was an attractiveness in the proposition of the Canadians, but would say nothing further.

Everything is in readiness, Rickard said, for the transfer to him of the interests of William A. Brady and Charles B. Cochran, who have withdrawn from the bout. Rickard has been consulting with Nathan Vidaver, Brady's counsel in the matter, and has made arrangements whereby he will become sole promoter of the battle just as soon as he receives the assignment of interests from Messrs. Brady and Cochran. It is probable, however, that Rickard will await the return here of Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, before finally taking over the bout. Kearns is expected here Feb. 1 to discuss the situation with Promoter Rickard. When the Brady-Cochran interests are assigned to him, Rickard said, he will seek a new financial arrangement with the boxers, and will conduct the bout under the title of the Madison Square Garden Sportsmen's Club.

Mr. Brady, who returned to this city yesterday, said that, as far as he was concerned, there were no new developments in the situation. He said he is prepared, when requested, to assign his interest in the bout and that of Promoter Cochran, to Promoter Rickard.

TENDLER IS WINNER.

Gets Newspaper Decision Over Willie Jackson at Milwaukee.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Jan. 26.—Lew Tendler, Philadelphia lightweight boxer, was given the newspaper decision over Willie Jackson, New York, in a ten-round contest here tonight.

Jackson started out well and appeared to have the advantage in the first and second sessions, having the latter by a good margin. Beginning with the third round, Tendler carried the fight to the New Yorker, landing a solar plexus in this session which seemed to stagger Jackson. The fourth appeared about even, but Tendler had the fifth and sixth by a wide margin, shaking Jackson with hard drives to head and body.

Jackson showed well in the seventh, which looked about even, but following this period Tendler had the advantage to the end.

Jackson appeared to share honors in several hot mix-ups, but aside from these Tendler did most of the leading and had the advantage in points. The New Yorker bore cuts on both eyes and chin, while the Philadelphian emerged without a mark.

At weighing in time Jackson tipped the beam at 134¾ and Tendler 134. They boxed to a packed house.

LICENSE IS RESTORED.

Central Manhattan B. C. Again Permitted to Hold Bouts.

The Central Manhattan Boxing Club, whose permit was suspended following the opening bouts conducted by the organization in Manhattan Casino, will resume activity Feb. 14. Restoration of the club's permit was announced yesterday by the Boxing Commission, following a hearing on a petition submitted by officials of the organization. The congested condition of the club at the Dundee-Jackson bout on Nov. 29 prompted the sports governing officials to take immediate action in suspending the license of the club.

The Boxing Commission announced its decision to again permit the club to operate in the following statement:

"The New York State Boxing Commission announces that upon the petition of the Central Manhattan Boxing Club, and after a hearing, this club will be permitted to resume boxing under the jurisdiction of the commission on and after Feb. 14.

"The officials of this club frankly admitted their mistakes in connection with their opening bout on Nov. 29. They have given satisfactory assurance to the commission that certain structural changes for handling the patrons of the club will be made, and the commission itself, having imposed additional conditions for the proper policing and control of the ushers, believes that it is warranted in permitting this club to have another opportunity to conduct boxing, and in the commission's opinion the patrons of boxing who will attend the contests of this club will be adequately protected.

"The officials of the club understand and have agreed that the slightest repetition of unsatisfactory conditions will result in the permanent revocation of its license."

PAL MOORE WINNER OF BOUT AT GARDEN

Gets Judges' Decision Over Young Montreal at Close of Uninteresting Contest.

After swinging wildly but unceasingly for fifteen rounds Pal Moore, the Memphis bantamweight, was awarded the decision over Young Montreal, in the main bout at Madison Square Garden last night. Neither of the boys was badly punished and at the end both were too tired to strike a blow with any power in it.

Before the bout Jess Willard, who has come to town to see about meeting Jack Dempsey again, was introduced. It was his first appearance here in several years. Willard was spied out and brought up to the ring.

The bout between Moore and Young Montreal was uninteresting, and when it was over there was not much interest as to who got the decision. Moore improved enough in the late rounds, after a poor start, to impress the judges.

Before the bout had gone eight rounds the galleries were hooting. Young Montreal was forcing the fighting but could not get inside of Moore's long arms for damaging blows. Moore flailed the air with head down and trusting to luck that his gloves would land on his opponent and occasionally they did.

By the tenth round both boys were tired from the flailing of arms. Young Montreal used his left to good advantage and cut the Memphis boy's lip. A second later he staggered him with a stiff left, but could not keep Moore from rushing wildly at him.

Moore's style of swinging wildly made the bout unsatisfactory to the fans. He danced through each session and covered a lot of ground without getting anywhere. In the twelfth Young Montreal chased Moore to the ropes and caught him with a right swing that nearly toppled the Memphis boy out of the ring.

Moore landed so many wild swings in the last three rounds that he earned the margin in the estimation of the judges. Neither of the boys scored a knockdown and both lacked a good punch. About 7,000 fans saw the series of bouts that made up the card. Moore weighed 117½ and Young Montreal 120½.

Boy McCormick of Dublin, who comes here as one of the best light heavyweights on the other side, made a decided hit when he gained the decision over Johnny Howard in the fifteen-round semi-final. McCormick had the better of practically every round, but his popularity upon his first appearance here resulted from his happy disposition. He laughed all the way through the bout and got a cheer when the verdict was announced.

McCormick is a well built boxer with a shock of fiery red hair and a nose that has been flattened out. His weight was 167 pounds, and for a man of his size he was extremely fast. He boxed cleverly and showed early in the bout that he had a punch in either hand.

After the first round, in which neither did much work, McCormick clearly outpointed Howard for half a dozen rounds, and in the sixth had the New Jersey boxer dizzy. Again in the seventh he had him in a bad way. In the ninth round the Irishman punished Howard with a series of rights and lefts to the jaw and finally put him down for the count of nine. Howard was badly dazed but he came back and made a remarkable finish for the round. Rushing and swinging desperately, he landed two hard rights on McCormick's jaw and slowed up the Irish boxer, and thus weathered the storm.

Paul Doyle gained a decision over Barney Adair in ten rounds. Doyle clearly outpointed his rival and forced Adair to take a lot of punishment. Adair took it and was always ready for more, but, though he had a wicked punch, he could not land often. He floored Doyle with a right to the back of the neck in the first round, but Doyle easily led for the other rounds.

In the opening six-round bout Frank Conifrey gained the referee's decision over Sam Mossberg, the former amateur champion. Mossberg was the aggressor and landed some heavy blows, but he continually held in the clinches. When the Judges could not agree on a verdict, the referee gave it to Conifrey.

YANKEES TO PLAY 30 SPRING GAMES

Huggins's Men to Begin Series of Tussles After Only a Few Days of Seasoning.

When the Yankees open their campaign of 1921 for the coveted fabric which will float throughout the coming season from a staff in the Indians' back yard, they will already have played a good-sized cluster of games against assorted antagonists. The schedule of the Spring contests booked for Huggins's athletes was given out yesterday at the offices of the club, and it calls for thirty games, of which sixteen, or slightly more than half, will be played against the champions of the National League, the Brooklyn Robins. The only other big league team to be encountered—unless one wishes to dignify the Yankees' second team by so rating it—is the St. Louis club of the National League. Baltimore and Shreveport will furnish the other organized opposition to the touring Yanks.

It is now expected that the employes of the noted firm of Ruppert & Huston will leave these parts, or whatever parts they happen to be inhabiting, for Shreveport, La., the site of their training camp, on or about Saturday, March 5. This is a late getaway, but the players will atone for the tardiness by pitching headlong into tuning-up work almost immediately upon their arrival at the sugar-cane and cotton belt. There will be less than a week of desultory ball tossing and joint stretching, for a real, honest-to-goodness ball game is scheduled for the first Saturday of the stay in Louisiana. The Shreveport team of the Texas League is to be the burnt offering or the triumphant upstart, as the case may prove to be.

Almost Unbroken Schedule.

From that day onward until April 12, the day before the season of pennant battles open, there will always be some pesky baseball team waiting around for a chance to roll the Yanks. Once in a while it will be only the Yankee Yannigans, but the regulars will have to do something more than merely go through the motions to turn back these aspiring youths. All in all, it looks like quite a busy and turbulent trip, and the players are likely to restrain their frowns without difficulty if an occasional cloudburst should intervene to give them a day's layoff.

Shreveport will furnish the opposition in the second game also, on Sunday, March 13. Then for three successive days the Yankee house will be divided against itself, the regulars and the recruits grappling in combat.

On the Seventeenth of March, a day which is not without its associations, the Yankees are to have their first opportunity to uphold the prestige of the American League against opponents from the National. They will travel to Lake Charles on that date, where they will break bread and bats with the Cardinals. A nice little flag of truce will be provided for Rogers Hornsby to raise when he sees Babe Ruth approaching.

Then begins the long sweep of games against the Superbas, in which Messrs. Klem and Moriarty will be umpires. On Friday, March 18, the Yankees are booked for Baton Rouge, La., where the Dodgers will be encountered for the first time. On Saturday and Sunday the two teams are to meet in New Orleans, the training quarters of the Brooklyn contingent.

Short Interim in Series.

The traditional Springtime enemies will part then for a few days, and the two Yankee teams will tussle at Shreveport on March 22. On the two days following the Shreveport nine will furnish the trouble for the Yankee regulars.

The Robins and Huggins's brigade will meet again at Alexandria, La., on Thursday, March 24, and will then play games on three successive days at Shreveport. The Yankees' first and second teams will meet the next day and Shreveport will figure them in a brace of games. On April 1 comes the only break in the schedule. That evening the Yankees are to break camp for good and New Orleans fans will see them in action against the Superbas on Saturday and Sunday, April 2 and 3. The embattled rivals will then play one-day stands at Birmingham, Ala.; Atlanta, Ga.; Winston-Salem, N. C., and Richmond, Va.

Huggins and his merry men will invade Baltimore on Friday, April 8, and tackle the champion Orioles of the new International League, in their lair. Then comes the triumphal, or otherwise, return home, and three final fracases with the Robins on their home field on April 9, 10 and 11.

On April 8, by the way, Baltimore will have both hands full, for the Orioles are to play the Superbas at 1 o'clock and the Yanks at 3 o'clock. It sounds like a full day's work for the Baltimore troupe. The Yankees' full Spring schedule is as follows:

March 12 and 13, Shreveport, at Shreveport, La.; 14, 15 and 16, Yankees' second team, at Shreveport; 17, St. Louis Nationals, at Lake Charles, La.; 18, Brooklyn, at Baton Rouge, La.; 19 and 20, Brooklyn, at New Orleans; 21, Yankees' second team, at Shreveport; 22 and 23, Shreveport, at Shreveport; 24, Brooklyn, at Alexandria, La.; 25, 26 and 27, Brooklyn at Shreveport; 28, Yankees' second team at Shreveport; 29, 30 and 31, Shreveport, at Shreveport.

April 2 and 3, Brooklyn, at New Orleans; 4, Brooklyn, at Birmingham, Ala.; 5, Brooklyn, at Atlanta, Ga.; 6, Brooklyn, at Winston-Salem, N. C.; 7, Brooklyn, at Richmond, Va.; 8, Baltimore, at Baltimore; 9, 10 and 11, Brooklyn, at Brooklyn.

Sixteen games with the Brooklyn Club, 7 games with the Shreveport Club, 1 game with the St. Louis Club, 1 game with the Baltimore Club, 5 games with the second team—30 games in all.

PLAYERS ON RETIRED LIST.

Caton and Ward of Brooklyn Will Not Receive Contracts.

Charles H. Ebbets, President of the Brooklyn National League team, announced last evening that contracts would be sent to all the players before Feb. 1, except two infielders, James H. Caton and Charles W. Ward, who, by reason of illness, had requested that they be placed on the "voluntary retired list." They will be kept on this list, says Colonel Ebbets, only until such time as they are physically fit to report to the Brooklyn Club, which probably will be about the middle of March. Caton is suffering from boils and Ward with an injured knee, which was operated on last Winter.

Oregon Eleven Circulates Petition to Retain Coach

EUGENE, Ore., Jan. 26.—As a result of the action of the athletic council of the University of Oregon in offering Gilmour Dobie, Cornell University football coach, the position of coach of the Oregon team, the members of the football team circulated a petition today to retain "Shy" Huntington as coach for another year. It is stated in the petition that unless Huntington is retained, many of the freshmen who are candidates for the teams will not return to the university next Fall. The petition points to Huntington's record in obtaining a Northwest championship and a Pacific championship for his team as evidence of his ability as a coach.

COWARD WINS WAY INTO SEMI-FINALS

Defeats Vietor, 15-9, 15-7, in Class B Squash Tourney—Rochester Beats Putnam.

Play was continued yesterday in the National Class B tournament at the Squash Club after the interference resulting from the team matches of Tuesday, and six matches were played, five of them being in the third round and the other in the fourth round. The fourth round match was between T. R. Coward and J. A. Vietor, both of the Yale Club, and the former won by the score of 15—9, 15—7. He is the first player to get in the semi-final brackets, and the only Yale Club man who can get that far.

As the result of yesterday's play two Squash Club members, J. C. Rochester and Basil von Gerbig, one Columbia Club member, R. V. Mahon; one Montclair Athletic Club member, F. A. Seller, who won his third round match on Tuesday; two Harvard Club players, F. S. Whitlock and E. H. Heminway, have chances to get into the semi-finals, aside from Coward, who attained that right yesterday.

Practically all of the matches have been conclusive despite the fact that in some cases they went to three games, and, for the greater part, the play has been of a high order for Class B, which means that several Class B players are liable to graduate into Class A as soon as the ranking committee gets into action.

One of the most interesting matches of the day was that which brought together J. C. Rochester of the Squash Club and Willis Putnam of the Columbia Club. Rochester has been picked as the dark horse of the tournament by no less an authority than Walter A. Kinsella, professional of the Squash Club and champion of the world, but until yesterday afternoon those who have been following the progress of the tournament had not seen Rochester in action in the present competition, as he has won out in the first and second rounds by the defaulting of his opponents.

Rochester used the straight-down-the-court shot that Kinsella has taught him, and he used it to good advantage in his match with Putnam. He used it to such good advantage that, in the first game the score was 15—4, but in the second game Putnam put up a much stiffer fight, as the score of 17—16 indicates, and those who saw the match believe the Squash Club representative has a very fair chance of going right on to the final round.

The other Squash Club member who managed to get through to the fourth round is Basil von Gerbig, who met J. W. Ivins in the third round yesterday and, as the result of being in better condition, won by the score of 15—12, 15—8, which is a remarkable triumph for that veteran player.

The fourth round match that was played yesterday showed Vieter to be in even better form than usual. He put up a very good game, but could not force Coward to extend himself except on occasions, and when he did he had things to his own liking. Both are Yale Club players and Coward remains for the semi-finals.

The summary:

Third Round, Class B, at Squash Club—J. C. Rochester, Squash Club, defeated Willis Putnam, Columbia Club, 15—4, 17—16; Basil Von Gerbig, Squash Club, defeated J. W. Ivins, Crescent A. Fourth Round—T. R. Coward, Yale Club, defeated J. A. Vietor, Yale Club, 15—9, 15—7.

HANOVER, N. H., Jan. 26.—Princeton defeated Dartmouth here tonight 30 to 29, in the last second of play. The Green led up to the very end and the timer's whistle was about to sound when Armand Legendre, star of the Tiger football and basket ball teams, leaped into a mass of players, snatched the ball and shot it for the winning goal. The score at the time was 29 to 28 in favor of Dartmouth. Time was called before play could be resumed.

It was the most spectacular game seen in Hanover in years. Princeton got the jump, but soon relinquished the lead, and in the middle of the half the Green was in the van, 14-7. The Orange then hit its stride and had reduced the home team's lead to 16-14 at the end of the period.

Dartmouth got going at a great clip in the second half and scored ten points before the Tigers got one. Then with five minutes play Princeton started a sensational spurt and rapidly overhauled the Green. Dartmouth maintained its lead up till the final minutes, when Dickinson and Browner run up double counters that left the Green but a single point in the lead. Legendre made the deciding basket from a scramble in front of the goal.

Cullen, midget forward, leading scorer in the league, was again high man for Dartmouth, scoring 16 points. Legendre and Browner were the stars for Princeton.

LESLIE WINS TITLE BY A FINAL SPURT

Dons Met. Crown for 1,000 Yards, Leading Higgins Over Line by Bare Two Feet.

SELLERS AND DEVANEY NEXT

Aronson Takes Mile Walking Championship, Pearman Failing to Appear on Starting Line.

Sid Leslie, formerly Military Athletic League mile champion, showed a return to title-winning form last night in the annual indoor athletic meet of the Seventy-first Regiment, N. Y. G., when he captured the Metropolitan A. A. U. 1,000-yard title from a field of eight rivals. A sustained spurt which continued practically throughout the entire last lap brought Leslie the victory after one of the keenest races of the current indoor season.

At the finish Leslie was about two feet in front of Joe Higgins of the New York A. C., former Holy Cross College star, while Jack Sellers, another Mercury Footer, who won the title last year, trailed home in third position. Mike Devaney, running his first open race since rejoining the Millrose A. A., was fourth. The victor's time was 2:20 4-5.

This title event was one of a series of local championship competitions witnessed by a crowd of about 3,000 enthusiastic spectators. A field of nine middle-distance runners, the pick of the local talent, faced the starter. From the outset the decision rested with the quartet which finished in the first four places, and right up to within about fifteen yards of the finish the result was in doubt. At this short distance from the worsted, Leslie, summoning all the strength at his command, overtook Joe Higgins, who had set the pace from the beginning of the fifth lap. The former Holy Cross lad tried to beat off his challenging rival, but Leslie had the necessary reserve to carry him over the line to the championship, despite Higgins's spirited effort.

Devaney Sets the Pace.

Devaney, almost on the outside at the outset, crossed quickly as the gun bark started the field, and in the traditional scramble came out successful. The sturdy Millrose runner carried the pack around for the first two laps, followed by the long-striding Sellers and Charles Beagan, of the St. Anselm's A. C. Leslie and Higgins struggled for forward positions without avail until the third lap, when Higgins moved into third place, back of Sellers, while Leslie trailed in fourth position.

On the fourth circuit Sellers spurted and dislodged Devaney as the pacemaker. Higgins and Leslie moving along as Sellers gained the lead. For one circuit Sellers showed the way, but on the fifth lap he gave place to Higgins, dropping back to third position, in the wake of Sellers. Higgins led over the fifth eclipse and up to within about fifteen yards of the finish line, when Leslie's mighty closing effort carried him past the Mercury Footer to snatch the title by a small margin. Sellers was about seven yards back of Higgins, in third place.

Tardiness in getting to the starting line probably cost Joseph B. Pearman, New York A. C. national walking champion, the local one-mile title. When the "peds" were summoned to the chalk mark for this title test Pearman was missing, and frantic efforts were made by friends to locate him before the start was made. The efforts were fruitless, however, and the field was sent away without the national title holder.

Aronson Wins Close Contest.

Joe Aronson, sorrel-topped veteran of Belleau Wood, sporting the emblem of the Pastime A. C., carried off the championship after a bitter struggle with Harry Lobou, the Y. M. H. A. walker. J. E. Farrell was third and Morris Greenberg finished fourth. A blanket could have covered the first three walkers as they went over the finish line. Aronson's time was 7:11 2-5.

An impressive heave of 45 feet 2½ inches gained Chris Vrettos, Pastime A. C. weight thrower, the 16-pound shot-putting title of the local district, the other title event on the card. George Bronder of the New York A. C., former javelin-throwing champion, finished second with a heave of 42 feet 5¾ inches and H. S. Elsey of the Mohawk A. C. was third with 41 feet 7½ inches.

Measure Barring Commercial Sports on Memorial Day Fails

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 26.—Although supporters of a bill to prohibit all commercial sports on Memorial Day outnumbered the opponents, 25 to 23, in the Indiana Senate today, the measure failed of passage because of the lack of one more vote, the Chair ruling that the Constitution required a majority of the entire Senate to pass a bill. The measure, however, remains on the Senate calendar, and can be recalled for another vote at any time.

HERRICK TO RULE HARVARD ROWING

Former Crimson Head Coach in Command Again—Schedule Almost Completed.

Special to the New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 26.—Robert F. Herrick, '90, of Boston will have complete charge of rowing at Harvard this coming season, serving as head coach and acting as Chairman of Captain Lewis McCagg's graduate Advisory Board. He will not take up his duties until the weather is such that the varsity crews can be outdoors for their rowing practice.

Herrick served as head coach in 1916 and developed the Harvard crew which swept along the Thames course in 20 minutes and 2 seconds, defeating Yale and breaking the record for that course. Previous to that a greater achievement crowned his work in 1914, when he took a second Harvard crew and whipped it up into such shape that it captured the classic Grand Challenge Cup at the English Henley. At different times Herrick has coached the Union Boat Club crews and went abroad with them for the last English Henley.

Coach William Haines will continue at Harvard, and there will be little difference in his duties. He served with Mr. Herrick five seasons ago.

With R. Heber Stone Jr., '01, former coach at Middlesex School, to be in complete charge of the freshman crew, both combinations will be under the command of graduates this season.

Harvard's rowing schedule for the season is practically completed, but still needs the sanction of the Athletic Committee. The first race will take place on April 23 with Princeton on Lake Carnegie's two-mile course. Varsity and freshman crews are expected to compete. According to the present plans, the varsity will row Annapolis over the latter's course on May 14. This race will be for two miles, not three miles, which distance the Harvard management favored so that their crew could be gradually developed to meet Yale June 24 in the annual four-mile race. Cornell will row here May 28.

CH. MEPAL'S IRA BEST.

Gets Highest Award in Spaniel Club Show at Waldorf.

Champion Mepal's Ira, a beautiful cocker spaniel, listed as parti-colored, but in reality all white except for light brown ears and muzzle, was judged to be the best dog at the annual specialty show of the American Spaniel Club, held yesterday at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Outside of nearly a round hundred of cockers entered for the event, there were benched but three dogs of the other spaniel varieties. And as each entrant had no competitors, he or she won both the first award and the winner's award listed for the class. These other dogs were Howard Willets's Irish water spaniel, Gedney Farms Poor Pat, a sturdy, curley-haired Hibernian, which looked anything but "poor"; Hempsted Sllome, a Clumber bitch, from the Brookside Kennels, and Champion Brookside Bonnie Jr., a field spaniel from the same kennels.

The summary of the more important classes follows:

GOLF AT ST. AUGUSTINE.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., Jan. 26.—Close and interesting matches featured the first round of the St. Augustine links tournament here today. Donald Clark, the West Virginian who won the qualifying medal yesterday, continued his good work today and defeated R. P. Bernard of Washington by 5 and 4.

Clark played more steadily than he did yesterday and at the turn was five holes to the good. Coming back Barnard managed to hold his opponent on even terms. Clark's medal score for the eighteen holes approximated 84.

The big surprise of the day's play was the struggle between William A. Knight, former Florida State champion, and O. J. Demoll of Washington. Knight was figured to win easily, but Demoll gave him a battle all the way and lost out only by two holes. At the seventeenth the two were all even.

The summary:

FRANCIS APPLEBY DEFEATS GARDNER

Wins His Match, 300 to 232, in Eastern Class A 18.2 Championship Tourney.

EASTERN 18.2 CLASS A BALKLINE Tournament Standing

Name.	G.	W.	L.	P. C.
E. T. Appleby	1	1	0	1.000
F. Appleby	1	1	0	1.000
Clarkson	1	1	0	1.000
Gardner	2	0	2	.000
Mial	1	0	1	.000

Playing to a large and at times enthusiastic gallery at the New York A. C. last night, Francis Appleby won his match with E. W. Gardner in the Class A Eastern championship 18.2 balkline tournament of the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players by the score of 300 to 232. It was the third contest of the tourney, and the first in which Francis Appleby has participated. The match went forty-two innings. Appleby's high run for the evening was 70, topping by one button the previous high run for the event—Clarkson's cluster of 69, made on the opening night. Appleby's average was 7 6-42. Gardner averaged 5 27-41, and his high run was for 56 points.

The winner got away to a good start, with 9 tallies in the second inning, which, by the fourth, he had brought up to 37. His run of 70 came in the following session, so that with Appleby already above the one hundred mark and the game so young, it looked like a runaway heat for the younger man. But immediately thereafter the youthful billiardist went into a slump, with only an occasional rally until well along in the match.

Gardner, distanced as he was at the outset, made a game uphill battle. In the sixth inning, after executing several very difficult shots in succession, bringing forth applause and accumulating 21 tallies, the veteran cueist, unfortunately, failed to get out of balk. It was very close and the referee had not called it, but Gardner insisted that the decision be called against him. Gardner's high run came in the thirty-second inning.

Tonight Gardner will play Dr. Mial.

The scores:

Francis Appleby—9 0 21 7 70 2 18 0 2 0 0 1 26 15 0 0 8 3 0 3 3 1 5 2 0 3 21 1 5 0 2 0 3 5 1 6 13 3 34 1 6 2 1. Total—300. Average, 7 6-42.

DE ORO FAILS IN COMEBACK.

Loses Last Two Blocks of Three-Cushion Match With Layton.

John Layton, the American champion three-cushion billiardist, won the last two blocks of his match with Alfredo De Oro, former champion, and along with the winning of the two blocks went the match itself, the totals being 300 for Layton and 259 for the Cuban cueist.

The afternoon session lasted for 54 innings, and the tally was 50 for Layton and 41 for De Oro. Both had high runs of 5, 4, 4 and 4, and the gallery saw aonther example of that steady plugging game of the champion that has proved so successful. De Oro lost many points as the result of kiss-offs, and he scored eight bank shots in as many attempts.

In the evening game Layton ran his 50 points while De Oro tallied 38. The champion had high runs of 8, 5, 4 and 4, while the former champion had 5, 5, 4 and 4 as his best clusters. The game lasted for 58 innings. Layton ran out with a grandstand finish of 8 points, the longest run he made during the match. De Oro gathered in 10 points in the second inning of the afternoon block on Tuesday.

HOREMANS TO PLAY CUTLER.

Great Belgian Billiard Player Is Matched for 18.2 Contest.

Edouard Horemans, the Belgian billiardist, who has made some remarkable runs at 18.2 and 18.1 balkline billiards during the last few weeks, has been matched against Albert G. Cutler, one of the foremost of American professionals and who has recently defeated Al Taylor, Dave McCandless and others by good margins. Cutler is the professional billiardist at the Union Club.

The match, which is to be at 18.2 balkline, will take place at Maurice Daly's Academy on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings of next week, two sessions being played each day and each session to be a block of 400 points, or a total of 2,400 points all told.

This is the first instance in which the Belgian has been matched against an American player of the first class. Billiard enthusiasts from the Union Club, headed by C. A. Sherman, Chairman of the Billiard Committee of the club, have arranged to attend the matches.

EAGLE AND TURK VICTORS.

Win Games in Tourney for State Three-Cushion Title.

Amateur three-cushion billiardists continued their tournament for the State championship yesterday at the National Recreation Academy, and in the first game George Eagle defeated G. B. Wyatt by the score of 30 to 18 in sixty-five innings, both having high runs of three.

The other game was between Harold Turk and Louis A. Servatius. The former won by the score of 30 to 36 in a lively, interesting game which lasted for forty-eight innings and in the course of which each made a high run of four.

HOLT WINS CUE TOURNEY.

Has Five Victories and One Defeat in Class C Contest.

The American Amateur Billiard Association's Class C 18.2 balkline tournament, which began a week ago Monday at Maurice Daly's Academy, was concluded yesterday. W. H. Holt won first prize, while Joseph Roberts and Frank Tobias tied for second and third places.

Holt won five games and lost one. Roberts and Tobias each won four and lost two. The tie will not be played off. Each will be awarded an equal prize.

CHOOSE TITLE LINKS TODAY.

Nassau May Get Golfing Plum at W. M. G. A. Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association will take place this morning at the Biltmore Hotel. Chief interest in the meeting centres in the selection of a course for holding the annual championship tournament. Several clubs are understood to be ready and willing to hold this event, though the ultimate choice has not been hinted in advance. It is known, however, that the Nassau Country Club at Glen Cove, Long Island, is favored by many of the prominent players of the district. It has been some time since a Long Island course had the championship and in all probability that section will draw this year's event, with Nassau quite a likely choice.

Another feature of the program for this meeting is the election of officers for the ensuing year. The nominating committee made its report some time since and no doubt its selections will be named in full. These selections are the following: Mrs. C. F. Usebelacker, Hackensack, President; Mrs. J. E. Davis, Piping Rock, Vice President; Miss Irma Waterhouse, Ardsley, Secretary; Mrs. M. H. Frayne, Dunwoodie, Treasurer. In this list Mrs. Davis succeeds Miss Marion Hollins, while Miss Waterhouse assumes the duties which have been looked after by Mrs. R. Percy Thompson for the last two years. The others are to be re-elections.

HANAN HEIRS SUED; RECEIVER IS ASKED

Widow of Alfred P. Hanan Charges Four Members of Family With Attempt to Cheat Her

ASKS BOND OF $12,000,000

Defendants Accused of Failing to Account for Her Share of Assets of Business.

A suit to compel Herbert W. Hanan, shoe manufacturer, to render an accounting as executor of the estate of his brother, Alfred P. Hanan, was filed in the Supreme Court here yesterday by Mrs. Ethel Hanan Taylor, widow of Alfred P. Hanan. Herbert W. Hanan is sued as executor of the estate, as well as a partner in Hanan & Son, and four other members of the Hanan family also are made defendants. They are John H. Hanan, Mildred E. Hanan, Addison G. Hanan and Mrs. Elizabeth F. De Majo Durazzo.

According to Mrs. Taylor, Alfred P. Hanan several years ago entered the partnership with the other members of the Hanan family, that through their joint efforts a large business was built up with extensive profits.

She alleges that the executor has never accounted for the stock held in the shoe firm by Alfred P. Hanan. She further alleges that three of the defendants have continued in possession of the affairs of the company, that they have collected large sums in profits and have made no attempt to liquidate the estate of Alfred P. Hanan.

All of the capital and undivided profits, including the share of the estate of Alfred P. Hanan, have been used in continuing the business, plaintiff alleges, and Herbert W. Hanan, as executor, has refused to institute any proceeding that would call for an accounting, it is alleged.

The complaint further alleges that "the surviving partners and Herbert W. Hanan, as executor, have been and are seeking to defraud, cheat and deprive the estate and the plaintiff and Mildred E. Hanan of their share of the assets of the business." It is also alleged that the executor "has filed an erroneous report with the Collector of Internal Revenue, on account of the Federal estate taxes due, and in said return has grossly undervalued the share of the said decedent in the assets and partnership of the said partnership."

The plaintiff alleges also that Mildred E. Hanan, daughter of Alfred P. Hanan, desires as accounting and that, inasmuch as she declined to become a plaintiff in the action she is made a defendant so that she will have the opportunity to be heard in court.

In addition to an immediate accounting, the plaintiff asks an injunction to restrain the partners from distributing the profits, and she seeks also a receivership to administer the business of the shoe company in place of the partners until the affairs of the estate of Alfred P. Hanan are settled. If these pleas are denied, she asks that the court permit the partners to continue the business only under bond of $12,000,000.

Since the death of Alfred P. Hanan, the affairs of the Hanan family have been complicated still further by the death of John H. Hanan, who was for many years head of the firm.

The defendants in the suit are all close relatives. Herbert W. Hanan and his brother, Addison G. Hanan, who is well known as a yachtsman, are sons of the late John H. Hanan. The John H. Hanan named in the suit is their cousin, and their aunt, Elizabeth F. De Majo Durazzo, was a sister of the late John H. Hanan.

At the office of Herbert W. Hanan at Bridge and Front Streets, Brooklyn, it was said yesterday that Mr. Hanan had no statement to make. Counsel for Addison G. Hanan and Mrs. Durazzo is Anthony F. Tuozzo of 44 Court Street, Brooklyn. He could not be reached yesterday. Crocker, Johnson & Shores of 5 Nassau Street are attorneys for the plaintiff.

Mrs. Alfred P. Hanan married again last February. Her present husband is Marbury Taylor, and since their marriage they had spent much of their time in Europe.

ASKS ALIMONY RISE AND CAR

Justice Aspinall Reserves Decision on Mrs. Harriet Loeffler's Plea.

Mrs. Harriet Quail Loeffler asked Supreme Court Justice Aspinall in Brooklyn yesterday to increase the alimony granted in her separation suit against George H. Loeffler and to compel her husband to buy her an automobile.

Mr. Loeffler, who is 19 years old and lives in Richmond Hill, inherited an estate of $250,000 from his grandfather. Mrs. Loeffler asked that her alimony be increased from $45 to $100 a week and that a $4,000 roadster be given to her. Justice Aspinall reserved decision.

Rumor of $50,000,000 Income for Rockefeller and $35,000,000 for Henry Ford.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—Figures of personal returns of income for the calendar year ended Dec. 31, 1918, now available at the office of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, show that out of $1,127,721,835 in personal taxes due the Government in that year persons residing in the State of New York made returns calling for the payment of $354,253,417.

It was announced a few days ago that only one American citizen made a return of a net taxable income of more than $5,000,000. The detailed figures on file at the Internal Revenue Bureau show that this person resides in the State of New York. Two other persons paid taxes on net incomes of between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000 and both reside in New York. Of three American citizens who are taxed on personal incomes of between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000, two reside in New York.

Figures showing income tax returns for each of the five internal revenue districts in New York State are not yet available. The statistics at hand cover the State as a whole. These show that 559,753 persons, claiming New York State as a residence, made returns of personal income to collectors of internal revenue. Their net incomes aggregated $2,719,713,784. Personal exemptions claimed amounted to $970,481,990 and non-taxable dividends received as income to $631,719,308.

The normal taxes on the incomes reported from New York State amounted to $107,625,964 and the surtaxes to $246,627,453.

Incomes of Five $37,976,262.

The five persons in New York State reporting incomes of more than $3,000,000 in 1918 made returns to show that their net incomes aggregated $37,976,262. The Internal Revenue Bureau declines to separate these classes, the grouping being necessary, it holds, to conceal the net income and identity of each of these five individuals. Their personal exemptions amounted to only $1,000, but their non-taxable dividends received as income amounted to $40,290,728. The total tax assessable on the net incomes for which return was made by the five amounted to $24,421,585.

Nine citizens of New York made returns on net incomes of between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 each, twelve reported net incomes of between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000 and seventeen reported that they had incomes between $1,000,000 and $1,500,000 each. Of all American citizens eleven made returns of net incomes of between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000, sixteen of between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000 and thirty-three of between $1,000,000 and $1,500,000.

For the calendar year 1917 the total personal tax paid by citizens of the State of New York was $249,579,422, or $104,674,095 less than in 1918. But in 1917 there were four persons in the State making returns of incomes of $5,000,000 or more and five making returns of incomes of between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000. In 1917, there were three New Yorkers in the $3,000,000-$4,000,000 class, sixteen in the $2,000,000-$3,000,000 class, thirteen having incomes of between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000 and forty with incomes of between $1,000,000 and $1,500,000. The total number of New Yorkers who made personal income tax returns in 1917 was 266,233, with net incomes aggregating $2,439,736,148.

For 1916 fifty-four New Yorkers paid personal income taxes on incomes of between $1,000,000 and $1,500,000; thirty-three on incomes between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000 and forty-two on incomes of $2,000,000 and more.

What has become of three of the four New Yorkers who had incomes of more than $5,000,000 in 1917 but who did not make returns of incomes that large for 1918 is not disclosed by the information available at the Internal Revenue Bureau. For several years a story has been current that John D. Rockefeller paid Federal taxes on a personal income of more than $50,000,000 and Henry Ford of Detroit had the next highest personal income in the United Sates, amounting to $35,000,000 or thereabouts.

In the tables prepared by the Internal Revenue Bureau of income tax returns for Michigan all incomes of $750,000 and above are grouped. Only one return was made for income of more than $750,000, but it is impossible to tell how to clarify it.

A footnote to the table containing the Michigan returns says that the seven classes concerned are grouped "to conceal the net income and identity of taxpayer." For 1917 three returns of incomes of more than $750,000 each were made from Michigan.

Table of Classified Taxpayers.

For 1918 the number of New York State residents of the various classifications other than those mentioned who made returns of income to the Federal Government was as follows, non-taxable incomes being designated by a star:

Quarter of Profits Tax Paid Here.

For 1918 New York corporations to the number of 27,760 reported gross incomes of $15,946,819,327. Deductions amounted to $13,792,501,557, leaving net income of $2,153,317,770. The income tax on this was $171,756,980.

The war profits and excess profits tax on the income of these corporations was $635,547,519, making the total tax $807,306,499 or 25.56 per cent. of the total profits tax for the United States and its possessions.

The New York corporations reporting that they had no net income for 1918 numbered 19,775 or 41.60 per cent. of the total number of corporations in the State. The gross income reported by these corporations was $1,751,185,496. Deductions claimed amount to $1,920,890,268, leaving a deficit of $169,754,772.

Canadian Soldier Gives Blood To Save Life of Former Enemy

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., Jan. 26.—Richard Kempton, who served abroad with the Canadian forces during the World War, gave his blood today to save the life of a former enemy of his country.

When surgeons at a hospital here announced that Mike Venoski, an Austrian, would die unless there was a transfusion of blood, Kempton, who was under treatment for frozen feet, volunteered to make the sacrifice, after several of Venoski's fellow-countrymen had declined.

TWO HOTEL GUESTS KILLED IN BELFAST

Victims, Shot in Their Rooms, Were to Have Been Police Witnesses for Crown.

DUBLIN TRIAL IS HALTED

Principal Witness Against Republicans, Charged With Murder, Has Disappeared.

BELFAST, Jan. 26.—Two strangers this evening made inquiry at a hotel near the Belfast Police Headquarters for three guests. They were shown to the bedroom of the guests, two of whom were shot dead and the third was severely wounded. The assassins escaped.

The men killed were policemen, named Quinn and Heffron, who were to be important witnesses at the military inquiry. The wounded man is Patrick Gilmartin of Coolmara, County Sligo, another police witness. He was shot through the lungs and his condition is critical.

The murder party consisted of five men armed with revolvers. Three of the men kept guard while the shooting was taking place.

SKIBBEREEN, Jan. 26.—In connection with the murder of Thomas Bradfield, a Protestant farmer of Carhue, near Bandon, an amazing story is told here. On the evening he was shot a number of young men wearing military dress visited his house, ostensibly to search for local Sinn Feiners. On Bradfield's invitation the visitors had tea with him. He appears to have been so thoroughly satisfied that they were soldiers of the Crown that he communicated to them particulars of an intended ambush in the neighborhood.

He was then court-martialed and promptly shot dead, it is stated, for attempting to give information to "the enemy."

Another Crown Witness Missing.

DUBLIN, Jan. 26.—A new sensation has been added to those of the trial by court-martial of three of the men alleged to have been implicated in the murder of Lieutenant Angliss last November. It was announced today that one of the principal witnesses was missing, and the trial was adjourned to ascertain his whereabouts.

This witness, who has been referred to in the proceedings as "Mr. C.," was sleeping in the same bed with Angliss (otherwise known as McMahon) when the latter was shot. He escaped by falling out of the bed and rolling beneath it.

My inquiries show that "Mr. C.," who was suffering from the shock of his experience, obtained leave and proceeded to England. Last night a wire was received to the effect that he had left London. It was assumed that he would travel by the Holyhead route, and an armed escort was sent to Kingstown this morning. He was not, however, among the passengers, and no luggage in his name was discovered.

An ambush last night at Trim, County Meath, twenty-nine miles northwest of Dublin, resulted in the dangerous wounding of three auxiliaries, one of whom is not expected to recover. A patrol of six men had just left High Street when a volley was fired into them from over a wall near a blacksmith's shop. The police opened fire, but the attackers, who are estimated to have numbered twenty, had the advantage of cover.

Two of the police were sent for reinforcements and Very lights were sent up to summon assistance from the neighboring town of Navan, but these apparently were unobserved. Meanwhile a strong force from the local barracks hurried to the spot and the ambushers decamped.

An investigation this morning revealed that an ambush was apparently intended for the relief party also. About two miles from the town a big hole had been torn in the road and a quantity of gelignite was found in the neighborhood. In a field at the back of the wall from which the police were fired upon a bomb was found.

An official account has been issued of the bomb attack last night on a police lorry in Dublin. Two Royal Irish Constabulary motor tenders, each containing a Sergeant and six men, were returning from Kingstown to Phoenix Park. One was going along the quay road, on the north side of the Liffey, while the other was traveling in a parallel line on the quay on the south side.

At Usher's Quay, on the south side, a bomb was thrown by a civilian standing in a doorway. It burst behind the motor tender. Two more bombs were thrown by a group of men on a footpath at the corner of a lane, and revolver shots were also fired by them.

The police in the tender fired at their assailants, and the police in the other car, who had witnessed the incident, shot at a number of men who were in flight. The police suffered no casualties.

Inquiries at the scene show that five or six men of the attacking party were seen to fall. If this is so they must have been carried away by their friends, because later they could not be traced. A six-chambered revolver containing five cartridges was found near the spot.

DUBLIN, Jan. 26.—Cardinal Logue has written the Lord Mayor of Dublin, supporting the White Cross Association, organized to relieve suffering in Ireland. The prelate said that even if peace was restored, of which there seemed little prospect at present, it would be necessary to save the country from the wreck to which it had been reduced and to extend help to those left destitute.

Auxiliary police at Dublin Barracks are daily training bloodhounds for use in tracking down fugitives. Some already are being used throughout the country.

DUBLIN, Jan. 26 (Associated Press).—Colonel Oldman, commanding the military in the Dublin district, has issued a warning to the people under the Restoration of Order act, to the effect that any person who, except in the pursuit of his lawful calling, stands or loiters in any public place is guilty of an offense and liable to arrest and prosecution.

On pain of prosecution under the Restoration of Order act all the Dublin hospitals, public and private, are required to furnish daily to the military authorities the names, addresses and descriptions of all persons admitted suffering from wounds due to gunshots or explosions.

Armed raiders last night seized the telescopes and Morse signaling instruments in the Famard Lighthouse, County Donegal.

The Famard Lighthouse is located near the entrance to Donegal Bay on the northwest coast of Ireland and faces the Atlantic Ocean. The Morse signaling is used for communicating with passing ships at night, and the officer on the bridge replied with the Morse lamp by means of dots and dashes.

JAPAN AGREEMENT IN COLBY'S HANDS

President Must Decide Whether Morris Recommendation Will Be Sent to the Senate.

MANY QUESTIONS GO OVER

Far Eastern Problems Becoming Important During Closing Days of Administration.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—The report of Roland S. Morris, American Ambassador to Japan, embracing recommendations for a settlement of outstanding issues between this country and Japan as involved in the problems of Japanese immigration and alien land ownership in the State of California, was today submitted to Acting Secretary of State Davis.

The Morris report, which gives a complete account of his negotiations during the last six months with Baron Shidehara, the Japanese Ambassador to the United States, will be considered by Secretary of State Colby, who returned to his desk in the State Department late this afternoon, and will be made the basis of an early conference with President Wilson. After these conferences it will be determined whether the Morris report will be received formally and form the basis for a communication to the Senate by the President. As both the State Department and the Japanese Government have been in touch with the negotiations of their Ambassadors, it is not doubted that the recommendations they have made will receive the approval of the respective Foreign Offices.

As outlined in THE NEW YORK TIMES this morning, the principal features of the report are:

1. An amendment of the existing commercial treaty between Japan and the United States so as to grant to Japanese subjects lawfully in this country equal rights with the nationals of any other foreign nation.

2. A revision of the existing "gentlemen's agreement" between Japan and the United States so as to make it conform to present-day requirements, and to that end absolutely prohibit Japanese emigration to America and Hawaii while admitting Japanese immigrants into the Philippines.

Accompanying Ambassador Morris's report is a voluminous record of Japanese-American relations covering a period of nearly thirty years, and which emphasizes, it is understood, Japanese feeling regarding alleged discrimination against Japanese nationals in this country. The Japanese Government, according to the best obtainable information, will await action by the State Department on the Morris report before accepting formally the report of Ambassador Shidehara. If the reports should not be accepted by the respective Governments, as they are understood to be identical reports, neither Government would be obliged to resume negotiations at a future time upon the same basis. Up to the present time the conferences between the two Ambassadors have been informal and do not bind either Government.

Japanese Questions Uppermost.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26 (Associated Press).—Developments in the Japanese situation today, following the attention given that subject by members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee yesterday in questioning Under Secretary of State Davis on the cable situation, were pointed to tonight as indicating that the redefining of policy between the two countries would, for a time at least, overshadow in importance most other questions.

The entire Japanese question, it is understood, will be the first to claim the attention of Secretary Colby when he returns to the State Department tomorrow after his South American trip. Notwithstanding reports of satisfactory progress already made and the evident desire of the two countries to approach the problems in a mutual spirit of good feeling, it was felt tonight that final solution must inevitably be deferred until the next Administration.

The mission of Sir Auckland Geddes, the British Ambassador, to confer with officials in London, it has been said here, has prominently, as one object, discussion of American public opinion on the subject of relations with Japan in connection with the proposed renewal of the Anglo-Japanese alliance, which expires by limitation in July, and any influence in shaping the British foreign policy by the colonies participating in the imperial conference in the Spring.

LANGDON IS CLEARED BY U. S. NAVY COURT

Japan Acknowledges Our Protest and Promises a Thorough Investigation.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—The American Naval Court of Inquiry has completed its investigation of the killing of Lieutenant Warren H. Langdon, U. S. N., engineer officer of the cruiser Albany, by a Japanese sentry at Vladivostok, and find that Lieutenant Langdon was blameless, acording to an official report received by the Navy Department today from Admiral Gleaves, Commander in Chief of the Asiatic Fleet, now in Vladivostok.

It was also announced today that the Japanese Government had sent a communication to the State Department in acknowledgment of the American Government's note of protest on the killing of Lieutenant Langdon. The communication received was brief, stated that the whole matter was being very thoroughly investigated, following which the Japanese Government would make its formal reply to the American note of protest. The communication just received was not the reply of the Tokio Government and, consequently, does not close the incident.

TOKIO, Jan. 25 (Associated Press).—Minister of War Tanaka, replying in the Diet today to an interpellation by Representative Kotaro Mochizuki, of the Kensei-kai, or Opposition, party, regarding the recent killing of Lieutenant Warren H. Langdon in Vladivostok, said the incident was regrettable in view of the fact that it occurred between American and Japanese nationals at a time when the two people were devotedly endeavoring to establish a closer mutual understanding. The matter still is being investigated by a Japanese court-martial, which is acting in sincerity and good faith, the War Minister added.

DUNSANY ARRESTED AT HIS IRISH HOME

But He Is Soon Released, When Suspected Ammunition Is Found to be Obsolete.

DUBLIN, Jan. 26.—The discovery of a quantity of obsolete ammunition in Dunsany Castle, the home of Baron Dunsany, was followed today by the arrest of the Baron, who, however, was liberated in a few hours.

Lord Dunsany is well known in this country through his plays and the lectures that he delivered in the East a year ago. Moreton Drax Plunkett was his name when he succeeded to the title in 1899, his name and ancestry being reputed to be the third oldest in Irish history. Sir Horace Plunkett is an uncle.

St. Bernard Dogs Trace Murders in Alps; Arrests After Three Bodies Are Found

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 26.—Revolver shots ringing in the still, snow-filled pass aroused the dogs of the famous monastery of Mount St. Bernard recently. It was nearly midnight and when the monks looked out there was nothing to be seen but the snow glittering in the moonlight.

Thinking that perhaps some lost traveler had fired his revolver in an appeal for help, they unleashed the dogs and followed. A quarter of a mile away they found extended on the bloodstained snow the bodies of three men riddled with bullets.

Beside them were marks of skis which they found to have been made by three other men who before they fled had robbed the travelers of all their possessions. From their faces and clothes it was decided that the three men were Italian workmen making their way over the Alps into France and the monks at once informed the Italian police.

So terrible a crime in these Alpine fastnesses is almost without precedent and at this time of the year it was easy for the police to trace the path the murdered men had taken. They had left the village of Aosta two days before and had last been seen at Gignod, a village 3,000 feet up in the mountains. Persuaded that it was from that place that the murderers came, the police have arrested two brothers, Valle and Marcello Amato, and their uncle, Joseph Sassin, who had been seen in company with the murdered men and knew that they were carrying with them a considerable sum of money.

The police theory is that the Amatos and Sassin, knowing that the travelers, who were walking, could not reach the monastery until midnight, waited until dark and followed them on skis. For the success of their plans they overtook their quarry too near the monastery and hearing the baying of the dogs they took flight instead of disposing of the bodies in some crevasse, as had probably been their intention.

One of the three, Valle Amato, won for himself repute in the war by escaping from the Austrian prison camp at Mountousen, killing with his stiletto three sentries who barred his way.

In making the arrest the police were principally guided by the St. Bernard dogs, which followed the ski trail until it led to a house in Gignod where the three men lived.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MILAN, Jan. 25.—To stifle what the Secolo headlines as "The Flames of Civil War" in Central Italy, Premier Giolitti as Minister of the Interior, issued today a drastic decree which applies to the whole of Modena, Ferarra and Bologna—cities and provinces. All permissions for carrying firearms are revoked, and the prefects are ordered to take immediate steps for the effective disarmament of the population.

Yesterday the splendid Chamber of Labor in Bologna was burned. A Nationalist mob overpowered the military cordons, fired every room and burned the great palace to the ground. Hitherto the headquarters of Communistic Socialism in Italy, the building comprised a spacious assembly hall, printing works, a remarkably fine library and a residential club with a garage attached. Its total contents were devoured by the flames, including the administrative department's archives, which concerned the entire ramifications of the movement throughout the kingdom.

In the disturbed provinces theatres, cafés and other places of public resort have been closed, and no groups of more than five persons are permitted to assemble.

Owing to the general strike in Modena no newspapers are published there. Armored cars are patrolling the city.

Milan was also upset today by Nationalist fanatics, who at noon raided the publishing house of the Socialist journal Avanti, two minutes' walk from Police Headquarters. Driving out the staff with their revolvers, the ringleaders then set the book stores on fire.

A late evening edition of the Turin Stampa announces that the proclamation of a general strike is imminent in the Piedmontese metropolis, in support of the revolt of municipal employes. In consequence of a bakers' strike that city is suffering from a scarcity of bread.

A comic aspect was assumed by a new outbreak at Pontevivo, near Parma, where after a fifteen days' general strike a republic was proclaimed embracing the region between the Tara and the Sanguinara. This upstart Government under workingmen's rule prohibited all vehicular traffic except that of cyclists belonging to the Republican Guard, and set up passport offices on the boundaries. Electric cars from Parma were held up till the company should give a written undertaking not to violate the confines of the "Republic," and communication was interrupted by the cutting of wires and sawing down of telegraph poles.

LONDON, Jan. 26.—Sir James Craig, who has been prominent in the councils of the Ulster Unionists for many years, has accepted an offer from the Ulster deputation now visiting London to put his name before "the loyal people of the Six Counties" for election as their leader, provided his selection should meet with the unanimous approval of the Ulster Unionist Council.

A meeting of the Standing Committee of the Council will be held in Belfast on Feb. 4 to consider the question.

NORTHCLIFFE LAUGHS AT SCHEER'S TALK

Says Prophecy of England's Fighting America Is Mere Propaganda.

CALLS INTERVIEW A GROUCH

Sims, He Asserts, Is Much Better Authority on Anglo-American Relations.

Copyright, 1921, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

LONDON, Jan. 26.—Admiral Scheer's intimation that Great Britain would join forces with America's enemies if the United States should become involved in war is characterized by Viscount Northcliffe as German propaganda of the type that prophesied the revolt and secession of Canada and Australia during the World War.

"If Admiral Scheer's sea work was as clumsy as his propaganda, I don't wonder he had so bad a beating, despite the long period of preparation for battle which his fleet enjoyed," Lord Northcliffe said. "He is obviously that kind of German who never understands the minds of other nations. His type of mind prophesied that in the event of a war in which England was concerned Canada and Australia would rise in revolt and secede. He now tries to create the impression that if the United States gets involved in war with another power Great Britain will join forces with America's enemies.

"I once asked Secretary Daniels to name any possible combination of events by which Great Britain would become opposed to the United States, and as yet he has been unable to name such a combination.

"The whole fabric of Admiral Scheer's interview which you submit is a long, muddled grouch, from a man who cannot take a beating fairly and squarely in the way English-speaking peoples do.

"He declares that the British Admiralty is in a state of doubt and indecision over what type of ships to build. The British Admiralty always has been in that wise frame of mind before making any basic decision. Our Admiralty was in a state of doubt and indecision before it introduced the dreadnought, the steam turbine and the large seagoing submarine which could cruise with the fleet. When it made up its mind it did not copy in haste, as did the Germans, but it originated after deliberation. I have no hesitation in believing that if it is called on to meet the new conditions the Admiralty will originate again.

"I observe that Admiral Scheer talks a great deal about Jutland, or Skagerrak, as he calls it. I do not pretend to be an authority on naval matters, but on looking through his account of the battle I notice that he retreated and did not make any attempt to enter the prize ring the following day. Indeed, on his own confession, it was not until August that he peeked out, and then his battleship Westphalen was submarined and he made a bolt for home again.

"He fills much space with the usual talk of Bernhardi about British arrogance and aggressiveness. As for arrogance, when Germany taxed our goods out of her own markets and spent money to build dreadnoughts, we still continued to leave our markets open to her. As for our aggressiveness, it was not until little Belgium was treacherously invaded that we took our pledge to protect her and hit back in the good old British fashion.

"I do not share Admiral Scheer's view about the British financial position. In order to assist our allies, Russia, France and Italy, we borrowed considerable sums from the United States. That money was not for our own use, and the money we will repay, as we always have repaid.

"I regard Admiral Sims as a safer and more truthful guide as to what the British and American fleets did in the war and the glory with which they emerged than the views of this disappointed man with a grouch, all of whose ships are lying at the bottom of the sea."

LABOR LEADERS ASK TRADE WITH RUSSIA

Tell Senators That American Workers Believe This Country Needs That Market.

SPARGO OPPOSES PROPOSAL

Women's Emergency Committee Charges State Department Prevents Sending Relief to Needy Children.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—Representatives of various labor organizations, including the Central Federated bodies of most of the big cities of the country, appeared today before the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations to urge the adoption of the France resolution demanding that the United States open trade relations with Russia.

John Spargo, Socialist leader, opposed the resolution and asserted that at present "it is not possible for this country to enter into trade relations with Soviet Russia, under existing conditions, without incurring serious risks of unprecedented economic disaster and revolutionary upheaval."

Timothy Healy of New York, President of the Brotherhood of Firemen and Oilers, as Chairman of the Labor Alliance, spoke in favor of trade relations with Russia. He said that resolutions and letters endorsing the movement for resumption had been received representing the views of more than 2,000,000 workers, who, he added, "protest against further interference in Russian politics and demand the resumption of trade with Russia in the belief that this trade will greatly relieve our markets of a surplus of commodities and at the same time open new markets."

The most important of the labor organizations behind the movement, Mr. Healy said, were the Central Trades and Labor Council of New York City, representing 600,000 workers; 400,000 members of the Chicago Federation of Labor; 400,000 in the Pennsylvania State Federation of Labor; 60,000 in the Seattle Central Labor Council, and at least 850,000 in other organizations.

Spargo Criticises McAdoo's Statement.

The Spargo memorandum was presented to the committee by Senator Brandegee of Connecticut. In this document of about 10,000 words, Mr. Spargo criticised a recent statement by ex-Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, who, he said, advocated the re-establishment of trade relations between the United States and Russia.

In Russia, Mr. Spargo pointed out, foreign trade was a Government monopoly and for this reason it was virtually impossible for individuals or firms to carry on any extensive trade with that country.

In his argument in favor of opening up trade relations Mr. Healy referred to the report of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, which estimated the number of unemployed in this country at more than 3,450,000, and he added that in New York State, according to the December report of the New York State Industrial Commission, unemployment continued steadily on the increase.

"Do you think," Senator Brandegee asked, "that our Government should guarantee the payment to our citizens of debts incurred by Russians in trade relations with us?"

"I think some way should be found for us to trade with Russia," Mr. Healy answered.

William A. Maher of New York, speaking for Masters, Mates and Pilots, also urged resumption of Russian trade.

"What prevents American citizens from trading with Russia now?" asked Senator Lodge.

"I don't know," the witness replied. "My information is that she has plenty of gold and goods to pay for our goods, and that large amounts of American goods are wanted in Russia. It seems to me we should take steps to get that trade."

Other witnesses who urged resumption of trade relations with Russia included A. L. Beardsley of the Jewelry Workers' Union, John J. Jennings of the Hudson County (N. J.) Federated Labor Union, and Jacob Schlossburg of the Clothing Workers' Union.

Mrs. Harriot Stanton Blatch and Miss Lucy Boardman of the American Women's Emergency Committee charged that an actual blockade against Soviet Russia was maintained by the State Department. They said their committee had been prevented by the department from shipping food and clothing to Russia for suffering children, thus compelling the committee to send the needed goods to the American Friends Society in England for reshipment to Russia.

In a secret session of the Senate committee a Russian, said to be in business in Boston, whose identity was not revealed, told how other countries transacted business with Russia. It is understood that this witness said goods were sent to countries near Russia, where Soviet agents paid for them in gold and then carried them into Russia.

BERNSTEIN STIRS BERLIN.

Disclosure of Financing of Lenin Endorsed by Kerensky.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 26.—Eduard Bernstein's revelations concerning the 50,000,000 gold marks supplied to Lenin by the Imperial German Government has greatly stirred the German public and politicians, though all the details cabled to THE NEW YORK TIMES are not known here because Bernstein wishes to reserve them for an interpellation in the Reichstag moved by a Communist member.

Bernstein received the following telegram yesterday from Kerensky, the first President of the Russian Republic:

"Congratulate Bernstein on his courageous revelations of the relations between the Bolsheviki and the Imperial German General Staff and heartily support demand for impartial investigation and declare myself ready to appear as a witness before any court, which, however, should have an international character."

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 26.—A special dispatch from Helsingfors to The Berlingske Tiende reports strong disagreement between Lenin and Trotzky. The Bolshevist organ Pravda prints a report of a discussion at a meeting of leading Soviet officials and leaders of labor unions.

Lenin criticised sharply Trotzky's proposals and expressed astonishment at all his mistakes. He accused Trotzky and Bukarin of spreading dissatisfaction and dissension among the communists, saying the former was working like a bureaucrat, not a Socialist, and that Bukarin was just pouring oil on the fire.

EX-KAISERIN MOURNS SON.

"Joachim Is Calling Me," She Is Said to Have Told Ex-Kaiser.

DOORN, Holland, Jan. 26.—Former Empress Augusta Victoria of Germany continues critically ill from heart disease. Today she was considerably weaker. The Duke of Brunswick has again been called to her bedside.

The ex-Empress only recently was informed that her son Joachim had committed suicide. In a period of consciousness she is said to have turned to her husband and remarked:

"I have followed you as long as possible, even in exile. Now I am no longer able to do so. I must leave you alone. Joachim is calling me."

BRITISH FINANCIER WOULD CUT DEBTS

Head of Barclay's Bank Urges That Help Be Given to the Weaker Nations.

TO FREE MONEY MARKET

Expresses Confidence in British Position — Says Unions Should Lead in Wage Reductions.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 26.—Confidence in the British financial position was expressed today by Frederick G. Goodenough, President of Barclay's Bank, at the annual meeting of that institution, and in that he is taken as representing the views of the "big five" London Banks. The present check in trade, uncomfortable though it might be, he said, would be got over, provided it did not last too long and England's share in the world market was protected.

Speaking of the cotton industry, he said it was computed there were stocks either of raw cotton or piece goods to the value of £50,000,000 or £60,000,000 in excess of the usual supplies. This accumulation of stocks was largely due to the lack of purchasing power abroad. In part, however, it had resulted from credit being insufficient to meet the demands.

The re-entry into the field of production of Germany undoubtedly meant more competition, but it was necessary from the point of view of industry and employment that Germany should return to a sound financial basis. We have also to remember that while the internal value of the mark remains on a higher level than its external value Germany will be obtaining a hold on world markets.

Discussing the difficulties of foreign exchange, Mr. Goodenough said:

"The proposed credit scheme will not provide a remedy as quickly as the disease of unsound currency will drive those countries into bankruptcy. I feel that it will fall to this country to take the lead in these matters. At the root of the troubles of the distressed countries is the inability to meet expenditure out of revenue and the consequent necessity of making up the deficiency by the help of an unsound system of currency which enables paper without specific backing or ratio of value to be created for the purpose of filling up the gap. If this process is to be arrested before bankruptcy supervenes, international assistance is required at all events for the smaller countries.

"With regard to our own foreign debt and the debt owing to us by other foreign nations, it might be that, as a matter of business only, it would pay us to make concessions in respect of debts owing to us by allied Governments, provided we did not thereby prejudice our own ability to pay."

This, went on Mr. Goodenough, might result in freeing the money market from Government control so that easier rate conditions might prevail. He was confident, he said, in regard to costs of production, for he knew of a number of factories in which the output per worker had increased in the last few months.

"There is," he said, "evidence that a number of trade unions are beginning to realize high wages and low efficiency in the long run react on the worker. If prices are to be lower and conditions of living cheaper, wages will have to come down, but any step toward reduction in wages should come from labor. The employer would be wise to take labor into his confidence and explain the economic conditions existing throughout the world."

DERBY REFUSES TO JOIN LLOYD GEORGE CABINET

Turns Down War Office Offer—Cecils to Join Opposition in Parliament.

Copyright, 1921, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

LONDON, Jan. 26.—Lord Derby, former Ambassador to Paris, who is returning to British politics, refuses to join Mr. Lloyd George's Coalition Government, it was announced today. He has refused the War portfolio, which was offered to him, preferring to remain independent.

This is another symptom showing the growing revolt against the Government which is beginning to assume serious proportions. It was also announced that Lord Robert Cecil and his brother, Lord Hugh, have decided when Parliament reassembles to cross the floor of the House and sit in the front opposition bench. The Cecils are nephews of Mr. Balfour. Both are men of great influence and are likely to take with them many of the younger Tory members.

It is too early to estimate the total strength of the opposition when Parliament meets and Mr. Lloyd George has a chance to exercise his great gift of Parliamentary persuasion, but undoubtedly it is the most serious since the formation of the Coalition Government. The chief causes of dissatisfaction are the policy of coercion in Ireland and failure to deal with unemployment in England and reopen trade with Europe.

TEXTS ON RUSSIA DIFFER.

British and Krassin Do Not Agree on Proposed Trade Agreement.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 26.—Some remarkable divergences in the text of the draft of the Anglo-Russian trade agreement as issued by the British Board of Trade and the Russian trade delegation here are noted today by The London Times. The Russian version gives the draft wider significance by speaking of a forthcoming formal general peace treaty, while the British refers only to a general treaty between the two Governments.

The Russian preamble contains no explicit statement with regard to the cessation of military and diplomatic anti-British propaganda in the East, although it refers to notes that passed between the two Governments on the subject. The British draft contemplated limitation of the number of agents each Government may send to the other to superintend the working of the agreement, while the Russian version does not hint at that and stipulates that these agents should have diplomatic privileges.

Krassin's version also confers on the Russians the right to export the gold they have imported into the United Kingdom, subject to the right of the British Government to buy in the gold at the market rate.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—The War Department today announced that President Wilson had awarded a Distinguished Service Medal to Dr. Pearce Bailey of the Medical Corps, whose present address is 46 West Fifty-third Street, New York City, for his services as Chief of the Division of Neuropsychiatry, Surgeon General's Office.

FILIBUSTER TALK STIRS SENATORS

Penrose Unable to Get Agreement From Democrats to Fix Tariff Vote Date.

'PROPER' DEBATE DEMANDED

Underwood Declares Such an Important Measure Must Be Duly Discussed.

AND HARRISON TALKS ON

Republican Leader Warns That the Measure Will Be Pressed for Passage.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—Republican and Democratic Senate leaders met in head on collision today when the former started a drive to put through the Emergency Tariff bill.

Republican suggestions of a Democratic filibuster brought on the clash, Senator Underwood, the Minority Leader, and other prominent Democrats denying vigorously that filibustering was in progress or contemplated. The Democratic leaders expressed willingness to vote after "proper and legitimate debate" and charged that the Republicans did not expect the bill to pass and sought to place the blame on Democratic opponents.

Mr. Underwood added that the measure, even if passed, would be vetoed by President Wilson because, he said, it was "repugnant" to Democratic tariff principles. He disclaimed having received any direct information from the President, however.

Senator Penrose, who is in charge of the bill, presented a proposal for a vote on Tuesday but it went down under objections from Mr. Underwood and Senator Simmons, ranking Democrat of the Finance Committee. Senator Penrose said that his suggestion was made to "test the good faith of certain gentlemen" and the Democratic leaders retorted that Senator Penrose's move was an effort to charge the Democrats with impeding the bill.

The move to hold the tariff measure before the Senate, forcing opponents and advocates to talk or vote, followed an announcement, during today's clashes, from Senator Penrose of his purpose to push the bill.

"We intend," he said, "to press this measure, with due consideration for the various appropriation bills, to the earliest possible conclusion. A majority of the Senators on this side favor its passage and there are also a very considerable number of Democratic Senators who are going to vote for it, and if we can get a vote the bill will pass by probably two-thirds. A filibuster is the only thing that will prevent the Senate voting on the bill."

It is said that twelve to fifteen Democratic Senators favor the bill and these, with Republican supporters of the measure, constitute, it is said, two-thirds of the Senate.

When unable to obtain an agreement for voting Tuesday, Senator Penrose asked for co-operation from the Democrats toward securing final action by Feb. 15. Senator Underwood and other Democrats protested against the effort to fix a vote on Tuesday considering that debate began only yesterday. Senator Penrose's proposal, Mr. Underwood declared, was "a clear indication that the majority has raised the white flag." Senator Underwood added that he would agree to a vote after a week or ten days' discussion.

Senator Harrison of Mississippi characterized the filibustering suggestion as "utterly without foundation," but Senator McCumber, Republican, North Dakota, said that he had "a mere suspicion" that a filibuster was planned and Senator Kenyon of Iowa added that "apparently" a filibuster would prevent passage of the bill.

During the brief discussion on the merits of the legislation, Senator Harrison, who had fortified himself with a pile of books, charged that there was a "joker" in the wool schedules by which most imported wool would be charged a tariff of 30 per cent. instead of the 15 per cent. rate in the bill. This he declared, would be effected by a provision placing the higher rate on wools which are sorted.

The proposed sugar duties also were discussed by Mr. Harrison, who declared that, despite Republican campaign pledges to reduce the cost of living, the proposed sugar tariff of about 2 cents a pound would add that much to the cost to consumers.

Senators Smoot, Republican, of Utah, and Ransdell, Democrat, of Louisiana, conceded that sugar prices would be increased in this country to the extent of the tariff on Cuban sugar and also on the domestic crop.

COTTON MEN WANT TARIFF.

Glove and Collar Makers Declare Germans Can Undersell Them.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—Tariff builders in the House Ways and Means Committee, turning their attention today to cotton and cotton products, heard again the assertion that a revival of German manufacturing threatened to drive certain American industries out of existence.

Glove and collar manufacturers were alarmed at what they described as the astounding increase of German production, and cited figures to show that imports from Germany could be had at approximately half of the cost of production here.

$407,000,000 BACK TAXES IN.

Collected in 1920—The Yield Now Is $35,000,000 a Month.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—More than $407,000,000 in back taxes was collected by the Government during 1920, internal revenue officials said tonight. They predicted that an even larger sum probably would be recovered in the present year.

Commissioner of Internal Revenue Williams said that back taxes were being collected at the rate of $35,000,000 a month as a result of filed and office audits of 1917 and 1918 income and profits tax returns. Audit of the 1917 returns will probably be completed by March 1, the Commissioner said, and work on the 1918 returns is already under way.

Back taxes collected by the Government, officials explained, include penalties for delinquencies and evasions as well as additional amounts in taxes discovered to be due. What the 1918 and 1919 returns may reveal officials were unable to estimate, but it was thought that the $35,000,000 a month figure would be exceeded this year.

ENGLISH BIRTH RATE RISES

While Death Rate Falls to Lowest Ever Recorded.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 26.—Several records are beaten by the figures given in the Registrar General's provisional returns for 1920. Births per thousand of population in England and Wales were 25.44 and in London 26.3. Deaths were 12.4 per thousand in England and Wales and the same in London. Infantile mortality per thousand was 80 in England and Wales and 75 in London.

The birth rate for 1920 is the highest of the decade and the number of births the highest ever recorded. The death rate is the lowest ever recorded and the number of deaths the lowest recorded since 1862, when the population was only 20,000,000. The infant mortality rate (under 1 year) is the lowest ever recorded.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Irregular Movement of Stocks —Rapid Advance in Sterling —Time Money Firmer.

The action of yesterday's foreign exchange market left little doubt of a powerful speculative movement, at work on the side of advancing rates and probably sustained to a large extent by the international position. Tuesday's reactionary market had the appearance of a logical culmination of the early January rise; which, being based apparently on relaxing money stringency and on the prospect of American subscription to numerous European loans, might not unnaturally have been checked by the fractional hardening of time money rates this week on Wall Street and by the pause in foreign loan announcements. But the reaction did not continue yesterday; on the contrary, a vigorous forward movement brought sterling 5¼ cents above the previous day's closing, to the highest rate since July 19.

The final and highest rate of $3.84⅝ was 32 cents in the pound above that of Dec. 31 and 51⅝ above the low rate of November. Rates on other markets did not rise yesterday as violently as that on London; but Paris exchange recovered ¼ cent per franc, and although neither that rate nor the rate on Belgium got to the recent high level, exchange on Spain and Holland sold at the highest of the year, and exchange on Montreal, which is always affected by our sterling rate, rose nearly one cent to 89½, the best figure since Nov. 9.

It was believed in Wall Street yesterday that extensive speculative buying of foreign exchange, chiefly from European sources, was being based on hope or expectation of a favorable outcome at the Paris conference of the Premiers. That a final and rational agreement on the matter of Germany's reparation payments would have profound effect on international finance and therefore on international exchange rates, there can be no doubt whatever. It has been difficult, however, to find in the cabled accounts of the Paris deliberations any evidence of such agreement. England's position, like that of our own bankers, appears to be that the indemnity should be settled promptly and on lines insuring the possibility of meeting it, but the deadlock created by the French people's attitude toward any relaxing of the severity of the original terms has so far seemed to be unbroken.

On or before May 1, it is required by the Versailles Treaty that the Reparations Commission's findings "as to the amount of damage" must be concluded and notified to Germany "as representing the extent of that Government's obligations." But that date is still more than three months away, and present speculation in foreign exchange on the basis of a satisfactory decision must assume that the allied Governments will themselves settle the matter in advance of the time limit. There is always the possibility that a great financial market will be reflecting private information, not available to the press correspondents. Certainly the need for disposing of this indemnity question at the earliest date is urgent, in the financial interest of every Continental nation. We have yet to see how far the rise in exchange embodies knowledge of what is actually going on, or only a bold guess.

On the Stock Exchange prices drifted in the aimless way that has become usual, and the total business done was not much more than one-third of the transactions on some earlier days of the present month. On the whole, the day ended with small gains, but there were some net losses. In the money market, rates for time loans on Stock Exchange collateral were again advanced fractionally.

Midweek reviews of the steel trade throw no particular light on the progressive monthly decrease in the Steel Corporation's earnings as shown in Tuesday's statement. According to The Iron Age's estimate, the company's Pittsburgh plant has slightly decreased its output of some steel products during the past week; but production of basic steel is running at 95 per cent. of capacity, while the Chicago plant is operating at 80 to 85 per cent. Independent mills are working intermittently on a 50 per cent. basis at Pittsburgh, but at only 30 to 40 per cent. in the Chicago district. It is interesting to learn from the cabled information that one important steel product has been quoted in the export market this past week at £31 per ton by Belgian exporters, while British makers were quoting £50.

MONEY.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 26, 1921.

There was no change in the rate for call funds on the Stock Exchange, the rate ruling all day at 7 per cent. A good demand was found in renewals at this figure. In time money, there was a further hardening in rates quoted; money for all dates on mixed collateral was quoted 6½@7 per cent., an advance of ¼@½ of 1 per cent. Fixed period money on all industrials was quoted with a wider range, and at an advance of a full ½ of 1 per cent. over the previous quotation, to 7@7½ per cent. Renewals are going at the lower rates, the firmness in the market precluding any new money being placed except at the higher figures. Prime name commercial paper discounted unchanged at 7¾ per cent., with others going at 8 per cent. Prime bankers' acceptances were quoted unchanged.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

Violent Further Advance in Sterling—Other Markets Follow —Canadian Very Strong.

The advance in European exchange, interrupted by Tuesday's reaction, was resumed yesterday under the lead of sterling, for which the market opened at an overnight rise of nearly 2 cents, due ot early transactions in London, and moved up 3¼ cents further during the day. The advance was particularly rapid in the later hours of the afternoon. Paris and Belgin exchange advanced ¼ cent per franc each; the rate on Rome recovered a little more than half as much, and on Amsterdam ⅛ cent per florin.

German Exchange advanced moderately, and there was decided strength in the rates on Central European countries such as Austria, Hungary and Poland. On the other hand, Danish and Norweigan exchange reacted ⅛ to ¼ cent per krone, although the Swedish rate was slightly higher. There was a small fractional reaction in rates on Japan and Argentina. Canadian exchange was very strong, reaching 89¼ cents per Canadian dollar, which compared with 88.6 on Tuesday, 87.6 a week ago, and 83.9 at the low level of December. The Montreal rate is now barely one cent below that of a year ago.

California Standard Oil Dividends.

The Standard Oil Company of California has declared an extra dividend of $1 a share on its stock in addition to the regular quarterly disbursement of $2.50. Both are payable on March 15 to stock of record Feb. 15.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Opinion Conflicting.

The character of the market yesterday, and for that matter for the last several days, is affording much food for gossip, even though in itself it may present a decidedly dull front as a trading medium. The quieting down of business, with narrow price swings in the majority of issues, is leading some to the conclusion that trading is fast reaching the point where it will be of little significance. Even the professionals are a bit discouraged, though by no means certain that dullness will be of long duration. The gloom is most pronounced in the commission houses and it is reflected in the market letters which are being sent out. A volume of business such as yesterday for instance, makes for a complete dulling of speculative enthusiasm. Here and there issues broke away from the lethargy, but this only served to emphasize rather than relieve the monotony of the situation. In the minds of some the market is what might be called "a waiting affair," definite trend depending on some important break in the news. Others are predicting that quite an uninteresting market will rule for a considerable time, possibly until late in the Spring. In short Wall Street is in something of a quandry.

Steel Report of Little Influence.

The record of earnings by the United States Steel Corporation for the final quarter, and the fact that $16.70 a share was earned on the common stock last year, played a very small part in stock market considerations. There was no play of prices to indicate even a spark of interest. The junior Steel issue moved over a range of only ⅝ of a point and the turnover was small. Possibly one reason for the lack of interest lay in the fact that the Steel Corporation is hardly a barometer for the industry since its price level for the year was so different from that of the independents. It is considered probable, however, that several of the independents will show good earnings for 1920, since the falling off of business in the latter part of the year was in part offset by the high prices which ruled during the first six months. Some of the independents received prices for steel that were at times $20 a ton higher than the Steel Corporation level.

Russian Bonds Suspended.

Trading in Russian Government State 4 per cent. bonds, which were listed on the New York Stock Exchange in 1902, was suspended yesterday because of the fact that the coupon sheets had run out. The listing of this internal loan amounted to 2,310,000 rubles. No trades in the issue had ever been put through on the Stock Exchange.

Rail Wage Reductions.

As it grows increasingly plain that concerted steps are being taken in railroad circles for a reduction of railroad wages to meet the reduction in the cost of living, some efforts in a small way are being made to sound public opinion regarding such procedure. Already it has been generally discovered that the public will not accept any further increase in railroad rates and in authoritative quarters it is asserted that the matter will probably be brought to the attention of the United States Railroad Labor Board within the next few weeks. The board under the law must pass upon any change in the schedule of wages paid to railroad workers throughout the country, and its decisions will probably be based to a great extent on public sentiment as well as upon the facts presented.

Hope for Winslow Bill.

It is the belief in some railroad quarters that the Winslow bill, which amends that section of the Transportation act regarding the payment of extended guarantee moneys to the railroads to allow for partial payment of such funds in advance of a final settlement between the Government and the carriers, will pass. But there is some question as to the action that the President will take in the matter. It is the earnest hope of all railroad heads that he will approve the bill and sign it, as many of the carriers are sadly in need of the funds which would be paid them under its provisions.

Maintenance Claims to Be Filed.

Little has been said publicly in recent months about the deferred maintenance of railroads during the period of Federal control, but it is understood that the matter will be pressed by the roads as soon as other items such as national agreements and wage reductions have been disposed of. When the roads were returned to private operation March 1, 1920, the policy was adopted by many railroad leaders to arbitrate the question of deferred maintenance without making it a flat issue. So little progress has been made along these lines, however, that the disposition is growing stronger to file claims against the Railroad Administration. The aggregate of claims which the roads will probably hand in eventually will be in the neighborhood of $1,000,000,000.

Balkan States Want Loans.

Some of the Balkan States are shopping around for loans and bankers here think one or two of them may be able to accomplish something before long. Rumania, for instance, is supposed to have a fairly good and comprehensive proposal to offer, which is more than can be said for a lot of other European countries, and it would surprise nobody if that nation was able to arrange some financing in the not very distant future. As for the others, however, they mostly come under the head of special interests which will have to be taken care of in special ways, but even here it is not improbable that something will be done before very long.

Germany's Requirements.

More than a few bankers are beginning to cast anxious eyes at Germany and the idea is growing that before long there will be plenty of business moving with that country. "Germany is likely to come back fast," say the bankers, and if ever a peace treaty is to be ratified and a real technical state of peace restored business connections are apt to be built up rapidly. Already, as a matter of fact, plans are being considered for resuming trade relations with Germany, and just now the chief, if not the only, obstacle in the way of this is the lack of a treaty of peace. Germany's requirements are admittedly large, but it is assumed that her credit will be rather good and that no unusual difficulties will be raised against doing business with her once the way is cleared.

Time Money Higher.

There was a surprising advance in time money quotations yesterday when the rates for all industrial collateral loans were raised from 6½ @ 7 per cent. to 7 @ 7½ per cent. Mixed collateral loans were up about ¼ of 1 per cent., to the basis of 6½ @ 7 per cent., but call money was steady at 7 per cent. all day, with no outside money reported. The money brokers still insist there is no shortage of funds available for time loans, and say that the main difficulty is in finding borrowers who are willing to take the ninety-day funds offered. Those who want time money mainly want the thirty day kind, and this remains fairly scarce.

STERLING EXCHANGE GOES UP 5 CENTS

At $3.84¾ Reaches Highest Price Quoted Since July 19, 1920.

PREMIERS' MEETING DID IT

Feeling That Britain and France Will Be Straightened Out Sends Rate Up.

Sterling exchange made a sensational advance of more than 5 cents in the pound yesterday, going to $3.84¾, the highest price to be quoted since July 19 of last year and a gain of 53 cents from the low point of last Fall, made on Nov. 8. Yesterday's figure, too, showed a gain of 31½ cents in the pound since the beginning of the year.

Paris bills also sold up to the best figure in some time, touching 7.20 cents per franc. At this rate the quotation for French francs was the highest since Aug. 18, last, and showed a gain of 1½ cents per franc from the low of Nov. ... of the year.

Canadian exchange sold at 89.5 per cent., which was the best since Nov. 9, last, when it was 89.6. The low in that period was 84.0, on Dec. 21. Other exchanges, especially the rates on Copenhagen, which got up to 20 cents, flat, were generally strong, and business was somewhat more active than has been usual in recent weeks.

Explanation for the strength in sterling, which was the feature of the day, was the sentimental influence of the Paris conference between the British and French Premiers, notwithstanding that the rival statesmen appeared to be in disagreement. In financial circles, it is felt that the differences between Britain and France shortly will be straightened out and that an understanding will be arrived at. Bankers here believe that the differences are much more apparent than real and that the two nations are much closer to agreement than it seems on the surface.

This, and the paucity of bills of exchange, accounted largely for yesterday's strength. There has been a marked scarcity of bills for some time past, in fact, ever since the market turned and started its present advance. One reason for this is that a lot of the contracts which had been circulating were contracts and nothing more, and when the time came for the taking in of short lines by speculators, it was found that there was little real exchange to be had.

The speculation, according to dealers here, has been quite as heavy in Europe as it has been here, and recently the offerings of dollar bills in London and Paris have been particularly heavy. Whether these offerings were short sales of dollars, or were simply the covering of sterling and francs, is not known, but the exchange bankers say that interest in foreign exchange movements abroad is considerable and that speculation is heavy.

The following information is taken from official sources:

These bonds, in the opinion of Counsel, are a general obligation of the State of South Dakota, secured by its full faith and credit. The State of South Dakota, with an estimated population of 635,000, has an assessed valuation of $2,257,853,656, and a total bonded debt of $40,950,000, including present issues, or only about 1¾% of the assessed valuation.

Including the proceeds from this issue of rural credit bonds, the State will hold in trust for the payment of rural credit bonds outstanding, $35,485,000 farm mortgages and cash. Deducting this amount from the total bonded debt, the balance would be but $5,465,000, or less than ¼ of 1% of the assessed valuation.

The State also has a very valuable asset in its school funds, consisting of $27,434,983, invested in farm mortgages and 2,700,843 acres of unsold school lands, officially valued at over $100,000,000.

Four Types of Railroad Bonds—No. 1
If you are interested in this or other types of bonds we should be pleased to make specific suggestions.

Long Term High Grade Bonds
The individual of moderate means who is largely dependent upon the income derived from investments will find certain seasoned issues of leading railroads well suited to his requirements. The bonds which we recommend are of the most stable type and are especially interesting to people who are not in close contact with business conditions and do not follow the trend of the market.

These bonds are long term issues maturing in twenty-five to sixty or more years, and are protected by direct mortgages on the property of leading railroads of established success. They combine security of principal with a regular, dependable income. Further, they are actively traded in on the N. Y. Stock Exchange and may be readily sold at any time the holder desires.

LOOK AT IT THE OTHER WAY

To an Englishman, present exchange quotations mean dollars above par rather than sterling below par.
If dollars have been at an artificial peak their decline toward par in foreign markets is just as certain as was the fall of commodity prices from their artificial peak last year. Furthermore such a decline is essential to the welfare of our own foreign and domestic trade.
Our letter A-47 suggests ways in which the investor may profit by taking advantage of this situation.

RAIL CHIEFS CONFER ON WAGE TOMORROW

Labor Committee in Chicago Expected to Recommend General Reduction.

HEAVY EXPENSES ARE CITED

Drop in Cost of Living Advanced as Basis for Probable Plea to Railroad Labor Board.

A cut in the railroad labor wage scale will be the chief subject discussed at a special meeting of the Labor Committee of the Association of Railway Executives in Chicago tomorrow. In the financial district yesterday it was not expected that any announcement of the committee's decision would be made until the committee had reported and the member roads of the association had acted upon its recommendation. In authoritative quarters, however, it was believed that immediate application to the United States Railroad Labor Board for a wage reduction would be recommended.

Some members of the committee left New York yesterday and others are expected to depart today. Among those on the committee are W. W. Atterbury of the Pennsylvania, M. L. Bell of the Rock Island, and E. E. Loomis of the Lehigh Valley.

That the committee's report will pave the way for concerted action by the roads is the general belief. This belief is based on the fact that present rate schedules are yielding far less than the 6 per cent. return prescribed in the Transportation act on the aggregate value of railroad property, and some managers say the only remaining expense item which can bear a cut that would allow for that yield is the payroll.

The increase in wages, which has been considerably more than 120 per cent. since the President signed the Adamson Eight-Hour law, accounted for almost two-thirds of the increase in operating expenses from $3,100,000,000 to nearly $6,000,000,000 a year. The National Industrial Conference Board estimates that the cost of living has decreased from its peak of 104 per cent. to 90 per cent. more than in 1914. As a result railroad men feel that they have good grounds on which to ask wage reductions.

In 1914 the railroads employed 1,700,000 workers and paid them $1,337,000,000. Early this year the roads had less than 2,000,000 employes and paid them $3,600,000,000 a year.

Leaders in other industries that already have reduced wages coincide in the views of the railroad men.

WESTERN BONDING CO. FAILS

The American of Chicago, With $100,000,000 Policies Written.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—The American Bonding and Casualty Company, capitalized at $500,000 and with $100,000,000 worth of policies on its books, has been declared insolvent in Judge Foell's Superior Court, and Attorney Albert Sabath appointed receiver. The admitted assets of the company are $3,000,000.

"It is impossible accurately to estimate the liabilities," Leonard Grossman, attorney for the receiver, told the Court, "as we do not know exactly what the outstanding judgments are."

The company was formed by a merger of the Chicago Bonding and Insurance Company with au Iowa corporation.

INTERBORO DEFICIT GROWS.

Company Reports Income Shortage of $301,403 for December.

The comparative statement of income of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company for December, issued yesterday, shows a deficit in place of net corporate income, exclusive of accruals under the city contract, amounting to $301,403, which compares with a deficit of $22,171 in December, 1919. For the six months ended with Dec. 31, the deficit shown by the statement was $2,682,760, compared with $1,920,367 in the corresponding 1919 period.

Gross operating revenues of the company have increased considerably in the last six months, but the increase has been more than offset by advances in operating expenses.

Boycotting Russia's Gold.

Referring to the efforts of the Russian Government to use the gold from the old Imperial Russian Bank Reserve, in payment for goods purchased from other countries, it is remarked in a London discussion of the situation that "the strong attitude of France, in threatening to place an embargo upon what she regards as part security for heavy sums advanced to the Imperial Russian Government, rendered the process difficult of accomplishment. Still, a considerable quantity was lodged in Sweden. Accustomed as the London market has always been to deal in gold by the ounce, the offer of gold in terms of a dozen tons at a time has been a quaint innovation."

TALK OF POOL TO AID NEW ENGLAND ROADS

Trunk Line and Other Railway Executives Will Consider Subject Next Week.

B. & M. FIGURES DISPUTED

Witnesses Before Interstate Commerce Commission Disagree as to Losses on Freight.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—Pooling of funds by the trunk lines and turning of such moneys over to the New England railroads to enable them to meet fixed operating charges, is being considered as a solution of the controversy regarding the divisions of freight rates between carriers east and west of the Hudson River.

The proposal is to be discussed at the meeting of trunk line executives with New England men, which was set for Friday in New York but was postponed today until the first of next week. The postponement was decided on to allow W. H. Williams, Chairman of the Wabash Railroad, to testify at the hearings before the Interstate Commerce Commission this week.

Trunk line attorneys said today that they expected to complete their testimony before the commission tomorrow, and Central Freight Association witnesses will take up the rest of the week in giving their side of the case.

D. S. Brigham, statistician of the Boston & Maine, was recalled today to submit new exhibits and to give trunk line attorneys an opportunity to question him in regard to figures he had submitted. He told the commission that the Boston & Maine was losing $177,567 yearly on interterritorial freight shipped to the Southwest and that the company's deficit on differential freight business amounted to $360,000 annually.

Attorneys for the trunk lines tried to show that the Boston & Maine figures showed a loss of revenue on every ton of freight shipped to the Southwest and that this could not possibly be true. Mr. Brigham said he could not claim the road lost on every ton of freight shipped, but he maintained that the figures he had submitted were a fair estimate.

Mr. Brigham quoted statistics to show that there could be no reduction in the estimates furnished by the Boston & Maine if that road was to continue in business.

Charles F. Choate of Boston, chief counsel for the New England roads, and J. R. Elder, counsel of the Jersey Central, became involved in an argument when Mr. Elder charged that it could not possibly be true that New England roads were continually operating at a loss, and asked: "Your lines are still operating, are they not?" to which Mr. Choate replied: "I wish you could tell me how we could stop. We have never been able to find a way to stop operating."

C. L. Ewing, freight expert of the Jersey Central, told the commission that the division rates with New England lines were now higher than they ought to be.

Cross-examination of W. S. Kallman of the New York Central brought the assertion that he was "amused" at the statement of previous witnesses that New England railroads had to be considered as a military factor in time of war. He said the New York Central could not and did not take the question of public interests into consideration in making their fight against higher freight divisions for New England roads, as this was a matter for the commission to settle and not for the executives.

GOODYEAR CREDIT MAY BE $25,000,000

Bankers to Complete Plans in Few Days for Solution of Rubber Company's Troubles.

CREDITORS WELL ORGANIZED

Concerns Which Have Made Deliveries Likely to Get Securities as Basis of Settlement.

Progress is being made in the solution of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company's difficulties, it was reported yesterday, and although it was denied that any proposition had been presented to merchandise creditors, the new banking interests which have come into the situation are preparing a plan which is likely to be acted upon before Feb. 1.

The merchandise creditors are well organized and it was said that they are in a position to act harmoniously. This group held its last meeting on Thursday and probably will not meet again until the bankers' plan is ready for consideration. That is expected to be late this week or early next week.

The statement that no plan had been formally presented to the merchandise creditors was something of a surprise to many who have been watching this situation develop, but was attested to by one of the members of the creditors' committee.

Plans which the bankers are working on are said to contemplate the raising of not more than $25,000,000 new money, and possibly not more than $20,000,000, in place of the $30,000,000 previously mentioned. The distribution of this fund has not been settled upon, but it was said yesterday that it was not likely any of it would go to merchandise creditors.

The latter are being grouped into two classes: Those who have claims against the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company for goods delivered, and those whose claims rest on contracts. It was understood that the former would be asked to accept new securities for their claims, and that the latter would be able to liquidate the goods they have on hand for delivery and receive new securities for whatever readjustment is necessary. These securities, it was hoped, would be available for collateral purposes, so that creditors may be able to borrow on them.

Until the plan is worked out by the bankers and the management of the company, the merchandise creditors can do nothing, but it was hoped that it would take definite state within the next few days.

PENNSYLVANIA OPEN SHOP.

Railroad Denies That Non-Union Workers' Pay Is to Be Reduced.

As an offset to rumors which have been circulated among Pennsylvania Railroad employes to the effect that the company intends to reduce the pay of all workers who are not members of a union, W. W. Atterbury, Vice President of Operation, has had the following notice posted on employes' bulletin boards:

"Communications are being received by some of the employes in certain of the departments of this railroad to the effect that the management proposes to reduce the rates of all employes who are not members of a labor organization, and that those who desire to retain their present rate of pay must join labor organizations.

"If any one tells you that your present rate of pay depends on membership in a labor organization, or that the company proposes to pay a different rate to members and non-members, deny it.

"Your present position with its rate of pay, or the exercising of seniority rights, in no manner depends on membership or non-membership in any association or organization.

"The Pennsylvania system will in no way coerce any of its employes to join, or not to join, against their will, any organization whatever."

COTTON ADVANCES BY CLOSING RALLY

Market Is Irregular and Breaks After Early Gains—Spots Drop to 15.65.

The cotton market turned very irregular yesterday and, after a good advance of 40 to 50 points in the forenoon, turned heavy in the early afternoon and reacted 55 to more than 60 points from the early highs. However, in the final hour or so it rallied again and finished the day at net advances of 8 to 16 points for all months from May on and at a decline of one point for March. Spots were down 55 points to 15.65, the lowest in nearly a month.

The early rise was mainly due to the unexpectedly good Liverpool cables, which came in much better than due. This inspired some buying around the ring and during the morning the market moved up rather impressively. The tone was strong and there appeared to be a good demand, with none too much offered.

However, the 40 to 50 point bulge seemed to attract a lot of Southern selling and early in the afternoon there was what looked like real liquidation in March and May. Around the ring it was surmised that the selling in these two months might, perhaps, represent resales of some of the actual cotton taken up on the January notices.

Disposition of the more than 80,000 bales delivered on January notices continues to be a menace to the market. It is not at all likely that all of this cotton will be consumed in domestic mills or will be moved out on export orders. It would surprise nobody if a good part of it were carried over and redelivered on March, or maybe on May, notices, when the time for them arrives. With this being always a possibility, the ring traders naturally are nervous and probably will continue so until more is known of what actually is to be done with the big supply.

Exports just now are running rather low, so far this week only 46,658 bales have gone forward.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

	Open	High	Low	Close	Previous Day
March	14.72	14.73	14.13	14.32@14.33	14.53
May	14.58	14.91	14.30	14.55@14.57	14.49
July	14.73	15.14	14.56	14.77@14.80	14.71
October	14.90	15.37	14.82	15.00	14.87
Dec.	....	15.24	15.24	15.03	14.87

The local market for spot cotton was quiet, down 55 points to 15.65c for middling upland; sales, 2,500 bales.

Southern spot markets were Galveston, 14c, unchanged; New Orleans, 14.25c, unchanged; Savannah, 15c, unchanged; Augusta, 14c, unchanged; Memphis, 14.50c, unchanged; Houston, 13.10c, unchanged; Little Rock, 14.50c, unchanged.

Yesterday's cotton statistics were:

CONDITIONS IN CUBA BETTER, SAYS BANKER

Partial Resumption of Sales From United States to Follow Soon, Says Edwards.

CITES 3 CAUSES OF CRISIS

Blames Overproduction in Business and Delay in Deliveries Equally With Sugar Speculation.

Cuban finance and commerce, which were seriously impaired by the collapse of the sugar speculation, show marked improvement, according to James H. Edwards, representative of the Irving National Bank in Cuba, who has just arrived in New York. He considers there is every promise that better conditions will continue during the next few months.

Within a short time, Mr. Edwards said, a partial resumption of sales from the United States to Cuba may be looked for. He expressed the opinion that while the ordeal through which Cuban merchants have passed has been trying, the percentage of actual loss to exporters in this and other countries as a result of the island's money crisis will be smaller than expected. Contrary to a belief held here, he said, the necessity which forced the declaration of a moratorium was not brought on solely by speculation in sugar, but by several circumstances. He praised highly the conduct of Cuban business houses in facing their difficulties.

"While speculation in sugar may have have been a contributory cause to the crisis," said Mr. Edwards, "in my opinion there were other influences of equal or, perhaps, greater importance. There was an overextension in business due to the wave of prosperity which Cuban merchants, like merchants in other countries, had been riding for more than two years. Another cause may be laid to foreign exporters who, to take advantage of rising markets in their own countries, delayed deliveries of goods which Cuban merchants had ordered. When the goods did not come the Cuban buyer, in many instances, placed a duplicate order with another house. If this concern also failed to ship as promised he often went to still another foreign firm.

"Eventually the market broke. Prices tumbled here in the United States and elsewhere. Then the foreign exporters began sending the long-delayed shipments to Cuba. As a result, some of the Cuban merchants received, and at top prices, three or four times the amount of goods they normally would have put in stock.

"Now conditions are much improved. To a certain extent confidence has been restored and the new sugar crop is beginning to move. Unusual rains late in November held up the grinding season twenty or thirty days, but the grinding is now under way and will continue until June or July."

OFFER OHIO POWER CO. ISSUE

Dillon, Read & Co. and Lee, Higginson & Co. Selling $10,000,000 Bonds

Dillon, Read & Co., and Lee, Higginson & Co., are offering today at 95¾ and interest an issue of $10,000,000 Ohio Power Company thirty-year 7 per cent. first and refunding mortgage bonds. The offering price makes the yield value to the investor approximately 7.40 per cent.

This financing is to reimburse the Ohio Power Company, which is a subsidiary of the American Gas & Electric Company, for expenditures on its plant at Windsor, Ohio, opposite Wheeling, W. Va., and for other corporate purposes.

More Rail Directorate Changes.

The Board of Directors of the Northern Pacific will meet today, and it is understood that several changes in the membership of the board will occur. These changes have been necessitated as the result of the fact that the Clayton act provisions covering interlocking directorates went into effect Jan. 1 of this year. That many other companies will make similar changes soon is the expectation.

WHEAT SALES HEAVY, BUT MARKET WEAK

New York Exporter Tells Chicago Prices May Fall 25 Cents Below Present Level.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—Economic and financial conditions the world over, rather than the statistical position of wheat, are regarded as the dominating influence, and, until there is a radical change, no very high prices are expected by the grain trade in general. All statistics go to show that, at the very outside, the leading exporting countries will not be able to carry over more than 50,000,000 to 70,000,000 bushels into the 1921-22 season, even after allowing for a great reduction in European consumption occasioned by inability to pay for the wheat. Export sales of wheat today were limited to 200,000 bushels to Italy and 100,000 bushels to Holland, with 100,000 bushels Manitobas sold at Portland, Me. Premiums at the Gulf were weaker.

Heavy selling of wheat was in evidence from the start. At no time were prices as high as at the previous day's close; at the inside, May was off 5½ cents from the finish of Tuesday, with the close at $1.53⅜, a net loss of 3½ cents. Around $1.52, there was a great deal of selling credited to a leading New York trader, but the official announcement of reports that Argentine would permit the exportation of large quantities of wheat without a super tax, though simply suppositious, led to short covering and a rally of 2 cents from the bottom. March lost 3½ cents.

Coarse grains dropped sharply to a new low on the crop and closed with net losses of ⅞ and 1 cent on corn, and 1¼ cents on oats. At one time May oats sold at a fractional discount under the July, a most unusual thing, as the May represents the old crop and the July the new, whereas old oats are usually figured as being worth 3 to 5 cents premium over the new. The trade is extremely bearish on coarse grains, as the buyer of May is taking the future at 5 to 9 cents over the cash article, practically a full carrying charge difference, and hedging sales continue in fair volume.

A New York exporter who was here today after a trip in the Northwest and the Southwest says that there may be a sharp upturn in wheat after prices have declined 25 cents per bushel from the present level. A local mill reported that sales of flour the past two days were the largest in over four months, but the general milling demand elsewhere seemed to be rather limited.

The general disposition of the trade is to take a very bearish view of the world's situation, regardless of the prospective light carry-over. Until more is known regarding the outcome of the new crop, prices are regarded as likely to be lower.

So far this week primary points have received 4,190,000 bushels wheat, against 4,101,000 bushels the previous week and 2,785,000 bushels last year. Shipments were 2,641,000 bushels; last week, 2,616,000; last year, 1,911,000.

Arrivals of corn have been 7,079,000 bushels; previous week, 5,772,000; last year, 2,748,000. Shipments have been 2,397,000; previous week, 2,411,000; last year, 1,376,000.

Today's Chicago prices for the principal commodities were as follows:

SERVING THE INDIVIDUAL DURING HIS LIFE AND HIS BENEFICIARIES BEYOND HIS LIFE.
SERVING THE CORPORATION DURING ITS ORGANIZATION AND THROUGHOUT ITS EXISTENCE.

Business versus the Family

THE pressure of affairs is so great nowadays that a man sometimes lets it prevent consideration of a duty higher than any he owes to business.

That is the duty of making a will to safeguard the future of his family.

And second only in importance to the making of the will itself, is the naming of a competent EXECUTOR AND TRUSTEE to insure, beyond peradventure, the carrying out of the cherished aims of the maker.

For many reasons it is desirable to choose a company such as this as Executor and Trustee. This Company has had extensive experience in the administration of estates. It has continous existence. Its resources are a guarantee of financial responsibility.

Our booklet, Why You Should Make A Will, contains some interesting points on this subject. It can be obtained at any of our offices, or will be mailed on request.

LIGHT STEEL ORDERS START A FEW MILLS

Some Independents Resume With Two Weeks' Business on 50 Per Cent. Basis.

NO REAL IMPROVEMENT YET

Offers of Tonnage Bring Price Concessions From Plants Anxious to Operate.

Independent steel manufacturers are increasing operations, according to The Iron Age, which reports that a number of plants virtually shut down have started up, with business enough in sight to keep them going at 50 per cent capacity for about two weeks. This publication does not look for continued improvement, saying that periods of activity probably will alternate with periods of idleness.

"The Chicago district shows better operations than in several weeks, the independent companies running this week at 30 to 40 per cent of steel works and 50 to 60 per cent of blast furnace capacity, while the Steel Corporation's finishing mills were at 80 to 85 per cent," says The Iron Age. "The merchant bar output of the latter was curtailed, while its rail output increased.

"Pittsburgh and Ohio districts show a slightly lower average of plant operation, the independents increasing somewhat, while the Steel Corporation fell off slightly in sheets, tin plate and wire. However, the Carnegie Steel Company has started up another blast furnace and now has 48 in blast, while the steel ingot output is 95 per cent.

"At Johnstown, Pa., the Cambria plant will start next week on a 50 per cent basis, after being practically shut down since late December. Two weeks' orders are ahead. The Alan Wood works in the Philadelphia district will run about 50 per cent full next week. Other Eastern mills plan to run in part early in February."

The Iron Trade Review says that "some upturn from the extreme point of depressed mill operations of a week ago has appeared along the line of independent steel companies. Resumptions at Chicago, Johnstown, in the Mahoning Valley, in the Pittsburgh district and in the East signalize some accumulation of tonnage during the period of recent idleness extending over five or six weeks. The gain this week in the number of producing open-hearth furnaces in the Mahoning Valley is 12 per cent., but the total activity is only 42 per cent. Whether this restarting of plant capacity represents a permanent improvement in all cases is questionable, in view of the relatively small volume of new business. It is freely stated by some companies that the tonnage in hand scarcely warrants the hope of sustained operation. At the same time the movement of miscellaneous orders is freer and a better feeling prevails.

"The Steel Corporation mills still are able to keep up their high rate of production chiefly because of their old order book. Absence of attractive business in the market leaves the strength of prices in various finished products largely a matter of conjecture. When a desirable tonnage appears some concession usually is named by an independent mill. As a group the latter are not departing openly from the Steel Corporation basis and seem reluctant to do anything to establish the market on a lower plane."

Montreal Light Co. Nets $3,804,506.

The Montreal Light, Heat and Power Consolidated, reporting for last year, shows net income after charges and ordinary taxes of $3,804,506. The preceding annual report covered the year ended with April, 1919, and showed net amounting to $3,005,182. Gross for last year was $12,748,410, as compared with $10,939,272 in the preceding report, while operating expenses increased from $5,537,495 to $6,810,287.

WINTER CROPS PROGRESS.

Little Damage From Cold Weather—Rain Favors Fall-Sown Grain.

The Weather Bureau's weekly bulletin on conditions in the crop country during the last week was as follows:

The light snow cover over the central and Eastern portion of the Winter wheat belt at the beginning of the last week disappeared rapidly under the influence of unusually warm weather for the season, and grain fields were bare except in the more Northern districts, during much of the week. Some harm was reported to Winter grains from scattered localities as a result of alternate freezing and thawing, but no extended damage appears to have occurred.

Precipitation was general near the close of the week in the Eastern foothills of the Rockies and in the Western and Southwestern great plains area, which will be of great benefit to all fall-sown grains, as the soil had become dry in those sections. Rainfall was heavy in the Eastern plains where the soil was in condition to absorb the moisture. The weather continued favorable for oats in the South and this crop maintains its previously reported satisfactory condition.

The weather was generally favorable for the usual Winter farm work and much plowing was done in all of the Southern States, while the planting of early truck crops was under way. Some cotton was picked in the Northern portion of the belt.

Raises Rail Rates in Ohio.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—The Interstate Commerce Commission today ordered passenger fares in Ohio raised to the same level as those prevailing in interstate commerce, effective March 3. The increased rates also are to apply to Pullman charges, excess baggage charges, and rates on milk and cream in State traffic. The commission held that present State rates were discriminatory against interstate traffic and would result in an annual loss to the carriers of $4,600,000, which they could not afford to bear.

WIDEN PRIVILEGE IN TAX INVENTORIES

"Retail Method" of Making Valuations Is Extended by Internal Revenue Bureau.

COST OR MARKET BASE USED

Dealers Who Follow the Method of Dry Goods Stores May Adopt the Plan.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—In response to a request from the National Retail Dry Goods Association through its taxation committee, Commissioner of Internal Revenue William M. Williams has ruled on a number of important questions regarding the so-called "retail method of valuing inventories." This method of pricing inventories was formally authorized in the case of retail dry goods stores by Treasury decision 3058, issued last August.

It is now held by the Commissioner that, while the use of this method is confined to dry goods dealers, other dealers who follow essentially the method of dry goods stores may be allowed to use the method upon application to the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

The Treasury decision states that the "retail method is essentially a cost method of valuing inventories." In explanation, the Commissioner points out that while this is true in the case of a constant or rising market, in the case of a falling market the method becomes "cost or market, whichever is lower."

Permanent records must be kept showing purchases with the firm name, date of invoice, invoice cost and retail sales price. Records of sales, stocks, &c., must also bepermanently preserved. The percentage of mark-up must be that disclosed by the department records of the period for which the return is made. Arbitrary percentage of purchase mark-up will not be allowed.

The phrase "the value of all merchandise as received" is construed by the bureau to include inventory at the beginning of the period. The purchase mark-up must be computed as follows:

Cost: Inventory at cost at beginning purchases at cost; transportation; retail inventory at sales price, purchases at sales price.

It is held that it is proper to include as part of the "original retail sales price" the actual increase in the original sales price which has been brought about by market conditions or by incorrest pricing when the goods were put into stock.

It also stated that it should be noted that a store which has employed its retail method in the past may now specify in the return that such method is used as a basis on valuing inventories, regardless of the fact that in the past it reported on a "cost" or "cost or market whichever is lower" basis. However, the use of the retail method will not be recognized unless it has been correctly followed through the entire fiscal or calendar year period for which return is made.

In his letter to the National Retail Dry Goods Association the Commissioner treats of one important subject in this manner:

"Priper mark downs substantiated by record of facts will be permitted. The decision is not intended to disturb the procedure in stores which have properly handled mark downs, but instances where arbitrary reductions from retail values have been made because of the desire to provide for depreciation and obsolescence with no actual offering to the public of the goods on which the mark downs were claimed, cannot be recognized. Under no circumstances will a store be allowed to depreciate its stock in anyway except by the offering of it to its customers at such reduced prices.

"The procedure of stores in regard to mark downs will be deemed proper if in any fiscal year or period of that year the goods so marked down are in proportion to current sales to stock on hand, to mark downs of preceding months of preceding year, or if evidence can be submitted as to market changes which have forced a reduction in retail prices necessary to bring about a parity with the selling price of the same goods which have been purchased or could be purchased at a reduced cost."

WARNS BANKS FACE BIG EXCHANGE LOSS

Court Decision May Take Billions Annually From State Concerns, Says Appealing Counsel.

FIGHTS TRUST FUND RULING

Contends Failure by Bolognesi Firm to Buy Italian Lire Was Debtor-Creditor Transaction.

Frank M. Patterson, counsel for the Mechanics and Metals National Bank, argued before the Court of Appeals yesterday an appeal from a decision of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court which threatens, it is alleged, to decrease the cable exchange business of banking institutions in this State billions of dollars annually. The point involved is whether money paid to a bank to purchase exchange is a trust fund or whether the transaction is the same as any other between a creditor and a debtor.

The suit was instituted by Angelo Legniti, and the defendants besides the bank are Francis Gilbert, as assignee of Alessandro and Aldo Bolognesi, formerly in the banking business as A. Bolognesi & Co., and Francis Gilbert, Philip Termini and Leo Oppenheimer, as trustees in bankruptcy of the Bolognesies.

On February 10, 1914, the plaintiff paid to the Bolognesi firm money to buy 18,000 lire at Naples, Italy. The latter deposited the money with the defendant bank but failed to cable the order that day. Before the cable could be sent the following day the Bolognesi firm was thrown into bankruptcy. The bank made the deposit part of the general account of Bolognesi & Co., and later retained it in settlement of a claim of about $51,000 which the bank held against the Bolognesi firm.

The plaintiff demanded the return of the money on the ground that until the transaction for which it was paid had been completed the money was a trust fund and therefore not subject to seizure by the receiver of the Bolognesi firm or by any of the firm's creditors. The bank declined to release the fund.

It is explained in the legal proceedings that the failure of the Bolognesi firm to cable the order for the 18,000 lire was not due to fraud and one of the court opinions expressly explained that "there is no evidence of misrepresentations or fraud or concealment, and no evidence of fraudulent intent."

The lower court found against the plaintiff, but the Appellate Division reversed the finding with a dissenting opinion by Justice Shearn. A statement by Mr. Patterson in his argument before the Court of Appeals, made to show the importance of the litigation, ran in part:

"Appellant bank begs to call attention to the fact that financial reports published governmentally and privately, show that the sale of cable exchange in this city annually has exceeded in the aggregate billions of dollars.

"If the conclusions of the Appellate Division are correct the sale of cable exchange involves a trust relation, and will require in the future an altogether different amount of reserve to be maintained by the banks of New York State against this particular important item, putting the banks of this State at a decided disadvanage in the conduct of this class of business."

WHY A CORPORATE EXECUTOR?

VI. Few friends or relatives have the knowledge or experience necessary to safeguard the securities or properties that often make up the bulk of an estate. Those that have such knowledge and experience usually lack time—or equipment.

Our Trust Department has the knowledge, experience and equipment necessary to conserve the securities and properties left in its care.

This Bank having more at stake must be more careful than the individual.

ACCEPTANCE DEALS DOUBLED IN YEAR

Discount Corporation Reports a Business of $1,780,943,651 for 1920.

DIVIDENDS OF $200,000

President McHugh Sees a Growing Popularity in This Form of Investment.

The Discount Corporation of New York handled a business in acceptances last year totalling $1,780,943,651, or more than twice the volume of the 1919 business, which was $854,986,121. Of last year's total, $891,132,054 was on the buying side and $889,811,596 was on the selling side.

Net profits of the corporation for the year were $590,970, after making full provision for State and Federal taxes. Dividends amounting to $200,000 were paid out of this sum, leaving $390,970 to be carried to undivided profits, which, at the close of 1920 totalled $625,294.

The balance sheet as of the end of the year shows assets and liabilities of $52,313,107. The chief item in assets was $50,836,983 for acceptances discounted, while, after deducting $5,000,000 for capital, $1,000,000 for surplus and $625,294 for undivided profits, the liabilities showed loans payable and deposits of $19,755,301 and acceptances rediscounted and sold with endorsement of $25,431,857.

In his remarks to shareholders, John McHugh, President of the corporation, said, in part:

"The Directors believe that the shareholders will be fully satisfied with the result of the year's business, especially in view of the fact that considerable expense was incurred in the work of introducing acceptances to banks and other purchasers as a means of employing a reasonable part of their available funds. The superior advantages of this form of investment are now much more widely known and appreciated than heretofore. 9s an indication of this, it may be well to point out that the Federal Reserve banks held acceptances purchased in the open market at the beginning of 1920 amounting to $574,631,000, while on December 30, 1920, the figure had declined to $255,702,000, notwithstanding that as great a volume of acceptances was in existence on the latter date. We feel justified in claiming a substantial part of the credit for the very desirable broadening of the market to which these figures give evidence.

"The beginning of the third year of the corporation's business shows a considerable slowing up of foreign trade, both import and export. For a time at least, therefore, the volume of acceptances outstanding will tend to decrease."

A Plan to Foster Courtesy.

In an endeavor to foster courtesy toward customers on the part of its sales employes, one of the local dry goods stores is offering a weekly courtesy prize of $10. Winning the prize not only enriches the winner to that extent, but it automatically makes him or her a member of the store's Courtesy Club. The importance of membership in this organization which, it is understood, can be gained in no other way, lies in the fact that its members come under observation for further executive qualities. In other words, courtesy is made a stepping stone to advancement to better positions.

Object to Baxter Street Tactics.

Numerous complaints from buyers are being heard in the millinery trade these days concerning the old "Baxter Street tactics" used by some of the salesmen employed by wholesale concerns located on Thirty-eighth Street between Fifth and Sixth Avenues. It was said yesterday to be impossible for a known buyer to go through that block without having half a dozen cards thrust at him by the salesmen complained of, if he gets off that lightly. It was further said that both men and women who look like buyers are often approached by the "pullers in" with the idea of beating the other fellow to it. In years gone by, the "grab a buyer" method of doing business flourished more or less in the millinery trade, and the slowness of business in the last few months appears to have revived the practice.

Imported Drugs Depress Prices.

Large stocks of imported crude drugs are still pressing for sale in this market at reduced prices, Drug and Chemical Markets will say today, but with the sharp gains in European exchange it is believed that foreign shippers will not continue dumping their products here much longer. In the fine chemical markets there has been a material increase in small lot purchases. Steady improvement is noticed in the heavy chemical market. In the alkali trade stocks are being rapidly depleted. Trading in dyes is still limited, but stocks are low and buying is expected to become active very soon.

Gray Goods Prices Break Further.

Continued quiet and a further weakening of prices featured trading in the local gray goods market yesterday. Both first and second hands sold February-March deliveries of 38½-inch 64-60 printcloths at 8¼ cents. For January deliveries of 38½-inch 60-48s buyers paid 7¼ cents. Business in sheetings also dragged, although some sales of 5-yard cloths were put through for delivery during this month and next at 7¾ cents. Similar sales of 5.50-yard sheeting were made at 6½ cents.

Twills Get Wider Demand.

While tricotine appears to be the most wanted fabric at present in dress goods, twills of various kinds have lately come into wider demand. The situation in tricotines is a puzzling one to the mill agents, and opinion is divided as to whether it is actually so sure of a continued business as the present call indicates. Quite a few men's wear mills have taken up the production of this material and, with the prospect of a bountiful supply, the conservative element in the market does not advise going very far ahead of orders in hand and bona fide orders at that. With the tendency toward twills, recently evident, an even more cautious policy with regard to tricotines is thought desirable.

Styles in Men's Clothing.

From the designing standpoint, the factor considered most likely to improve the sales of men's clothing would be some novelty in styles. This was the recent recommendation of the designers and one in which the manufacturers would concur if conditions were just a little better. It was pointed out by a clothing representative yesterday that extreme style changes will have to wait upon a further clearance of stock goods in both retail and wholesale hands. He explained that the desire to encourage sales through emphasizing new style factors will have to be pressed until this result is obtained. In the meantime, he said, there will probably be a greater degree of style origination shown in the designing of sport garments, which will serve to indicate the fashion lines upon which the more staple product can proceed most profitably.

Slogan for Jewelers.

The jewelry trade, retail, wholesale and manufacturing, has been called upon to adopt the slogan "Gifts that last" by Thomas A. Fernley, Secretary of the National Wholesale Jewelers' Association. Electrotypes are being distributed at a small charge by the Advertising Bureau of the National Jewelers' Publicity Association. Attention has been called to the successful use of slogans in other lines of business, notably the florist trade where "Say it with flowers" was very favorably received. Substantial returns to the jewelry trade are promised if the right sort of co-operation is obtained for the movement.

More Silk Manufacturers.

Statistics for Jan. 1, 1921, prepared by the Davison Publishing Company, show that there were 25 more silk manufacturers in business on that date than at the opening of 1920. The total number of all factors, excluding dyers, finishers and printers, was 2,554 this year compared with 2,529 last year. Though there was an increase registered in the number throughout the country, Paterson, the principal manufacturing centre, showed the shrinkage caused by the collapse of speculation, but there are only 53 less than the total of 759 for last year. The greatest loss for the year was in the broad silk division with 20 less in the business now, while the throwing and spinning division made a gain of 54 members from 327 to 381.

Style Influence on Buttons.

Fancy buttons for women's wear are said to have received a distinct stimulus through the style tendency toward the directoire mode, promised for the coming season. An increased demand has been noted in the button trade for large jet buttons, cut steel, fancy enameled and rhinestone effects. One house claims to have sold more fine novelty buttons during the last two weeks than in the last two years. The demand for staple pearl buttons, quiet since early last Fall, has grown more active, and the manufacturers hope that price reductions made on these goods will maintain this business.

Local Buyers Too Cautious?

Judging from reports coming from various trades, local buyers of dry goods and wearing apparel are operating very cautiously for Spring, in comparison with the way in which many out-of-town retailers are placing orders. Particularly is this said to be so in the case of "style merchandise." In certain quarters the opinion is held that local buying is really too cautious, all things considered. It is not attributed to smaller consumer buying here than in other cities, but rather to the pessimistic feeling that usually strikes this city first when things slow down and leaves it last when conditions improve. This feeling is said to exist a great deal less among buyers than among merchandise and financial men.

OMAHA, Jan. 26.—The Union Pacific Railroad system has ordered a five-day week for shopmen and trackmen, effective immediately, it was announced today by W. H. Guild, assistant to Vice President Calvin, in charge of operation. It was explained that this was taken to economize and avoid laying off more men.

New Mark for California Crude Oil.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 26.—Crude oil production in California reached its highest point during December, when 10,002,383 barrels were extracted, bringing the total for the year to 105,618,706 barrels, the largest ever recorded, according to a statistical report for 1920, made public here today by the Independent Oil Producers Agency.

INDICT POSTER MEN UNDER SHERMAN LAW

Chicago Federal Grand Jurors Accuse 31 of Violating Anti-Trust Statute.

OFFICERS OF TWO CONCERNS

Several New York Residents Among Heads of Companies Once Ordered Dissolved.

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—Indictments charging violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust law by thirty-one officials of the Poster Advertising Company of Chicago and the Poster Advertising Association, with central offices in New York, were returned by the Federal Grand Jury today before Judge George A. Carpenter.

The companies are charged with having "worked together" to obtain leases on all suitable billboards in towns in which the population is more than 2,500. The companies operated throughout the United States.

It is alleged that the companies used "unfair, tortuous and unlawful methods" in excluding from these towns their competitors in the poster advertising field.

The indictments name the President and Secretary Treasurer of each company, and the Boards of Directors, whose members are scattered throughout the country.

Officials of the Poster Advertising Company named, all of New York City, are: President, E. C. Cheshire, Norfolk, Va.; Secretary-Treasurer, W. W. Bell, Chicago; Directors, E. U. Ferris, Buffalo, N. Y.; James A. Reardon, Scranton, Pa.; Harry F. O'Mella, Jersey City, N. J.; Thomas R. Burrell, Fall River, Mass.; Phinelas R. Haber, Fond du Lac, Wis.; George Shaal, Terre Haute, Ind.; A. S. Beall, Sioux City, Iowa; C. Philley, St. Joseph, Mo.; B. T. Leveridge, Lexington, Ky.; R. Robinson, Wheeling, W. Va.; Milburn Hopson, Dallas, Texas; Kerwin H. Fulton, New York; Thomas Nokes, Johnstown, Pa.; Edward C. Donnelly, Boston, Mass.; Harry C. Walker, Detroit, Mich.; S. L. Grasler, Fostoria, Ohio; Burnett Robbins, Chicago; J. H. Brinkmeyer, St. Louis, Mo.; W. W. Workman, Richmond, Va.; R. S. Douglass, Birmingham, Ala.; W. R. Burnett, Ardmore, Okla.; A. F. Lausen, San Francisco, and Edward L. Ruddy, Toronto, Ont.

Officials of the Poster Advertising Company named, all of New York City, are: President, Kerwin H. Fulton; Secretary-Treasurer, Donald G. Ross; Directors, Sidney Hamilton, Albert W. Griggs, Martin F. Reddington and Charles P. Norcross.

The maximum penalty for conviction is one year in prison and $5,000 fine.

In 1916 Federal Judge Kenesaw M. Landis ordered that the two companies be dissolved after civil suit had been instituted against the firms in the United States District Courts.

During the hearing before Judge Landis testimony was offered in an effort to show that the companies had charged advertisers unfair prices. Pending a hearing on the appeal the judge entered an order restraining the companies from further alleged price manipulation.

Stole $853,000 in Useless Checks.

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 26.—Three automobile bandits held up messengers of the Drovers' National Bank today and escaped with $853,000 in non-negotiable checks. The messengers were being driven in a taxicab to the clearing house downtown. Officials of the bank said the only loss would be a few hours' extra bookkeeping.

THE ATHENS HOTEL IN $2,000,000 DEAL

East Forty-second Street Property Leased for Forty-two-Year Term.

$80,000 A YEAR RENTAL

Property Will Eventually Be Improved With Modern Hotel Building.

At an aggregate rental of several million dollars, the Hotel Athens at 56 and 58 East Forty-second Street, with frontages on Forty-first Street and Madison Avenue, was leased yesterday for a term of forty-two years to Howard C. Boardman and Charles A. Hollingsworth.

This is the second big lease running into the millions that has been closed in the Grand Central Terminal zone since Monday and another transaction of equal importance is pending.

On Monday the Crucible Steel Company of America leased the twelfth and thirteenth floors in the National City Building on the northwest corner of Forty-second Street and Madison Avenue for an aggregate rental of over $2,000,000.

The Athens Hotel property, which is located almost directly opposite the National City Building, formerly the Hotel Manhattan, consists of a five-story building, fronting 31 feet 6 inches on Forty-second Street and running through the block 200 feet to Forty-first Street, where it also has a frontage of 31 feet 6 inches.

The Madison Avenue frontage consists of a five-story building known as No. 205, with a frontage of 23 feet 9 inches and a depth of 100 feet. This property has an assessed valuation of about $185,000, while the other parcel running through the block from Forty-first to Forty-second Street is assessed at $525,000 for the land, and $625,000 for the land and building combined.

The entire property is owned by the Athens Hotel Company, which leased yesterday to Messrs. Boardman and Hollingsworth.

In addition to a certain amount paid for good-will, fixtures, &c., of the hotel, the lessees take the property over for a term of twenty-one years with an option of a second term of the same length of time.

It is understood that the lessees will pay $80,000 a year for the property for the first five years, after which there will be a reappraisal.

It is the intention of the lessees to improve the entire property with a modern hotel structure at a later date. At present, however, owing to building conditions, only alterations will be made to the buildings which will be taken over on Feb. 1.

The hotel will be continued under the new ownership, and a popular-priced restaurant conducted on the ground floor and basement.

Howard C. Boardman was formerly connected with the Delaware, Lakawanna & Western Railroad, and until very recently was Vice President of the Punderford Company, which purchases the supplies for the Bowman chain of hotels.

Charles F. Noyes Company leased for Louis C. Mouquin, President, the two six-story and basement buildings 114-116 Fulton Street, on a plot 50 by 80, between Nassau and William Streets, for a long term at an aggregate rental of about $300,000. The lessees, Thoelen, Lux & Horowitz, will immediately make alterations and improvements to the property at a cost of about $50,000, occupy a portion of the building and rent the balance for insurance and jewelry purposes.

$1,000,000 Park Avenue Sale.

Park Avenue furnished another big apartment house deal yesterday in the sale of the twelve-story structure at 840 Park Avenue, northwest corner of Seventy-sixth Street. It has been purchased by a syndicate to be conducted by the owners on the co-operative plan. The property was sold by the Seventy-Sixth Street and Park Avenue Company, of which Frederick Johnson is President.

The same company sold on the preceding day the thirteen-story apartment house on the opposite southwest corner, being 830 Park Avenue. The 840 Park Avenue house covers a plot 55 by 102.2 feet and is valued at about $1,000,000. Pease & Elliman were the brokers and they also acted in the sale of the other Johnson apartment property.

The Long Island City Savings Bank has loaned to the Queensboro Corporation on eight Garden Apartment buildings on Twenty-third Street, Jackson Heights, $320,000. This institution holds the mortgage loans on the adjoining six Garden Apartment buildings, making a total aggregate mortgage on the fourteen buildings, comprising the block between Polk and Fillmore Avenues on Twenty-third Street, of $550,000.

Six of the Twenty-third Street buildings have been sold to the tenants on the Jackson Heights plan of tenant-ownership and the remaining eight buildings are now being offered for sale on the same plan.

To Enlarge Bramhall Playhouse.

The Bramhall Players, which recently purchased 140 East Twenty-seventh Street, the building adjoining the Bramhall Playhouse, will tear down the two houses after the close of the present season in May and build a new and much larger theatre on the combined plot.

The plans call for a revolving stage, 45 feet wide, 30 feet deep and 50 feet high, with dome lighting and every convenience for the housing of a modern repertory company. The auditorium is to be lighted through long French windows, similar to those in use at the present Bramhall, and the color scheme of gray and gold will be duplicated in the new theatre.

Realty Notes.

The Parnasus Club, which plans a fifteen-story $1,000,000 clubhouse for professional women just below Central Park, has obtained an option from the Gay Holding Corporation and Daniel B. Freedman, through Slawson & Hobbs, on the dwelling at 319 and 321 West Fifty-seventh Street and 316 to 320 West Fifty-eighth Street.

A SHORT CUT TO ACCOUNTANCY SUCCESS.

Five months will qualify you as a junior accountant and twelve months as a senior accountant if you have a grammar school education and ability with figures.

This quick result can be accomplished by the La Salle Problem Method because the student is given enough theory and a great deal of practical work on problems lifted bodily from actual business instead of being given much theory and little practical work.

If you're big enough for a bigger position than you are holding get the facts about this Problem Method by calling for a personal talk, or phone or write.

A NEW INDICTMENT SOUGHT BY WHITMAN

Grand Jury to Get Facts Today of Alleged Police Graft on Stolen Autos.

MANY WITNESSES MISSING

Board of Estimate Grants $20,000 for Inquiry, Riegelmann Not Voting.

Evidence of alleged police graft in the recovery of stolen automobiles will be presented to the Additional Grand Jury today by Charles S. Whitman. He said last night that information in his hands warranted him in asking an indictment, and it is understood that more than one may be sought in this phase of the investigation into city departments.

"If I get all the witnesses, I expect action," Mr. Whitman said. He declined to discuss the nature of the evidence, but it is understood that there will be three or four witnesses in addition to documentary evidence.

Mr. Whitman is said to be having difficulty in getting witnesses to testify in cases against police officials. Some of those wanted cannot be found and others are known to have left the State.

The evidence relating to the recovery of stolen automobiles which will be placed before the Grand Jury is said to involve several members of the Police Department in the taking of unlawful fees. The records show that many of the stolen automobiles, for the finding of which policemen obtained rewards, were left in garages by persons who did not leave names or addresses. Mr. Whitman has subpoenaed garage owners to find out why names and addresses were not taken.

The Board of Estimate appropriated $20,000 in special revenue bonds yesterday for the Whitman investigation. Mayor Hylan called for the board's vote, which showed all members in favor of the fund, except Edward Riegelmann, Borough President of Brooklyn, who did not vote. Mr. Riegelmann said that he had not had sufficient time to study the proposal.

The funds will be available immediately, since the approval of the Board of Aldermen is not needed, because of a provision in the City Charter that the bonds may be granted by the board on the certificate of a District Attorney.

LANDAU STATEMENT ORAL.

Representations to Agency in Exchange Deal Were Not Sworn.

In an article in THE TIMES on Jan. 14 concerning the arrest of Kirk A. Landau, Vice President and Manager of the Pacat Finance Corporation, in a civil suit by the National Shawmut Bank of Boston to recover $250,000 alleged to have been paid for foreign exchange on false representations by Landau, it was stated that the Boston bank relied on a "sworn" statement by Landau to a financial agency. Examination of the papers shows that the statement was made orally to the representative of the agency.

Mr. Landau, who was released from Ludlow Street Jail upon giving $75,000 bail, has objected to a statement that he was charged with receiving $118,000 personally for Italian lire which were not delivered to the bank. The affidavits stated that the check for $118,890 was delivered to the Pacat Finance Corporation, "of which the defendant was in charge and was Business Manager, and which was paid to the corporation," but that Landau, "with intent to defraud the plaintiff, caused the Pacat Finance Corporation to enter into the contracts aforesaid for the purchase of exchange, and received from the plaintiff the checks hereinbefore mentioned in behalf of the corporation."

In an article on Jan. 26 concerning the denial by Supreme Court Justice Finch of Landau's application to reduce the $75,000 bail it was stated that the opinion of Justice Finch said that Landau and his father had "organized many corporations." His words were "the corporation," referring to the Pacat Finance Corporation.

BAR DEMANDS ADDED YEAR IN LAW STUDY

Will Ask Court of Appeals to Raise Standard of Training.

At the meeting of the Bar Association last night the report of a committee on legal education appointed in 1919 to propose a higher standard of education for candidates for admission to the bar was adopted unanimously, indorsing the recommendation that another year be added to legal training. By this action the association will suggest to the Court of Appeals that after completing the studies required for a Regents' certificate candidates shall spend five years further in study. College graduates shall spend only three of the required five years in law study and non-college graduates four of the five in law study.

The members devoted much time to the discussion of the report of the Committee on Law Reform, for the eradication of the evils of the bail bond business, recently disclosed in the investigation before Magistrate Simpson. Chairman Edward J. McGuire of the committee, in presenting the report, suggested that the code of criminal procedure be amended to require a license for all persons and corporations engaged in the business; that the premium for giving the bond shall not be more than 2 per cent.; and that any person or corporation receiving a greater compensation than the amount provided by law for giving the bond shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

LEGISLATURE TO JUDGE ART.

Wisconsin Senators and Representatives to Fix Portrait's Worth.

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 26.—A portrait of former Governor Philipp, executed by Christian Abrahamson, a New York artist, for the executive offices, will be hung in the Senate Chamber for an unofficial verdict by the Legislature before the question of price is settled, it was decided today after the artist had placed a value of $10,000 on the painting.

The previous highest price paid for a Governor's portrait, $1,500, was set by the Legislature four years ago after a protest, while in 1911 the Legislature obtained portraits of three former Executives for a total of $1,500, one costing but $75.

Mr. Abrahamson, in exhibiting his portrait to the Finance Committee of the Legislature, said that while he valued the painting at $10,000, he would suggest $5,000 as a reasonable price.

Double Action

It is just as impossible to interpret the tax regulations without a knowledge of the principles of accounting as it is to properly open a set of books without a knowledge of the tax regulations.

It is likewise impossible for a layman to grapple with his tax and accounting problem as effectively as those best qualified by training and experience—Certified Public Accountants.

Our experience should prove of value.

FRENCH WITHDRAW EXTREME DEMANDS FOR REPARATIONS

Millerand Intervening, Council Agrees to Discussions on Basis of 100 Billion Marks.

EXPERTS AGAIN IN CHARGE

Indemnity Question Referred to a Committee, Which Must Report Before Final Decision.

LLOYDGEORGE URGES SPEED

Says World Demands Settlement—Briand, Encouraged, Looks for Decision by Saturday.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 27.—President Millerand intervened in the reparations negotiations today, and as a result of his peace-making efforts M. Doumer's demand for an indemnity total of 200,000,000,000 gold marks, which strained the relations between the French and British delegations, was thrown aside, and the negotiations will henceforth proceed on the basis of the Boulogne plan of last July, which fixed the total at 100,000,000,000 gold marks at current value, payable in forty-two years, with interest, bringing the grand total of payments up to about 250,000,000,000 gold marks. M. Doumer's plan would have made Germany ultimately liable for more than 400,000,000,000 gold marks.

As a result of this situation M. Doumer may resign as French Finance Minister.

Millerand's action in rebuking the French diplomats and Lloyd George's speech late today make the outlook for harmony brighter.

The reparations negotiations were to have been reopened at 11 o'clock this morning. At 9 o'clock M. Millerand called M. Briand to the Elysée Palace and told him that M. Doumer's plan would not do, and that it was better for France to accept less and avoid a break in the alliance with England. Premier Briand got in touch with Lloyd George, and the morning session was postponed while the Prime Ministers conferred privately.

The discussion was resumed at 4 o'clock, when Lloyd George presented the point of view which has been accurately summarized in these dispatches. The tenor of his speech was that the question of indemnity must come to a settlement now, and that ideals must give way to practical considerations.

Lloyd George for Quick Decision.

He insisted that the world demanded a settlement. "If there is a difference of opinion among us," he said, "it is concerning methods. There is no dispute that Germany is morally obligated to pay her utmost, and there is no dispute that the Allies must stand together. But it is useless to try to extract from Germany more than she can pay. That is impracticable. It is foolish.

"It is sometimes said that the interest of Great Britain is different from that of France. That is false. Their interests are identical. It is to the interest of Great Britain that Germany pay to the uttermost farthing, just as it is to the interest of France and Belgium that she do so. We get 22 per cent. of what Germany pays.

"It is admitted that France stands first in human sacrifices, in human sufferings and in material loss. But Great Britain bore the heaviest financial burden. Her naval and military effort cost her ten billion pounds sterling.

"Germany must pay to the utmost. The real difficulty comes in compelling Germany to pay. That is largely because of the difficulty of collecting outside the borders of Germany. Germany has that within her borders to pay, but how to get it? Germany cannot export her mines and railroads to us. Then, again, suppose we take the railroads and run them, doubling the tariffs, we only get a lot of marks which are practically valueless after we get them home.

"The only way Germany can pay is by exports. By that I mean the difference between exports and imports. If her imports are limited by taking too much of her exports, she will be unable to get food and raw materials. But none the less there is a real margin which will enable Germany to pay."

Mr. Lloyd George said that experts had examined plans at Boulogne, Spa and Brussels and had worked out agreements as to Germany's capacity and as to the extent and manner she could pay, so as to benefit and not damage the Allies.

"I am willing that these proposals be criticised," he said, "and if possible improved. I am willing to consider new proposals, but I strongly deprecate any fresh adjournment. The Allies and the whole world need a definite settlement. A speedy settlement within limits is more important today than an ideal settlement. Therefore real progress is essential. We have got to get somewhere."

He said he hoped the conference would accept the Boulogne agreement as a basis for discussion and settlement.

Mr. Lloyd George said the Doumer scheme was morally just, but impracticable. No experts believed it could be made effective.

"The hard, cold facts," he said, "often render ideals impossible." Certain things must be done. The Allies must agree as to the German capacity for payment and must use all authority

Ex-Kaiser May Be Called As Witness in Dutch Court

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 27.—The ex-Kaiser will probably be summoned to testify in an action brought against the Rotterdamsche Nieuwsblad by a German resident of Rotterdam. This newspaper recently published a warning concerning a certain person bearing a German-sounding name who was alleged to have used visiting cards bearing the words "Steward and Private Secretary to his Majesty William II. at Château Doorn."

The man presenting the card was said to have been offering for sale pictures and furniture belonging to the former Emperor. The offering offended a German named Reisbermann, who instituted proceedings against the newspaper, which it is declared will probably summon the former Emperor to testify whether Reisbermann is in his service.

'CLOTHING INDUSTRY OURS,' SAYS UNIONIST

Won't Permit Employers to Determine Where Plant Shall Be or Hours of Work.

'REBELLION FLAME BURNING'

15,000 Amalgamated Members Cheer General Secretary's Defiance of Manufacturers.

Fifteen thousand clothing workers met in Madison Square Garden yesterday afternoon and heard Joseph Schlossberg, General Secretary of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, bid defiance to the employers.

"The clothing industry is ours," he said. "The employers may own the factories and the tools, which we are not taking away from them. But every stitch we put into a garment represents our blood and marrow. We are not going to permit the employer to determine where his factory is to be, how many hours we shall work. We shall determine for ourselves the methods of our organization."

About 2,000 members of the union gathered before the Garden at 9 o'clock in the morning. Several thousand were turned away when the Garden had been filled to capacity.

"The employers have invested their money, made in a thousand different ways, some honestly and some dishonestly," said Schlossberg, as the crowd cheered. "But we are investing in the clothing business our active life, our youth, manhood and womanhood. We have determined to hold what we have today and to get more."

Most of those who attended a similar meeting in 1893, said Schlossberg, had come from sweatshops. He contrasted former conditions in the industry with those which exist today.

"The flame of rebellion is burning fiercer every day in the hearts of all of the men in the clothing industry," he continued. "This flame was kindled right here in America in sweatshops. This conflagration will not be put out by the employment of 800 guards, shyster lawyers or by injunctions. It will only be put out by the establishment of industrial democracy."

The mass meeting was called by the union to discuss a suit brought against the Amalgamated by the J. Friedman Company in the name of the Clothing Manufacturers' Association of New York. The Friedman plant is being operated as an open shop. The company has asked for an injunction against the Amalgamated in this State while the suit is pending.

As explained by Harry A. Gordon, counsel for the manufacturers, they seek dissolution of the Amalgamated on the ground that the union is an incipient Soviet movement for the rule of the proletariat by seizure of factories, and on the further ground that the Amalgamated is a menace to the nation.

Besides Schlossberg, the speakers yesterday were Sidney Hillman, President of the Amalgamated; Abraham I. Shiplacoff, manager of the Joint Board of the union; Abraham Cahan, editor of The Jewish Daily Forward; Frank P. Walsh, former Chairman of the War Labor Board, and Charles D. Irvin, editor of The New York Call.

"Preambles are easily made and unmade," said Schlossberg, "but no self-respecting unionist would change one punctuation mark under the compulsion of employers. I would say to them, rather, 'We, the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, have pulled 200,000 human beings out of the slums of the sweatshop and raised them to the level of twentieth century conditions. If this is not Americanism, then there is no Americanism.'

"If it comes to a test of strength, we shall accept the challenge, but we could not go back unless under the control of our own organized body."

Editor Cahan talked to the workers in Yiddish, telling them that the word defeat was not in their dictionary. His speech bristled with references to "Kaiserism in industry."

Shiplacoff read a message of sympathy from the members of the Amalgamated in Rochester and announced a contribution of $30,000 from the clothing workers of Chicago.

FORD PLANT MAY REOPEN.

Talk of a Loan and Resumption of Work on Monday.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 27.—It is reported tonight that a large loan has been promised to the Ford Motor Company and that the plant will reopen on Monday. Confirmation is not possible tonight. It was learned authoritatively that the engineers and superintendents were in conference today and will meet again tomorrow regarding reopening on Monday.

If this is done all married men will receive preference, and production at a rate of 2,000 cars a day, about one-half the scheduled 1921 production, will be started. It will mean the re-employment of at least 25,000 workers.

The resignation of Louis Block, Philadelphia agent of the Ford Motor Company, was confirmed today by Ford officials.

LABOR BOARD OPENS WAY TO RAILROADS TO READJUST WAGES

Makes Decision in Southern Case That Road and Employes Must Seek Direct Settlement.

CANNOT ACT TILL THEY FAIL

Executives, Gathering at Chicago, See Hope of Roads' Separate Parleys With Men.

INSIST CUT IS NECESSARY

Freight Has Dropped a Third in Three Months, They Say on Eve of Serious Conference.

Special to the New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 27.—The United States Railway Labor Wage Board, in deciding today the application of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic Railroad for authority to reduce the wages of its employes, made a ruling which railroad executives say may expedite the wage readjustment on all the railroads of the country.

The Labor Board held in substance that the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic had no status before the board under the Transportation act, inasmuch as the act provided for appeal to the board only after the employes and management have failed to reach an agreement. It was pointed out that instead of posting a notice of wage reduction, the road should have notified its employes that a readjustment was desired and should then have attempted to reach an agreement with its employes on a new scale, appealing to the board only after the attempt had failed.

At the same time the board indicated its willingness to expedite consideration of the railroad's troubles by fixing Feb. 10 as the date of hearing the case on its general merits, the presumption being that the road will have complied by that time with the requirements of the Transportation act. No agreement will be reached with the employes for a reduction, according to general opinion.

In the meantime executives of the railroads centring in Chicago were in conference preparatory to a conference tomorrow with the Labor Committee of the American Association of Railway Executives.

The ruling of the Labor Board was interpreted as meaning that the roads had a free hand in carrying on negotiations with their employes for a wage readjustment, and that if agreements could be made no appeal to the board would be necessary.

Most Think Unions Will Fight.

Some executives expressed the opinion that adjustments could be made directly with the employes. The majority, however, were inclined to the view that the railway unions would fight any reduction to the last ditch.

The railroad chiefs let it be known that they believed that the roads were confronting the greatest crisis in their history and that in a choice between a dispute with the unions and bankruptcy they would take their chance with the former.

A statement issued by Robert S. Binkert, assistant to the Chairman of the association, was non-committal. From other sources came word that the conference would discuss the amount of wage reduction necessary and the best methods of making the cut. The board will then make recommendations to the standing committee of the association, which, in turn will take it up with the railroad managements. It was predicted that the readjustment plan would be made public within a fortnight.

Among the members of the labor committee who arrived today were W. W. Atterbury, Vice President of the Pennsylvania; W. G. Besler, President of the Central Railroad of New Jersey; H. E. Byram, President of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul; C. H. Markham, President of the Illinois Central; N. D. Maher, President of the Norfolk & Western, and W. P. Scott, President of the Southern Pacific lines in Texas and Louisiana. Byram and Markham have been in the East several days considering the wage problem with heads of Eastern roads.

Freight Has Dropped a Third.

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—Failure of increased rates to earn the expected revenue, decrease in business, the present large payroll and high operating expenses were given today as the reasons for action by the railroads to cut wages.

"Many railroads are in bad financial condition," declared Samuel O. Dunn, advisory counsel to the Association of Railway Executives, today. "This is due to a decline in business and failure of the rates to earn the revenue expected. Railroads during September, October and November, 1920, when they did their heaviest business, failed to earn the large net returns expected.

"The roads have made reductions in their forces, made necessary by the decline in business. They are operating as economically as possible, and they find no way out except to reduce the payroll. The 1917 payroll of $1,700,000,000 is today increased to $3,700,000,000, and as a result many roads are in bad financial condition. Beginning with November, there has been a decline in business until the freight movement now is less than two-thirds of what it was three months ago. Apparently there is no way out except to reduce wages."

In connection with the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic's case B. L. Bugg, President of the road, said today:

"Our proposed wage reductions are no part of any general movement," said Mr. Bugg. "We are acting independently and held no conferences with any

First of the Harding Goods Go to White House Offices

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Moving of the personal effects of President-elect Harding and Mrs. Harding into the Executive offices of the White House was begun today from the Harding home on New Hampshire Avenue. Mrs. Harding came from Marion Sunday to attend to this work.

The Harding house is to be sold together with the furniture, and only a few personal belongings have been preserved to supplement the articles with which the White House is furnished.

It was upon the invitation of Mrs. Wilson, extended some time ago, that Mrs. Harding decided to make ready in advance for the change. An antique settee, several chairs, heirloom pictures, and some rare china were among the articles chosen to be carried into the White House.

The single wagon load taken to the Executive offices of the White House today is expected to remain there until the President-elect is inducted into office.

ASK $50,000 RANSOM FOR KIDNAPPED WIFE

Husband of Hollywood Woman, Missing Since Tuesday, Receives Threatening Note.

LURED AWAY BY STRANGER

Neighbor Says Mrs. Gladys Wetherell Left Babe With Her and Went to Aid Another.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 27.—Fifty thousand dollars ransom is demanded for the return of Mrs. Gladys Wetherell of Hollywood, who was kidnapped Tuesday afternoon from her home at 1,843 Whitley Avenue.

Demand for the ransom was made in a note placed under the door of the family residence and addressed to O. S. Wetherell, the husband. The note read:

"Wetherell: Your wife is safe. Do not worry. Have $50,000 cash ready, and you will hear from me soon. Don't notify the police or detectives, or all will be lost."

The note was written on a typewriter and was not signed. It was delivered mysteriously to the Wetherell home late last night, according to detectives.

While the police, detectives and Deputy Sheriffs were searching for the woman and the writer of the note and making a house to house hunt of Hollywood for the kidnappers, relatives of Mrs. Wetherell delved into the occult to learn the whereabouts of the abducted woman.

John C. Kratz, wealthy father of Mrs. Wetherell, visited a medium today and was told that he would hear from his daughter soon.

Several officers working on the case were sent to Downey to run down a report made by a man that he had overheard two men talking of the case in an automobile near Seventh and San Pedro Streets.

According to this report, the men were in a small touring car, the license plates of which were missing, and said they were going to Downey. The officers have tried thus far in vain to locate this automobile.

Promise "Startling Developments."

The police predicted "startling developments" soon. Both the City Council and the Board of Supervisors considered plans for offering rewards for the capture and conviction of the kidnappers, and it was said each body might add $500 to the $500 reward offered by the husband and his father, A. J. Wetherell, a retired capitalist.

Detective Harris, Captain of Detectives Moffat, police department detectives and Deputy Sheriffs held a conference, at which all clues were carefully checked over. The conference was attended by Wetherell and his father.

The officers reported they had made every effort, without success, to run down the clue given by two schoolboys, who reported that on Tuesday evening they saw a woman struggling with two men in a small touring car on West Washington Street.

The police have sent a description of this car broadcast and hope by locating the car to run down the kidnappers of Mrs. Wetherell. The demand for ransom has allayed the fears which were felt at first that Mrs. Wetherell had been murdered by the same gang which, it is believed, murdered Mrs. Fay Sudow a few weeks ago.

"I am satisfied the kidnapping is for the purpose of extorting money from my father and myself," the husband of the missing woman said.

Says Man Called for Her.

The police incline to the opinion that the description of the man who lured Mrs. Wetherell away, which was furnished by Miss Elizabeth Warden, a neighbor, will be of little value.

Miss Warden said that shortly before Mrs. Wetherell disappeared a gray-haired man came to the door of her home and asked for Mrs. Wetherell. She directed him to the Wetherell home next door.

A few minutes later Mrs. Wetherell appeared and asked her to care for her 18-month-old baby, Jack Wetherell, for a little while.

"A woman has been hurt over in the next street and is calling for me," Miss Warden said Mrs. Wetherell told her. "I'll not be gone long, and I'd like to leave the baby with you."

Miss Warden accepted charge of the infant and Mrs. Wetherell went away with the man who a few moments before had appeared at the Warden home.

Thisgman, according to Miss Warden's description, was in the late fifties, but the police believe his gray hair and aged appearance were part of a clever disguise.

The Wetherells, father and son, formerly lived in Chicago, where years ago the elder was head of the Chicago Portrait Company. They moved here about eight years ago.

Arrests Comparatively Few—Stealing Done by a Small Group of Thieves, Prosecutor Says.

Detective Sergeants Martin S. Owens and Thomas J. Horan of the police automobile squad were indicted yesterday as a result of the Whitman inquiry into city departments. They are charged with taking an unlawful fee for the recovery of a stolen automobile. The two detectives were held by Judge Otto A. Rosalsky in General Sessions in $2,500 bail each for pleading today.

The outstanding points in the information which Mr. Whitman says he has obtained in his inquiry into stolen automobile graft are these:

The estimated number of cars stolen last year is 9,000, of which 4,500 were recovered. The gratuities, according to Mr. Whitman, averaged $100, making a total of $450,000 paid for the recovery of stolen cars, of which only a comparatively small part was legally received.

The fees, it is asserted, were received by a small ring within the Police Department.

Although 50 per cent. of the stolen cars were recovered, the number of convictions for auto thefts as compared with the number of cars stolen was negligible, indicating, Mr. Whitman asserted, that in their eagerness to get rewards the police were stimulated to find the cars, but did not arrest the thieves, which was their primary duty.

Policemen who found cars went, in many cases, to the offices of insurance companies to get gratuities, which usually were paid in cash—"for the convenience of the policemen," the insurance men said—but in many cases by check.

Say Police Used Stolen Autos.

Stolen automobiles were in several instances used by the policemen for several days before they were returned to the owners.

Automobile thievery in the city has been confined to a small group.

The indictment against Owens and Horan charges a violation of Section 1826 of the Penal Law, which prohibits taking unlawful fees. It is charged that in December they accepted a gratuity of $100 from Mark R. Decker of Decker & Yale, insurance adjusters, of 14 John Street, acting for the Caledonian Insurance Company. The money is alleged to have been paid for the recovery of an automobile stolen from Mrs. Emile Hereshoff of 375 West End Avenue, and which was covered against loss by the Caledonian company. The car was stolen in November.

The witnesses called before the Grand Jury were Grant Crabtree, Acting Chief Clerk at Police Headquarters; Mark R. Decker, Lieutenant George E. Fisher of the Detective Bureau and Mrs. Hereshoff.

When Owens and Horan were taken before Judge Rosalsky, in General Sessions, Louis Fridiger, their counsel, asserted that, although the indictments charged the two detectives with "asking and receiving" a gratuity, the facts were that the official records showed that no reward was ever asked for.

"I think your Honor knows of the enviable record made by Captain Owens with the army in France, and I have, further, my own ideas of why this indictment was found. My idea is that it was found to vent the spleen of some one—I don't know who—as the result of a personal encounter they had."

Judge Rosalsky said that, while Section 1826 of the Penal law covered the case even if the facts were as related by Mr. Fridiger, the present indictments would not hold if Mr. Fridiger was right about the facts. Assistant District Attorney James E. Smith was called into the courtroom and Judge Rosalsky asked him whether the prosecution contended that the two detectives has asked for the reward before performing their duty.

"We don't want to say what the facts are at this time," said Mr. Smith.

Bail for Owens and Horan was furnished by Edward Robinson, a real estate and insurance broker of 132 West Forty-fifth Street. Mr. Robinson said that he was a friend of long standing of both defendants.

Assails Prosecutor.

Mr. Fridiger, on behalf of the defendants, dictated a statement in which he accused Assistant District Attorney Smith of having a grievance against Capt. Owens.

He said he would immediately move on behalf of both defendants for an inspection of the Grand Jury minutes.

Mr. Whitman said last night that the only procedure by which a policeman could accept a reward lawfully was on the written permission of the Police Commissioner.

"Last year," said Mr. Whitman, "about 4,500 stolen cars were recovered, but there were comparatively few arrests. The police were apparently anxious to get the cars, but not to catch the thieves. And when they had got the cars they went to the offices of the

MILLER TELLS LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS IT IS A MENACE TO OUR INSTITUTIONS; ATTACKS ITS SOCIAL WELFARE PROGRAM

Governor, Worn Out by Hard Work, Must Rest; Cancels Speaking Engagements for a Month

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 27.—Governor Miller is worn out by the arduous work of his first month in office. He has been ordered by his physician to rest for several days and, following his address to the League of Women Voters tonight, to cancel all speaking arrangements for the next month.

The Governor came to his office in the Capitol Building as usual this morning and put in several busy hours at his executive duties. A slight irritation of the throat led to his physician being called in. He told the Governor that when he went home for luncheon he had better remain home and take it easy.

Despite his indisposition the Governor received the newspaper correspondents this afternoon, but at the Executive Mansion instead of in the Executive Chamber at the Capitol. He came down to the reception room in dressing gown and slippers and talked on New York City's traction problem for fifteen minutes, answering many questions. It was readily perceptible that he was a very tired man, and as the interview was drawing to a close there was a feverish flush on his cheeks.

"I did not realize how exhausted I was until my physician told me," he said in response to queries regarding his condition. "Now I know that I am a pretty tired man. I think I shall remain here at least until Monday, and I have been compelled to cancel all my speaking engagements for the next four weeks with the exception of a brief address to the League of Women Voters, which I will try to deliver tonight.

"Well, you cannot burn the candle at both ends and get away with it. It is just a case of fatigue, nothing else. There is a slight infection of the throat, but I do not think it is anything serious."

The Governor had made plans to go to Lake Placid tonight to stay over the week-end with a party of friends from Syracuse, but this trip had to be given up under instructions from the physician. The Governor has been working very hard ever since election, and while the campaign was in progress he did not spare himself, although part of the time he was ill. According to the Governor's physician, it is the cumulative effect of months of hard work that now has got the better of the Governor.

NO POST FOR HOOVER IN HARDING CABINET

Senator Fall Now Considered a Strong Possibility for Secretary of Interior.

IS WITH HARDING IN FLORIDA

President-Elect Lands at Palm Beach, Freshened by Four-Day Rest.

Special to the New York Times.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 27.—Browned by the sun and invigorated by four days enjoyment on the water and the golf courses along the coast between here and St. Augustine, Mr. Harding arrived here this noon on Senator Frelinghuysen's houseboat Victoria.

Somewhat elaborate preparations made here to entertain the President-elect were abandoned at the last minute in response to earnest representations from the houseboat. Instead of being met by a flotilla of yachts and seaplanes at the entrance to Lake Worth to be conducted to a landing point, the houseboat, coming from Fort Pierce, slipped unobtrusively up to a private dock a mile or so from the hotel, and hardly a score of persons saw Mr. Harding disembark.

The President-elect and his companions had luncheon at a villa occupied by Joseph Riter, a relative by marriage of Henry P. Fletcher, former Ambassador to Mexico, who is one of Senator Frelinghuysen's guests. Following a round of golf at the Country Club, Mr. Harding attended a dinner in honor of the sixty-second birthday of Harry M. Daugherty, his pre-convention manager. The Victoria will leave tomorrow on the last lap of the cruise to Miami.

Mr. Harding already shows the benefit of his rest. He has given his four days almost solely to recreation and even gave up his plan to work on his inaugural address. This, it is expected, will be postponed until after the President-elect returns to St. Augustine the latter part of the week, when he will resume conferences on Cabinet matters and administration policies.

Five or six men have been invited to St. Augustine for conference, and his present plans for his last month here call for mornings to be devoted to correspondence and conferences, afternoons to recreation and evenings to his inaugural address.

While it is generally accepted that the name of Hoover is no longer on the President-elect's tentative slate for Secretary of Interior, suggestions coming from Republican leaders that a Senator be taken into the Cabinet have served to renew speculation as to whether one result of the cruise of the Victoria will be an invitation to Senator Fall, who is a guest with Harding, to enter the Cabinet. Mr. Fall has four years to serve in the Senate, and it is understood that at the end of that period he would like to retire to private life.

In view of Mr. Fall's known preference for Root for Secretary of State, he is thought to have no aspiration to take that post. His name has been discussed, however, in connection with the Interior Department, and with Hoover apparently eliminated, Senator Fall now becomes one of the strong possibilities for that position.

Mr. Harding probably will not be ready to make known his Cabinet selections for another month. Final decision, it is believed, will not be reached until after the President-elect returns to St. Augustine and gets in close touch with the situation.

'ACTUAL' HOME RULE IS MILLER'S IDEA

Governor Says He Hopes to See City Real Partner in Unified Traction Lines.

WOULD SHARE IN EARNINGS

Confident, He Declares, People Will Endorse His Plan After Full Consideration.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 27.—"Actual home rule instead of the theoretical kind," which, as Governor Miller views it, has resulted from "loose thinking," is what the Governor has in mind to accomplish if the Legislature subscribes to the plan outlined in his special message on the New York City transit situation.

Even before the welding of the subways, elevated lines and surface cars into a unified and municipally owned transit system, as the plan contemplates that they ultimately should be, the Governor hopes to see the city an actual partner in traction earnings as well as in the cost of maintenance, with representation on the executive boards of the operating companies.

Governor Miller expressed these and other hopes in an interview at the Executive Mansion this afternoon. He added that he was not disturbed by the clamor of opposition that has arisen in New York, and declared his firm conviction that his plan, once it was understood, would win approval among the people who would be immediately affected by it.

In contrast with the attitude of Mayor Hylan and that of other New York City officials, Mayor William J. Wallin of Yonkers called on Governor Miller at the Executive Mansion this afternoon to inquire if there was some way in which the plan broached in the Governor's message could be made applicable to the city of Yonkers, Hastings and some of the Westchester County cities along the Sound, which depend partly on surface lines as a means of communication with New York City. Mr. Wallin pointed out that a majority of the lines that maintain this traffic are controlled by companies operating in New York City, most of them by the Third Avenue Railroad Company.

Links Westchester With New York.

"Our Westchester system in reality is so closely interwoven with the New York City system, both physically and financially, as to virtually constitute part of it," said Mayor Wallin. "It is entirely impracticable, as I see it, to have it regulated apart from the regulation of the New York City lines and by a separate body. At present we have to do business both with the New York City Public Service Commission and the up-State commission. The situation will be even more difficult and the regulation more burdensome when, as we hope, the subway will soon be extended to Yonkers and beyond, we bearing our proper share of the necessary expenditures."

"Of course, I have been giving thought to this matter, which is timely and interesting and which I am glad you brought to my attention," said the Governor, "but I shall have to give it further consideration. I shall want to talk to you again about this, and in the meantime I would recommend that you call the attention of the legislative committees which will have to deal with this legislation to what you have just told me. There are sections of Long Island that may be similarly situated."

WANTS TWO-PARTY SYSTEM

He Says It Is Essential to Perpetuity of Our Government.

URGES WOMEN TO JOIN ONE

He Condemns Their Attempt to Defeat Wadsworth for "Standing for His Principles."

SPEECH SHOCKS MEMBERS

Mrs. Catt, Replying, Asserts It Convinced Her of Earlier Reports of Plot to Wreck League.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 27.—Governor Nathan L. Miller told the members of the New York State League of Women Voters in a speech here tonight that the league had no excuse for existence. In a speech at the banquet at the Hotel Ten Eyck, held in connection with the league's annual convention, the Governor declared that groups, not organized as a political party, constituted a menace to the institutions of the republic.

He asserted that the attempt of a non-party group to exercise political power was an evil, because it sought by intimidation or by promise of political support to gain the support of public officials, either legislative or administrative, for measures which might not be for the public interest. He declared that the league could not be nonpartisan, as it claimed to be, and said it was not nonpartisan at the last election. He referred to its attempt to defeat Senator Wadsworth, and said he regarded the failure of the attempt to punish a man for standing for his principles as the most hopeful recent sign of the vitality of American institutions.

Not content with this criticism of the league as an organization, Governor Miller made it clear that he was opposed to most of the so-called social welfare legislation which the league has advocated. He referred specifically to the law forbidding the employment of women at night in certain lines, the proposal for health insurance, and suggestions for old age pensions and unemployment insurance. The Governor said that provision for old age, unemployment and illness should be matters for the thrift and foresight of each individual instead of its being a function of the State to guarantee each individual a comfortable old age, regardless of his thrift, or to put a premium upon illness.

The Governor, who went to the banquet against the advice of his physician, was suffering from a sore throat, which made his utterances a trifle husky. For the most part his speech was received in dead silence, with here and there a burst of derisive laughter, which was counteracted in only a slight degree by handclapping by two or three women.

Only Once Applauded in Speech.

Only once was the Governor really applauded, aside from the demonstration of courtesy which greeted his entrance. That was when he referred to the fact that women had been thrown out of employment by the night work statute and quoted an unnamed officer of the league as telling him that her desire was to throw women out of employment in industry and back to bearing and rearing babies.

"I assert that the individual woman herself has the right to say whether she shall bear and rear babies," the Governor said.

The applause which followed was hearty and long continued. Governor Miller rose to leave at the end of his speech, saying that his physician had directed him not to remain longer than was necessary. Mrs. Frank A. Vanderlip, Chairman of the League, who was presiding, spoke to him, and the Governor nodded and resumed his seat. Mrs. Vanderlip then announced that the Governor had remained to hear the answer to his argument, which, she said, would be made by Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, President of the International Suffrage Alliance and Honorary President of the National League of Women Voters, which she is credited with having founded.

Mrs. Catt said she was glad that Governor Miller had told the members of the league his frank opinion concerning them. Most misunderstandings, she said, were caused by ignorance, and she would now tell Governor Miller what the members of the League of Women Voters thought of themselves.

Mrs. Catt Sees Conspiracy.

In making what amounted to a charge of conspiracy for the destruction of the League of Women Voters by Republican and Democratic leaders, Mrs. Catt said she had heard the report before that "late lamented election," but had believed it merely an idle rumor. She intimated that she was now convinced of its truth, and told the following story:

A woman prominent in the Republican national organization called upon her just before election and told her that the league had been captured by the Democrats, Mrs. Catt said. This Republican woman, she continued, said the future of the country depended upon the election of a Republican President, and that, therefore, she could no longer support the league. Half an hour later,

Mrs. Catt said, a Democratic woman, prominent in the national organization of that party, called and said the league had been captured by the Republicans, and that she considered the election of a Democratic President vital. Mrs. Catt said that the coincidence was striking, and intimated that the two almost simultaneous visits indicated prearrangement.

Governor Miller's speech shattered the order of the program, and the other speakers, among whom were Mrs. F. Louis Slade, regional director of the league; Mrs. Ella A. Boole, President of the Women's Christian Temperance Union; Mrs. Milton L'Ecluse of the Association of Collegiate Alumnae, and others spoke only briefly.

Governor Miller, after preliminary remarks referring to his pleasure at the invitation to address the league, said in part:

No Place for Women's League.

"Now, I am not going to ask the League of Women Voters to disband, because it is none of my business. This is a free country, and any two or more people have a right to form any kind of a league that they wish, so long, of course, as they obey the law. But I do think that there is no proper place for a league of women voters, precisely as I should say that there was no proper place for a league of men voters.

"I have a very firm conviction that any organization which seeks to exert political power is a menace to our institutions, unless it is organized as a political party. Our institutions were so framed that party government is essential to their perpetuity, and a two-party system, if our representative system is to endure, is necessary. The fundamental theory of our Government is the rule of the majority, and only through a political party representing the majority or as near the majority as that may be possible can you secure an expression of the will of the people, and, therefore, it is that under our system of government the two-party system is essential. Ours would not work if he had, as is the case on the continent of Europe, a number of political parties more nearly balanced, because then you would have the rule of minorities or log-rolling for the accomplishment of selfish purposes, regardless of principle.

"Now, of course, there have grown up in this country a number of parties other than the two great parties, and so it might happen that one of the great parties, successful at an election, might not necessarily represent a majority, and it has happened that a minority vote has elected a President. But all we can get in this world is an approximation, and so I start with the premise that the two-party system, or as near it as we can come to it, is essential for the proper workings of our institutions.

Must Work in Political Party.

"My next proposition is that, if you have the influence you ought to have—and I want to pause here long enough to say that I have the greatest, the highest respect for the ability, the patriotism and the capacity for public service of the high-minded women in this league of yours, and I say to you if you are to exert the influence that your ability and your standing in the community entitles you to exercise, you must do it through the medium of a political party.

"We have had third parties. The Prohibition Party has endured for many years, and I undertake to say, although I know there may be a difference of view upon this subject, that the Prohibition Party did not contribute to an appreciable exent to national prohibition. It came about in spite of and regardless of the efforts of the Prohibition Party, and as a party the Prohibition Party never could have accomplished it, because it was hopelessly and always in a minority. (Derisive titters were heard at this remark.)

"Now, the only way you can have responsible government is through a party. A party has something to work for; and the something to work for, if it is properly organized, is the success of the principles to which it is devoted. Now of course you cannot secure unanimity of opinion as to any great mass of principles. There must be compromises. Every one cannot have his or her way.

"If you are to have concert of action the individual has to subordinate some views to meet the views of the others, and so you accept that set of principles which, for the most part, or as nearly as it is possible to attain, represents your views, and accepting them, you belong, we will say, to one party or the other. And if you do, if you believe in party government, as I do, and in party responsibility as I do, then you will support the candidates whom you believe best fitted and most willing to carry out the principles that you stand for, and instead of voting for individuals you will vote for principles if you wish to accomplish something.

("That is what we do," several women said in stage whispers.)

"So much, now, from the standpoint of being able to exercise the influence in the community that you ought to exercise. One word upon the other side.

"I said that any body, not organized as a political party, which seeks to exert political influence, is a menace. That is a strong statement. Notwithstanding the fact that the two-party system is, as I assert, necessary to the proper working out of our institutions, any group or set of people have a right to differ and to believe that something else is the all-important thing which neither of the two parties stands for, and so those people who believed that prohibition was more important than everything else combined, had a perfect right to organize a political party to bring about the establishment of the thing for which they stood.

"You have a right in a democratic country under free institutions even to establish a political party to change the form of your Government, if you do it in accordance with the methods prescribed by the Constitution under which we live, and you have a right even to organize a political party to accomplish that purpose if you propose to do it in a legal manner. And so you have a right to organize as a political party for the furtherance of any principle or set of principles, and whether you are in a minority or a majority.

"But when, without being organized as a political party, any organization seeks to exert political influence, to coerce officials, either in the legislative or administrative positions to their particular views by intimidation or otherwise, by promise of support at the elections, or by threats, open or covert, of opposition at an election, such an organization in my judgment is a menace to our free institutions and to representative government.

"Now why? Because such an organization is responsible to no one. Because by occupying a position of merely holding the balance of power you can appeal to the weak-kneed and the spineless to carry out that for which you may stand regardless of the public good. It may be that the thing you stand for is in the public interest, but you are not to be the judge of that. No group except through the medium of an organization which can be made responsive and responsible can undertake to exert political power for the purpose of securing the adoption of measures which they favor, or preventing the adoption of measures which they oppose, without in my judgment constituting what I said was a menace to free representative government.

"Because you will see that if a small group having a membership possibly large enough to have the balance of power in an election district is able to influence either members of Congress or members of the State Legislature to vote for or against measures for the purpose of purchasing the votes of the people who hold that balance of power, you have done that which I assert destroys the true representative government, and instead of having a government by majorities you will thus have established a method of securing government by minorities.

"Now, you know I am not saying whether the League of Women Voters undertakes to exert political power or not. The name is in itself significant. I have heard said that you are nonpartisan, and, of course, as an organization for social betterment, as an educational force, nobody can have the slightest objection, but you cannot be non-partisan and seek to exert political power.

Says They Are Not Non-Partisan.

"You were not non-partisan in the last election when you sought to exert political power, and, in my judgment, the signal failure of your effort to punish an official because he had stood for what he thought was right was one of the most hopeful signs that I have seen of the enduring nature of our institutions.

"Now, let me go one step further. I want to refer now concretely to measures that test the question as to whether anybody not constituted as a political party has the right to use or to threaten to use political influence in order to secure the adoption of particular measures. Of course, when you use the term 'social welfare' you immediately arouse all that is best in the nature of every man and woman. You stand for what you believe will promote social welfare. There is a chance for a difference of views as to particular measures.

"Of course there cannot be any chance for a difference of views that anything that will really promote social welfare should be supported, but there is a wide chance for differences of views as to particular measures. And let me illustrate. Take the measures which have been agitated in this State for the last two or three years. Go back of that, if you will, for a moment. Take the night statute for women and children. Nobody could oppose rightfully a statute to protect childhood and to protect maternity. No one could rightfully oppose a statute to conserve the public health. [Applause.]

"But there is great opportunity for a difference of views as to the basis of fact. The courts may decide that a statute is constitutional, but the courts can only decide that a statute is unconstitutional that is beyond the power of the lawmaking body, when there is no conceivable reason for such statute. But the fact that a particular statute might be such that it was possible to assign a reason for it, and that, therefore, the courts would sustain it, is very far from asserting that such a statute ought to be adopted in the wise exercise of legislative power.

"And let me say that the courts have been criticised much for declaring statutes of the class that we are speaking about unconstitutional, and yet, when you search the books you will find that these decisions are very rare.

Attacks Night Work Statute.

"Now take your night work statute. I personally know and I have no doubt every woman here knows that that statute has done great wrong and great injury to many women whose health d[id] not need to be protected, at least with respect to the children which she would never bear. Our Government was founded to preserve liberty. This liberty we have a right to invade when the health and well-being of the community is at stake. But I say that in the enactment of such statutes regard should be had so that they be so framed or so administered that they could be applied in truth and in fact to those cases where the facts warranted their application, and not to women to whom they were never intended to apply and who have been by that statute deprived of the opportunity of earning a comfortable livelihood.

"I know scores of such cases. Now, it is all very well for those who have never had to earn a living to say that it is a bad thing for women to work at night, but if your lot happens to be placed where you did have to earn your living, you would think, I should judge, that it was mighty hard if after you had passed the child-bearing age you should be driven out of a comfortable employment at night in order to protect your future offspring.

"Of the three statutes, or measures, which, I should say, were labeled social welfare in this State, the first was a compulsory health insurance law. That was advocated, I believe, by your organization. It certainly was advocated by similar organizations. I believe that there is not such insistence upon it now as there was. It was a proposal for the State, by setting up a huge administrative machine, to undertake the business of insuring the health of those engaged in useful employments. And of course, if that were to be adopted, right along with it old age pensions and unemployment insurance would be a logical and a consistent development.

Premium Upon Sickness.

"Now I assert that the function of the State is to prevent sickness and not to put a premium upon getting sick. I assert that it is the function of the State not to make life comfortable, not to remove those cares which the sentimentalists say afflict the poor working people, not to make it certain that, regardless of their industry or thrift, they will be taken care of whether they are employed or not. I say that if you are to have the stimulus which is necessary for human progress you must leave to the individual himself the provision for his old age or for his unemployment or for his sickness.

"The eight-hour statute—you had a nine-hour statute which drove women from the subway or the elevated and surface lines in New York, where they were getting comfortable employment and supporting their families, to become scrubwomen, and on their appeal the Legislature repealed that statute, and I believe that you did not strenuously oppose the repeal. But it was advocated, notwithstanding that experience, under the guise of health, that we should have a general eight-hour law applicable to all industries. Now, the truth of it was that most of the influences back of that measure were not advocating it as a health measure at all. The ground upon which it was advocated was a mere subterfuge, because that was the only ground under which it could be constitutionally supported.

"A prominent officer in your own organization told me that what she desired was to drive these women out of their employment and back into the home, bearing and rearing babies. Well, I say that the woman herself has a right to decide whether she will raise or bear babies. And I say that the women in this country at the very time when their sisters are receiving political equality cannot well say to them that their function is exclusively in the home.

"Now I understand that great activity is to be undertaken for certain Federal measures. I do not know as I ought to take time to discuss them."

"Oh, yes," said one of the audience.

"I will try to be very brief," Governor Miller continued. "We have three or four Federal projects under way, one Federal aid to education, the Smith-Towner bill, I believe it is called. Another, to occupational schools, vocational schools, the Smith-Hewes bill.

"Now it is a mighty easy thing to go to Congress and to get Congress to embark on these enterprises, because Congress is a long ways from the taxpayers, and there is another thing which makes it mighty easy just now, and that is that but a few States will foot the bills—and the State of New York will foot a third of the bill.

Says Congress Is Easily Moved.

"And it is a mighty easy thing to get the votes of a majority in Congress from States which will not have to foot the bill to pledge the United States Government to any enterprise for which a reasonable excuse can be afforded. Now they have started out on these measures on the assumption, because otherwise they would have encountered such opposition as doubtless would have defeated them, that they were not going to interfere with the functions of the State or the localities. They simply appropriate a certain sum and the State or the locality duplicates it. And it is administered through the State or the locality administration supervised by Washington supervisors.

"Now, what does this mean? It means, in the first place, that the money which is required for these purposes will be largely used in overhead administrative expense, and it means that by degrees you will build up in Washington a centralized Government which will rival the late Imperial German Empire. The only difference will be that you may not have a strong man at the helm. If you have a weak man it will fall to pieces of its own weight, and if you have a strong man let your imagination tell you what will happen.

"These measures which you are interested in I hope will all come in time, but I want to say to you that we are living in a very practical world, and when you consider the problem of what will produce the greatest happiness to the greatest number, when you consider that the taxes in the State of New York just for the maintenance of the State Government cost today for a family of five $65 and more; that does not include the local taxes; which are many times greater; it does not include what we pay to maintain the Federal Government, which costs ten times as much, and you can see that there is a weight of taxation bearing down upon the shoulders of the people of this country from which they need to be relieved if you are to promote the greatest happiness of the greatest number. I am sorry to have talked to you so long."

Mrs. Catt Is Applauded.

The feeling which most of the women present had concerning Governor Miller's plain words, which they had kept in check out of respect to his position, was made evident by the strength of the applause when Mrs. Catt rose to reply. It was seven minutes before the veteran woman suffrage leader could begin.

"I want to tell you why Governor Miller has suspicions of us," she said. "The League of Women Voters constitute the remains of that army which for fifty years in the State of New York fought the battle for the enfranchisement of their sex.

"They stood fast until the State of New York caught up with them, and until the nation caught up with them. The majority surrendered, but a minority remains, still bitter because we are women.

"It is true that this is a Government of parties. True that we have two dominant parties which administer, enforce and make the laws. The League of Women Voters has urged women to become enrolled voters because we realise that within the party alone can we secure the nomination of responsible candidates and somewhat progressive party platforms. We hope to have more success than the unfortunate men of the past have had.

"I do not recall one time in history when a great reform was brought about by a political party. The Republican Party was a group before it was a party. Here we have prohibition and neither one of the dominant parties ever mentioned it in its platform.

"We were a group of non-voters ourselves not so very long ago. Now we are citizens, as are the members of the Anti-Saloon League, the League to Enforce Peace and the Citizens Union. I do not believe that any group honestly trying to get better Government is a menace to the country. No political party will ever take up an idea until that idea has grown so strong that unless it takes it up it will lose votes. Let us stand together until we say ourselves that we have finished the job."

Move to Widen League.

A movement for the affiliation of women's civic organizations with the New York State League of Women Voters was started at the convention. Representatives of the Girl Scouts, the Camp Fire Girls and women clubs from Albany, Syracuse, Poughkeepsie, Geneva, Glens Falls and Utica were present and favored the proposal.

Upon the suggestion of Miss Kathryn Starbuck, the Secretary, the convention approved the drafting of a bill to legalize the drawing of women for jury duty with the same qualifications and exemptions as men. Legislation for direct citizenship for married women was advocated by Mrs. Charles Noel Edge, whose husband is not a citizen. It was decided to support the bill which might be felt to serve this purpose best.

Miss Mary Garrett Hay, Chairman of the New York City League of Women Voters, reported that this organization was considering the advisability of indorsing a candidate for Mayor in the coming municipal campaign. Although the league has heretofore confined itself to opposing certain candidates, Miss Hay said she believed the time had come for it to take a more positive attitude.

"We are not apologizing for our fight against Senator Wadsworth at the last election," said Miss Hay. "We have no criticism for those who voted for him. All we believe in is conscience in politics."

Mrs. Frank A. Vanderlip was placed in renomination for Chairman and her unanimous re-election is expected tomorrow. The other nominations were as follows:

First Vice Chairman—Mrs. Gordon Norrie, Staatsburg.
Second Vice Chairman—Mrs. George D. Pratt, Albany.
Third Vice Chairman—Mrs. Samuel Dens, Utica.
Fourth Vice Chairman—Mrs. Dexter Rumsey, Buffalo.
Treasurer—Mrs. Charles Noel Edge, New York City.
Recording Secretary—Mrs. Lieber Whittic, Syracuse.
Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. Jesse Lynch Williams, New York City.
Board of Directors—Mrs. Raymond Brown, Plandome; Miss Mary E. Breier, White Plains; Mrs. J. Sloat Fassett, Elmira; Mrs. Alfred Lewis, Geneva; Mrs. Daniel McCoel, Batavia.

5-CENT FARE CAMPAIGN URGED BY SCHNEIDER

Cleveland Democracy Applauds Mention of Issue for Fall Election Drive.

A plea for a business man for Mayor of New York was voiced last night by County Clerk William F. Schneider, head of the Cleveland Democracy, at the annual dinner of that organization at the Hotel Astor. The 500-odd diners applauded vigorously when he indicated that the Democrats should seize the five cent fare issue for their campaign this Fall.

"A contract is a contract," he said, "whether it is between business men or the City of New York and the traction companies. When the City of New York gave up its streets above and below the surface and the princely values of those franchises to the traction companies who agreed in turn that they would carry every passenger for five cents, it meant to stand by its contract.

"That contract must continue or if the traction companies are weary of their bargain, let them have their properties appraised at their actual physical value. If the city is not allowed to purchase them, a corporation can quickly be formed that would be glad to take over all these properties and run them for a five cent fare and make money, Hedley, Hedges and Garrison to the contrary notwithstanding."

Mr. Schneider declared that the independent voter swings the elections in New York. In national and State affairs, he said, the independent Democrats of the Cleveland Democracy have always supported Democratic candidates, although it has not been able at all times to endorse the municipal candidates.

Other speakers at the dinner were Frederick A. Wallis, Commissioner of Immigration; Nathaniel Philips, head of the Foreign Born Citizens' League, and Mrs. Julia Sanders, a Tammany leader in the Ninth Assembly District.

FIRE AT PORT CHESTER CLUB

Blaze Thought to Have Started in Locker Ruins Clubhouse.

Special to The New York Times.

PORT CHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 27.—Fire of mysterious origin ruined the clubhouse of the Port Chester Country Club at noon today, and gave the firemen an hour's hard work to prevent sparks from setting alight the Apawamis Club, the American Yacht Club and several nearby residences. The fire was discovered by Frank Doeberl, professional golfer of the club, who with several other members was on the course.

Mr. Doeberl and his companions ran to the clubhouse to save the collection of trophies in the reception room, but the flames had gained such headway that they were unable to enter the building. The fire is believed to have started in the locker of one of the members in the basement of the club. The flames shot through the stair-well to the roof within a few seconds after Mr. Doeberl saw smoke pouring out of one of the lower windows.

Golf clubs and suits of more than fifty members, which were in their lockers in the basement were destroyed. The clubhouse was in the south end of Port Chester, overlooking Long Island Sound, and formerly was a residence. No estimate of the damage was made.

SEEKS ROTATION OF JUDGES.

Senator Duggan Offers Bill to Meet Justice Ford's Criticisms.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 27.—Senator William Duggan of New York has introduced a bill which provides for rotation of Justices in the various parts of the Supreme Court and the Appellate Division in the First Department, which includes the counties of New York and the Bronx.

The bill is designed to correct alleged abuses called to the attention of the Governor and the lawmakers two weeks ago by Justice John Ford of the Supreme Court, who charged that gross favoritism was displayed by the Justices of the Appellate Division in the assignment of Judges to sit in Special Terms, Parts I., II. and III., to which he referred as the "patronage parts" of the court. If the Duggan bill goes through, all the Justices will have their turn in the appointment of referees and court patronage.

Senator Duggan said tonight that the rotation system was established in all other judicial departments of the State.

REPUBLICANS PLAN 5-CENT FARE FIGHT

If Governor Miller Refuses to Modify Program They Will Make It Election Issue.

CONCESSIONS NOT LIKELY

LaGuardia Advises Republicans to Put Up Independents for Legislature.

Satisfied that the plan of Governor Miller for the appointment of a commission of three members to handle the traction problem in New York City will get through the Legislature, local Republican leaders discussed yesterday methods for keeping Mayor Hylan and the Democratic organization from seizing the issue of an eight-cent subway fare for use in the coming Mayoralty campaign. An effort will be made by the local Republicans to have the Governor modify his plan of having the proposed commission take all authority over traction matters from the city officials. Failing this, the party will take the Governor at his word that the New York City Mayoralty does not concern him, and go before the people on a five-cent fare issue of its own.

The first suggestion that will be made to the Governor is that he agree to have his commission of three members made elective and not appointive. In this way, the leaders believe, the question of interference with the city's right of home rule will be eliminated and it will also serve to convince the voters that the Governor, and through him the Republican Party, is not committed to a higher fare. The leaders frankly admit, however, that they do not expect the Governor will recede from his program, no matter what arguments are brought to bear from a political standpoint. The local leaders are also finding some comfort in the fact that the election is still nine months away and that much can happen in that time.

One matter that is giving the politicians concern is that many business men of Republican Party faith are favorably impressed with the Governor's proposition and believe it should have a trial, regardless of its political effect. Some of these men have told the leaders that they would look with serenity upon the re-election of Mayor Hylan if there was a prospect of the traction muddle being finally settled.

LaGuardia Favors a Fight.

Threats of a revolt in the Republican organization did not make much headway yesterday. Aldermanic President LaGuardia continued to voice disapproval, even going so far as to advise Republicans to enter the primaries as candidates against city Assemblymen who voted for the Miller plan. The Aldermanic President urged that opponents of the plan organize for a united fight against it. County Chairman Samuel S. Koenig said he was not getting excited, and that it seemed advisable to wait until the bill had been actually drawn.

Among other suggestions that will be made to the Governor in an effort to get him to modify his measure and "take the curse off the home rule violation," as one leader expressed it, is that the Board of Estimate be allowed to retain its power to approve contracts, and that the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court be empowered to act in the capacity of an umpire on points in dispute between the board and the commission. When the bill has been drawn and presented to the Legislature the Republican leaders from the various boroughs will hold conferences to decide what is to be done regarding candidates for the Legislature next Fall.

Republican Senators and Assemblymen from New York City may unite to vote against the bill for the political effect it would have upon the local election, although it is understood that they will support it if the order goes forth from the bosses of the party that they must line up behind it. It is figured that with all the city legislators voting against the measure, there would still be enough up-State votes in both houses to get it through. There are twelve New York City Senators and twenty-eight from up-State. Only twenty-six votes are needed to get it through the Senate. There are eighty-six up-State Assemblymen and but seventy-six votes are needed in the Assembly to pass it.

"There will be no revolt in the Legislature against the Governor's program," an up-State leader declared yesterday. "The Governor has a united party behind him, and there will be no attempt at defiance."

Aldermanic President LaGuardia declared that the Governor would have a hard time keeping the question of an increased fare out of politics. "Every public question, and particularly the traction situation in New York City, is a political question, he said, and will be so considered.

LaGuardia Analyses Plan.

"Of course," he said, "it is quite in keeping with Governor Miller's views to control not only traction in New York City, but even public officers by his plans for the repeal of the primaries. The repeal of the primaries is a corollary to traction control. That would indeed take the protest away from the people and put subservient, pliable, willing men in office to look after the interests of the traction companies. Here are some of the things that Governor Miller's plan would accomplish:

"Take over defunct insolvent companies with all their water, obsolete equipment and worthless book assets.

"Take away from the City of New York every control, supervision and voice in traction matters.

"Abrogate all rights in the City of New York in its subway contracts in which the city has invested about $300,000,000.

"Appoint a Public Service Commission chosen by the Governor and responsible to him alone. With the repeal of the primary, the Governor to be selected by a handpicked convention. Hence no direct responsibility to the people and the traction contract perpetuates itself.

"It contemplates an increased fare. The proposed new commission is to assume the powers under the Public Service Commission law and the Rapid Transit act, and to be 'independent of municipal contract, regardless of the provisions of local consents or prior contracts.'

"In order to protect the interests of the City of New York I recommend that civic organizations, taxpayers' associations, churches, clubs and organizations of every kind communicate with their Assemblymen and Senators and ascertain the views of their representatives in the State Legislature, that co-operation be established among the various societies and organizations in each Assembly district to give this matter the study that it requires and to obtain from their representatives in Albany an unequivocal declaration of their stand. In cases where the representative does not give sufficient assurance that he will protect the interests of the City of New York, arrangements should be made to select men and women who will specialize on this important matter and prepare them for primary contests."

Real Estate Board Praises Miller.

The Real Estate Board of New York, through its President, Stephen N. Tyng, sent this telegram to Governor Miller:

"Your straightforward and courageous statement concerning the transit subject, and particularly the recommendation that the matter shall be solved without ulterior motives, either political or otherwise, has made a deep impression on the Real Estate Board of New York. We feel confident the people of New York City, the real tax-paying citizens, will support you unqualifiedly. Any problem approached from so high a standpoint cannot fail of solution, and this board is prepared to support such measures as may be found necessary to carry out a program divorced entirely of improper influences, either political or financial."

Legislators who have opened fire on the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company and who are endeavoring to get the road out of the control of the Federal receivership, learned yesterday that Colonel Thimothy S. Williams, who was supposed to have resigned as President of the company and its subsidiaries, is still in office, although without salary or duties. Withdrawal of the receivership, it was declared, would result in the company being turned back to his control.

CITY CLUB ASSAILS MILLER'S FARE PLAN

After Investigating Its Operation, Says Service-at-Cost Scheme Is Impossible Here.

A report by the Committee on Public Service of the City Club says that Governor Miller's traction program is a flexible fare or service-at-cost plan under the guise of public regulation, and that it necessarily will fail unless the valuation of the traction companies' properties is conservative and is accepted by the public.

The basis of this conclusion, it is stated, is an exhaustive study by the committee of the manner in which the flexible fare idea worked in practice, tracing it from its origin in Cleveland in 1910 under the régime of Tom L. Johnson down to the present. This study, the committee says, gives rise to questions and doubts, and the impression is left that this city will have to look further "for the open sesame to its traction millennium." A summary of the report contains this criticism of the Governor's plan:

"There is nothing in his message to indicate that his proposed commission's inquiry would be directed along broad enough lines to form the basis of an adequate transit policy. His idea seems to be a unified transportation system under State control operated on a self-sustaining basis. This overemphasizes the fiscal and State regulation aspects of the traction situation. It does not go to the heart of the problem from the point of view of municipal development."

It is pointed out that flexible fares cannot be applied in any community except where all traction lines are combined and operated as a unit, and that under the competitive conditions existing here between thirty-five different operating companies the flexible fare plan [is] impossible. It is explained that if an eight-cent fare were charged on the surface lines traffic would be thrown to the rapid transit lines if the fare on the latter remained at 5 cents, and the whole scheme would thus be thrown out of joint. The non-paying lines would be worse off than before. No group of security holders, it is said, would consent to give up whatever advantage it had, and a consolidation, therefore, would have to be based on a plan giving every group the price asked for its securities. Concerning the Governor's plan, which includes a complete consolidation of all the lines, the committee says:

"But the Governor does not explain how this consolidation is to be effected, except with the consent of the groups themselves. Obviously the commission will be in a position to surrender public rights only. It will not be able to bring about a surrender of private rights, except by negotiation and persuasion."

Attention is called to the fact that the city planned in the subway contracts to fix a low fare as a means of spreading out population and relieving congested conditions from which the city has suffered for fifty years. Therefore the city pledged hundreds of millions of dollars in the maintenance of this policy. The committee then states:

"The flexible fare scheme would reverse this policy and would allow fares to go up to any point which might be necessary to make the traction lines self-sustaining, absolutely regardless of the effect on the community's welfare. Under such a plan the companies would lose their character as public utilities and fall into the position of private enterprises privileged to use the streets for the purpose of exploiting for private gain the transportation needs of the public up to the full amount of the return upon the investment fixed in the contracts."

What is described as the most important of all of the objections to the flexible fare plan is the difficulty of preserving the proper incentives to economy and efficiency in operation. Proper schemes for restoring this incentive, it is said, have not been worked out, and this is the despair of the whole flexible fare program. The club takes issue with the Governor on the question of home rule, and maintains that transit is a local problem, and that no plan formulated by such a commission as the one suggested by the Governor should take effect until after it received the approval of the Board of Estimate or of the voters of the city at a referendum election.

The members of the City Club's committee are Henry C. Wright, Chairman; John P. Fox, Harry G. Friedman, Richard C. Harrison, Dean Langmuir and Delos F. Wilcox.

GENERAL ELECTRIC CUTS PAY

20,000 Workers Are Reduced 10 to 15 Per Cent.

Special to The New York Times.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Jan. 27.—The General Electric Company cuts its employes 10 to 15 per cent., which becomes effective here about the 1st of February, according to an announcement made tonight. All day workers are reduced 10 per cent., while the piece workers are reduced 15 per cent. The cut affects about 20,000 employes.

The workers in conference with the company a short time ago agreed to accept the plan of the company. In addition to the cut, the weekly bonus will also be dropped. The men who put in a full week of forty-eight hours got forty-nine hours, and it was decided to drop the extra hour in the new plan.

The company makes provision for 1,500 or more employes laid off. It will take most of them back and provide steady employment for all under the new ruling.

New Yorkers Reach Havana on Cruise

The White Star liner Megantic, which left New York Jan. 22, with 400 passengers on a special West Indian cruise, arrived at Havana Wednesday morning, the company announced yesterday. Among her passengers are Mrs. Rodman Wanamaker, Karl Kitchen, Lewis L. Delafield and George Whelan.

BRINGS COAL STRIKE TO FRONT IN TRIAL

Prosecution in West Virginia Murder Case Shows Prisoners Have Union Lawyers.

21 DEFENDANTS LOCKED UP

Judge Holds Bail for Mingo County Men Covers Appearance Only on First Day.

WILLIAMSON, W. Va., Jan. 27.—The industrial strike in Mingo County was brought to the front late today in the trial of twenty-one men charged with the killing of Albert C. Felts in the Matewan battle, May 19 last.

Counsel for the State read into the record that J. J. Coniff of Wheeling and Harold W. Houston of Charleston, attorneys for the defense, were employed by District 17, United Mine Workers of America, while Thomas L. Felts, General Manager of the Baldwin Felts Detective Agency, called by the State, testified that his brother, Albert C. Felts, was at Matewan at the instance of coal operators to evict miners from company houses the day the battle occurred.

These things were brought out when a question arose concerning the eligibility of a member of the miners' union or of a coal operator for jury service in the case.

Julius Perry, a talesman, had been examined and it seemed would be accepted as a juror, when the State entered an objection on the ground that he was a member of the union. Mr. Coniff answered that the union was not on trial and there could be no reason why the talesman should be disqualified for jury service on account of union membership.

Say Union Is Involved.

Messrs. Damron and Marcum, replying for the State, asserted that the Matewan fight was the result of the industrial controversy in the field, with the union on one side and the coal operators on the other. Also, they said, the union was aiding the defense, and this was sufficient to disqualify Perry.

Judge Bailey said he wanted to be assured that the industrial conflict would not be brought up in the trials before he ruled on the eligibility of the talesman.

Mr. Coniff declared that he did not believe the matter would be mentioned, whereupon he was asked if it were not true that he had been employed by the union. The attorney said he would answer if it were read into the records. Then Messrs. Houston and Coniff were sworn and the former testified that he and his colleague were employed by District No. 17, United Mine Workers.

Mr. Felts was then called to testify why his brother was in Matewan the day of the fight.

Of thirty-two talesmen examined today six were accepted tentatively for jury duty before court adjourned. A majority of those refused were found to be relatives of the defendants. A few said they had formed an opinion, and one or two had served on the Grand Jury which returned the indictments.

Defendants Locked Up.

The defendants were put in the county jail tonight, and will be kept there until court opens in the morning. This action was on a ruling of Judge Bailey, who decided that the $10,000 bond under which the accused were released last September was for their appearance in court on the day set for trial, and that until the trial is over they must remain strictly within the jurisdiction of the court.

Sheriff Pinson and his Deputies refused to say tonight whether they found any armed person trying to enter the courtroom today.

Deputy Sheriffs guarded every entrance to the Court House, to search for arms all persons who entered. Colonel Herman Hall, commanding the Federal troops in Williamson, took additional precaution to aid the civil authorities in preserving peace. An extra guard was mounted, with an officer constantly on duty in addition to the officer of the day.

While the talesmen were being examined a report spread rapidly that additional Federal forces were to be brought here to maintain order during the trial. The report was denied by Colonel Hall, who said it probably arose from the strengthening of the guard at the Court House this morning.

The monotony of today's proceedings was relieved when the clerk called the name of Anse Hatfield. Attorney Damron volunteered the information that Anse Hatfield was dead, but two talesmen stepped forward, each declaring his name was Anse Hatfield. They were excused until it could be determined just which Anse Hatfield had been called.

SCIENCE TEACHERS LOSE.

Board of Education May Ignore Their Certificates of Illness.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 27.—The New York City Board of Education has the right to refuse recognition to certificates of Christian Science practitioners when presented by teachers looking for refunds for sick leave absence, the State Board of Education has decided.

The decision was made on an appeal by Albert F. Gilmore, who described himself as "Christian Science Committee on Publication for the State of New York." Mr. Gilmore, on behalf of teachers who are members of the Christian Science Church, applied to the Board of Education to amend its bylaws or to take such other action as would result in the recognition and acceptance of certificates of Christian Science practitioners. The board referred the matter to the Board of Superintendents, which decided that the certificates should not be accepted. Mr. Gilmore appealed to the State Education Department over the protest of the Corporation Counsel's office of New York City.

CALDER FEARS NEED OF HOUSING SUBSIDY

Hopes European Methods Can Be Avoided—Conference Opens in Washington.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The United States soon will face the necessity of subsidizing housing construction unless steps are taken to afford every facility for private construction to relieve the present shortage, Senator Calder of New York, Chairman of the special Senate committee on reconstruction, declared in an address here today before the National Council of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. The country may be approaching a condition, the Senator added, which will mean the "adoption of European precedents born of the paternalism of monarchies."

Senator Calder's address was made at the opening session of a two days conference of the chamber's national council at which it will undertake to formulate a national program for relief of the present housing shortage. Representatives of the Government, civic bodies and construction interests, as well as industrial leaders from all parts of the country, are attending the conference.

While he was opposed in principle to all income tax exemptions, Senator Calder said he believed that unless all were abolished exemption should be given mortgage investments, in order to bring capital into the mortgage market and stimulate building.

As a means of stabilizing the construction industry and preventing the public's exploitation through combinations between employer and employe, Senator Calder said, he had been giving much thought to legislation which would permit Federal incorporation of trade associations and labor unions and bring them voluntarily under Federal regulation. By this means the "responsibility of groups of employers and employes organized for trade purposes would be fixed, while collective bargaining would become a practical reality through making the bargain a true and binding agreement."

Labor is preparing to go the "full limit in honest co-operation" with capital in the construction of homes to relieve the present shortage, John A. Voll, former President of the Ohio State Federation of Labor, said in an address before the conference.

"It is labor that suffers most when housing facilities are inadequate to meet the living standard of the times," Mr. Voll declared, "and it is for that reason that it will do its share to alleviate the present housing situation."

Conditions brought about by a shortage of homes, the speaker said, produce a "festering sore upon which radicalism feeds," lower the efficiency of labor and if allowed to continue "will bring decay to our national life."

Ernest T. Trigg of Philadelphia, President of the National Federation of Construction Industries, declared that the present housing situation could be relieved if all interests concerned would co-operate in a "fair and proper" way to bring costs down to a "reasonable basis" and justify public confidence in the stability of the housing industry. Upon the adoption of a sound housing program at this time depends the future of American democracy, R. Goodwyn Rhett of Charleston, S. C., a former President of the Chamber of Commerce, declared in an address in which he warned against permitting any "backward step in the nation's standards of living."

HYLAN OFFERS BILL FOR CITY BUS LINES

Measure Regarded as Mayor's Answer to Governor's Rejection of Ownership Plan.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 27.—Mayor Hylan's answer to Governor Miller's rejection of New York City's plan for municipal ownership, operation and maintenance of bus lines was made today by the introduction in the Senate of a bill which would authorize city bus lines. The measure was introduced by Senator Jeremiah Twomey of Brooklyn, sponsor for a similar measure which met defeat in the Legislature last year.

Already acquainted with Governor Miller's opposition to the city's plan, Mayor Hylan and other sponsors for the measure have added a provision, referred to by some at the Capitol as a "joker," to offset possible legislation of a preventive nature. This provides that no law, whether general, public, private or local, "inconsistent" with the provisions of the bus line legislation "shall apply to any stage or omnibus route or bus line" established under the provisions of the proposed new law.

The measure authorizes the Board of Estimate and Apportionment to determine whether the public would be benefited by the establishment of the proposed bus lines. If the board so determines it is empowered by the bill to establish routes and get the bus lines under way.

"The Board of Estimate and Apportionment, notwithstanding any other provision in this act, may authorize the sum or sums which it may deem necessary for the acquisition of buses and other equipment required for the operation of such bus line or lines to be paid out of the proceeds of corporate stock of serial bonds," the bill provides.

"For the purpose of providing the necessary funds for the operation of such buses for the year 1922, the Board of Estimate and Apportionment is authorized to make appropriations to be paid out of the proceeds of special revenue bonds redeemable out of the tax levy of the year 1923."

There is no prospect of the bill being enacted, and its introduction is regarded here as a purely political move.

Insane Murderer Committed for Life

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Jan. 27.—Fadlo Mallack, who shot up a trolley car of the Berkshire Street Railway at Adams on July 22, 1911, killing three persons, was today committed for life to the State Hospital for Criminal Insane at Bridgewater, after a trial that lasted only seventeen minutes. Mallack was indicted in January, 1912, but was committed to the Bridgewater Hospital without trial and has remained there nine years.

by a question as to whether he had read statements from Mr. Whalen, Mayor Hylan's Commissioner of Plants and Structures, and by some New York editors, disputing his assertion that the water has been squeezed out of the traction stocks in New York.

"Yes, I have seen them," said the Governor. "I think what I said was reasonably plain, unless somebody wanted to misunderstand me. Of course, the water has not been squeezed out of the securities in the sense that the securities have been retired. The securities are outstanding. I was talking about market values. If anybody will take the trouble to get a list of securities of various traction companies and compute their market values, it won't require any great expert to determine at once that those values are necessarily away below actual intrinsic values.

"For example, the underlying bonds issued upon public authority, the money for which concededly went into the roads, are selling for less than 50 cents on the dollar.

"That is what I was talking about. And the fact that the securities are so low and that the underlying bonds are selling at 50 cents on the dollar presents a situation that should be taken advantage of. Nothing can happen that won't be a help to these security holders.

"It is, therefore, a situation in which the city may make advantageous terms, just to be sure, but favorable terms to the city.

"Now, of course, what is bound to happen, if the thing drifts, is one of two things. Either the properties continue to deteriorate as they are until they are virtually scrapped, or the owners of the underlying bonds will insist upon having the thing go to a foreclosure sale. And if it ever goes to a foreclosure sale, and the owners of the underlying bonds become the owners, as they would, the opportunity of the city to deal with them would probably be passed.

"Now, of course, this talk of excluding the city, like this talk of the watered securities, is more of what I have characterized as 'loose thinking,' and 'loose talk.' What I am thinking of ultimately—I say 'ultimately'—I would not think it would be very far distant—the thing must be put on a basis in which the city is an actual partner.

"It is a partner now in the sense that it has its money in there; but an actual partnership in the earnings of the roads and very likely some place in the directorate of these operating companies by representation of the city on their board—actual home rule, in other words, instead of the theoretical kind that doesn't exist, is what I am thinking of."

"This measure of yours and your discussion of this question, as you have probably observed, have created a furore in New York City, where there is talk of mass meetings to protest and all sorts of things," was suggested.

"That is not the cause of my tired feeling," said the Governor with a wan smile, referring to a temporary indisposition that was keeping him confined to the Executive Mansion. "I am neither alarmed nor disturbed on that account. It takes the people some time to think things over."

"Will you do anything in the way of propaganda or public speaking to offset 'loose' talk and thinking?" was asked.

"Not unless I feel better than I do now," the Governor replied. "I am relying upon the way this thing will work out to justify it."

In an interview in the Executive Chamber at the Capitol earlier in the day Governor Miller answered other questions relating to the transit situation and his plan.

"Will the transit commission for New York City have power to change subway contracts without negotiation?" he was asked.

"The commission must proceed by negotiations, of course," was the reply.

"Would all the parties to the contract have to be consulted in the negotiations, or could the State body consider only the State and the railroads?"

"Generally, both parties, city and the railroads, would have to be considered. It depends on what particular matter is under consideration, but in all negotiations the people's interests must be safeguarded."

"The question has been raised as to whether the commission would have the power to abrogate subway contracts, irrespective as to whether the city had the right to enter into those agreements," the Governor was told.

"Of course, nothing can be accomplished without agreements," he answered. "First, facts must be ascertained; second, a plan must be formulated, and, third, the parties interested must agree on the plan. Those are the logical steps that would undoubtedly occur in solving the problem."

The Governor declared, with a smile, that it might be possible that the men chosen as members of that proposed new transit commission would "not care to stay" after they had done their work in solving the present New York City problem.

A TRIBUTE TO PUDDING

Captain Cullingworth, a Federal officer who weighed 400 pounds, once presented President Cleveland with a pudding.

Apropos to the Captain's huge proportions, and his own generous size, the President exclaimed:

"Captain Cullingworth, it takes big men to run this government—and puddings make big men!"

An opinion heartily endorsed by those who have enjoyed the delicious puddings served at CHILDS.

Rice, tapioca and cornstarch puddings—a trio of delectable desserts.

MORSE OFFERS NEW BETHLEHEM AUDIT

Proposes to Walsh That Three Firms Go Over Books to Clear Up Schwab Voucher.

SERVICE TO BE GIVEN FREE

Urges That Facts Be Disentangled —Schwab Wants to Know More About Offer Before Replying.

Perley Morse & Co., certified accountants, yesterday sent a letter to Chairman Walsh of the Congressional Committee on Shipping Board Operations, proposing a joint audit of the books of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation. The proposal is made to clear up all doubt concerning the Charles M. Schwab voucher for $200,543, of which $100,000 was alleged to have been charged to the Government as cost of ship construction.

The letter, a copy of which has been sent to each member of Congress, proposes that the audit be made by Perley Morse & Co., another firm of accountants acceptable to the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, and a third to be selected by the first two, the services of all to be given free of charge. Their report would be made to a commission of three selected by the President of the United States Senate, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, and the third by the first two. After reviewing the report this commission would submit its findings to the Congressional Shipping Board Committee. In making this offer, Perley Morse & Co. reassert that "there is no evidence to show that Mr. Schwab knew how this charge appeared on the books."

Full Text of the Letter.

The letter follows in full:

"Jan. 27, 1921.

"Hon Joseph Walsh, Chairman Select Committee on United States Shipping Board Operations, House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.:

"Dear Sir: We have given very careful consideration to the proceedings in connection with the investigations of your committee as a consequence of the testimony of Colonel Eugene H. Abadie, and in view of the prominence given to the question of whether all or any part of a payment of $200,543.53 made to Charles M. Schwab by the Bethlehem Steel Company at the time when he was Director of the Emergency Fleet Corporation was paid by the United States Government, we propose that this vital matter be cleared up at once and for all time if it is found necessary.

"We therefore recommend to your committee a joint audit of those accounts of the Bethlehem Steel Company and the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, Limited, in the records of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, the United States Navy, and the United States Treasury Department, through which it may be determined whether this payment was ever allowed, or indirectly because a charge against the Government. Such an audit would be confined absolutely to those records and books bearing directly on this payment, and no one can take exception to the fact that this audit be made without any cost whatsoever to the Government, either for fees of experts on the part of the auditors engaged for the purpose.

Would Give Services Free.

"To this end we will gladly contribute the services of our organization without charge, regardless of the cost to us. In fairness to Charles M. Schwab and the Bethlehem Steel interests we recommend that Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Co., the official auditors of the Bethlehem Steel Company, participate in this joint audit.

"We recommend that a third firm of accountants, to be agreed upon between Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Co. and ourselves, be associated with us in this audit.

"A joint audit, such as we propose, by three firms of public accountants would not necessitate the assignment to the offices of the Bethlehem Companies of a large staff of auditors, nor would the time consumed thereby be protracted. It is the quickest and only manner in which the facts can be established without doubt and to the satisfaction of the people of the United States.

"When the facts are ascertained by this joint commission of auditing firms we recommend that their report be made in writing to a commission of three unbiased persons to serve without pay, the one to be appointed by the President of the United States Senate, the second member to be appointed by the Speaker of the United States House of Representatives and the third member to be selected by the other two. The suggestion of the appointment of this unbiased committee is made to anticipate any remote possibility of a disagreement among the auditing firms participating in the joint audit.

Committee Would Review Findings.

"This unbiased committee of three would review the findings of the joint audit and submit its report to your committee together with the report of the joint auditors. We take it for granted that both the report of the committee of three and the joint auditors would be published in full when rendered to your committee.

"We are prompted to make this offer and suggestion to your committee by the great national significance of the present tense situation as evidenced by the reports in the public press and the comments of the public which we hear on every hand.

"There has been a great deal of testimony taken by your committee. You have heard many witnesses. In response to your subpoena we have told you the facts as we know them. The representatives of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation and Charles M. Schwab have substantiated in their testimony practically everything that we have said. In addition thereto, they have explained that subsequent to the period covered by our audit the payment of $100,000 of the $200,543.53 to Mr. Schwab was transferred to the account of profit and loss. Whether this was done we do not know, as we stated under oath before your committee, but we do know that this payment of $100,000 should have been charged to profit and loss in the first instance.

Says Three Facts Stand Out.

"These facts stand out conspicuously and indisputably:

"1. The charge of the voucher for $200,543.53 was found on the books of the Bethlehem Steel Company and $100,000 of this amount on the books of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, Ltd., Feb. 18, 1920, by one of our auditors.

"2. On Feb. 21, 1920, our audit of the books of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, Ltd., upon which we were engaged for the United States Shipping Board, was abruptly terminated through the influence of the officials of the Bethlehem Steel Company as testified to by them on the stand before your committee.

"3. Our audit was terminated on Feb. 21, 1920, and between that date and the current month of January, 1921 (practically one year later), although several conferences and meetings took place in Washington between our representatives and representatives of the Shipping Board, and at some of these conferences representatives of the Bethlehem interests were present, it was never explained that the charge had been disposed of by transferring it to profit and loss.

"In so far as we are able to interpret public sentiment on this important matter it is this:

"Outside of the accounting profession the people do not understand exactly what has taken place. There seems to be a universal belief that something has happened that is entirely wrong. The explanations given to your committee and the questions asked by your committee—especially the manner in which those questions have been worded—have created a tremendously involved situation that tends only to heighten the mystery of the whole affair and leave an impression that the truth will never be known.

No Feeling Against Schwab.

"We do not believe that any report your committee or any other committee of laymen unfamiliar with accounting methods can render on the strength of the testimony and facts thus far submitted will satisfy the American public.

"We are deeply sorry if the reputation of Charles M. Schwab has been unjustly injured by the unintentional charging to the wrong account on the books of the Bethlehem companies of the $200,543.53. For this, however, we can hardly be blamed, and it is perhaps our misfortune that during the orderly procers of auditing their books we found this charge in an expense account that, according to the Bethlehem company's own card of accounts, would have been prorated ultimately to the cost of ships and other shipbuilding activities, much of which would have been charged back to the Government had it taken the usual course of items entered in the account in which it was found by us. We have no feeling against Mr. Schwab and no occasion to do him an injury. We appreciate the fact that, regardless of how the matter may be finally settled, there is no evidence to show that Mr. Schwab knew how this charge appeared on the books.

"Conceding all these things, as we do, and that it is the duty of your committee to give the Bethlehem Steel Company and subsidiaries every reasonable opportunity to clear themselves, we do not hesitate to emphasize to you your duty and responsibility to the American people in this serious matter. We are very much concerned with the side of this question that is represented by the American people and with its ultimate outcome in so far as their interests are concerned.

Records Alone Give Evidence.

"The fact that you have photostatic copies of vouchers and records submitted by the witnesses for the Bethlehem Steel interests purporting to show that this charge was ultimately placed in profit and loss, and hence was not paid by the United States Treasury, by no means disposes of the situation, to our minds. These photostatic copies presented by the Bethlehem interests were not shown to us for our inspection during your hearings, or at any other time, though we noted that evidence placed in your hands by us during these hearings was turned over to Paul D. Cravath, counsel for the Bethlehem Steel Company, rolled up and carried away from the committee room by him. But, had we seen this evidence—these photostatic copies—they would not have constituted conclusive evidence, in our estimation. The books of original entry, the records of allocation of overhead accounts from the home office in Bethlehem to the various shipbuilding plants, the records of the Emergency Fleet Corporation and the departments by the United States, when all tied up together, alone constitute the proper and conclusive evidence.

"We assure you that we have no other purpose in writing this letter and making this liberal offer to you than to establish all of the facts beyond peradventure. We hope you will accept this communication in the belief that we are doing the fair thing and nothing but the fair thing. We wish to treat this matter fairly and impartially from the standpoint of Bethlehem Steel interests and the standpoint of the rest of the American people as well, and we believe that your committee will do likewise when it has had sufficient opportunity to weigh the facts, after they have been disentangled from the mass of evidence before you, much of which is irrelevant to the case.

"Copies of this communication have been given to the public press and a copy has been sent to each member of the Congress of the United States. Very truly yours,

"PERLEY MORSE & CO.,
"Certified Public Accountants."

The details of the Morse proposal were made known to Mr. Schwab at his home last night by a reporter for THE NEW YORK TIMES. He listened attentively to each detail and asked once or twice that the reporter repeat.

"Are you willing to accept the offer of Perley Morse & Co.?" Mr. Schwab was asked.

"I don't want to say anything about that matter until I know more of this proposal," said Mr. Schwab.

Mr. Schwab said he had received more than 5,000 telegrams and other messages of sympathy and congratulation from all parts of the United States with reference to his last appearance before the Walsh Committee.

PLANNING SKYSCRAPERS FOR THE RUE DE RIVOLI

Application Will Be Made to Change Paris Law Limiting Height of Buildings.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 27.—To make the Rue de Rivoli into a street of skyscraper apartment houses is the latest proposal offered as a remedy for the housing shortage in Paris. The street was built one hundred years ago, and the law which then compelled builders not to exceed a uniform height is still in force. The first step, then, will be to get rid of the law, and that in itself is likely to take considerable time.

Architects say that the houses as they stand can easily support several more stories, and the intention is, if a law giving the necessary powers is passed, to make the buildings of the whole street for a distance of more than a mile of uniform height. As it is now, the buildings are only four stories high. As the street faces the Tuileries Gardens, with houses only on the north side, the proposal, it is argued, might very easily be carried out without injuring the appearance of the famous street.

In view of the constantly increasing population of Paris and the limitation of possibilities of spreading outward, the need for buildings is beginning to be pressing. The authorities are likely, however, to prevent any building which would injure the beauty of the city.

HOUSE PUTS BACK FREE SEED CLAUSE

Restores Provision for Distribution and Raises Appropriation From $239,000 to $360,000.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Ignoring the announced Republican policy of economy and retrenchment, the House today passed the Agricultural Appropriation bill, amended so as to provide for an expenditure of $360,000 for the free distribution of seeds. Free seeds won out by a vote of 169 to 149 after the House had stricken out the seed amendment last night by a vote of 142 to 141.

For the first time in many years the agricultural bill was reported without making provision for free seeds. Of all the important features in the measure this was the only one which attracted any attention, and more than six hours in general debate and under the five-minute rule were devoted to it.

Although the Department of Agriculture estimated that $239,000 would be sufficient to give all the necessary seeds to an enlarged population, stimulated to gardening by the war, the House raised the amount to $360,000, which is $120,000 larger than the sum carried for that item in previous bills.

The battle for inclusion of the seed amendment was led by Representative Langley of Kentucky. The fight of last night was revived today when Representative Dyer of Missouri asserted that he had voted under a misapprehension and moved to reconsider the vote by which the amendment was defeated. Representative Walsh's motion to lay this motion on the table was defeated by a tie vote, after which the house, by a vote of 169 to 153, voted to reconsider and then adopted the amendment.

BRINDELL OFFERS ALIBI AS DEFENSE

Witness Swears Labor Leader Was Not in Office at Time of Alleged Extortion.

CONTRADICTS M. ARONSON

Walking Delegate Danahy Says at Hour Mentioned Brindell Was in the Bronx.

The defense in the case of Robert P. Brindell, charged with extorting $5,000 from Max Aronson for calling off a strike, played its trump card at his trial yesterday by producing a witness who swore that at the time the payment was alleged to have been made at the Building Trades Council, 12 St. Mark's Place, the defendant was in the vicinity of 178th Street and Tremont Avenue.

The witness was David Danahy, walking delegate of the Marble Helpers' Union. Under direct examination of Martin W. Littleton, chief counsel for Brindell, Danahy testified that on Sept. 29, 1920, he was present with Stephen Birmingham, a policeman who had received a salary from Brindell for working for him, in Brindell's office when Aronson called to complain of a strike on his building at 239 West Thirty-sixth Street. He overheard the entire conversation, he said, and nothing was said about the payment of money.

Aronson, at the beginning of the prosecution's examination of witnesses, testified that on Sept. 29, 1920, he went to Brindell's office, saw the defendant at noon, complained regarding the strike, and said Brindell asked him what "it was worth" if the work went on, and Aronson promised to pay him $1,000. Brindell spurned the offer, and Aronson finally agreed to pay $5,000, and left the office about 12:30 or 12:50. He walked to the Lincoln Trust Company's Fifth Avenue Branch, part of the way in company with one of his contractors, and then met his architect and a bank official at the institution, where the matter was discussed. Aronson drew $5,000 in cash on a check, had some luncheon, and then went to Brindell's office, reaching there about 3 o'clock or 3:30. Brindell was waiting for him and took him to an inner room, and he gave the labor leader the money, he said.

Samuel Untermyer had dipped into cross-examination when an adjournment until this morning was taken. He will attempt to impeach Danahy's main story today.

Danahy in his direct testimony described in detail the interview between Aronson and Brindell in the latter's office at 12 St. Mark's Place.

Q.—Did you hear anything said at the Council regarding a payment of money? A.—I did not.

Q.—Did you hear all that was said. A.—I did.

Q.—How long did he remain? A.—About half an hour.

Q.—What did you do then? A.—We got in Brindell's automobile and went to 210th Street, where there was some trouble with the riggers on the Third Avenue extension of the "L."

Q.—What did you do then? A.—I went on the Third Avenue elevated extension, where I complained about some riggers. I spoke to the engineer. I came down and called up the Interborough Rapid Transit Company and spoke to the engineer in charge. Then we drove down to Tremont Avenue and 178th Street by way of the Concourse. I stopped once to call up the Interborough office. I made out a grievance slip on non-union riggers.

Q.—Where do you live? A.—178th Street.

Q.—Where did you get off? A.—178th Street.

Q.—When did you get home? A.—About 3:30.

On cross-examination Mr. Untermyer started to ask, "Do you keep notes?" but before he could finish framing his question the witness replied, "I do," and Mr. Untermyer finished, "of your various goings about daily?" Danahy said he kept the memoranda on slips of paper which he threw away sometimes and which he sometimes retained.

Q.—Didn't you consider the visit of Aronson of any importance to you? A.—No.

Q.—You did not keep a slip of paper of that? A.—No.

Patrick Crowley, Vice President of the Building Trades Council, preceded Danahy. They were the only witnesses who testified. The trial will continue at 10 A. M. today.

Mr. Girouard, safe expert for the Mosler Safe Company, denied yesterday that he had worked over the two steel safe cabinets taken from the office of the Building Trades Council to the Criminal Court Building on Tuesday.

"I merely called at the Criminal Court Building, accompanied by a member of the Mosler Safe Company, and looked over the cabinets. I did not attempt to open them, and was at work in the Union Square Savings Bank at the time it was reported that I worked on the safes. In my opinion they could have been opened in fifteen minutes. Nobody who was called from the Mosler Company worked on the safe cabinets."

HIGH PRICE TRAP FOR BUILDERS SEEN

Allen E. Beals Denounces Policy of Lending Companies on Housing Loans.

Policies adopted by an important lending institution in New York and vicinity with reference to checking building loans until building material prices recede brought vigorous protest from Allen E. Beals, Secretary of the Dow Service Daily Building Reports, at the annual meeting of the New Jersey Mason Material Dealers' Association at the Hotel McAlpin yesterday.

The point was made that the policy, as enunciated by Clarence H. Kelsey of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, as reported in THE TIMES, in his report to stockholders, wherein he stated that lending companies would not be inclined to make loans on building enterprises until building material prices were reduced to lower levels, was having the effect of pushing the speculative home-building enterprises scheduled to proceed in 1921 into 1922 or 1923.

"They will be those who will demand their pound of flesh from the building material dealer as well as the building material manufacturer," said Mr. Beals.

"And if the great title investment companies are to adopt that position they are attempting to turn the law of supply and demand upside down and are leading the prospective purchasers of building material into a trap that has potentialities of becoming a worse one than they were placed in when the rent laws now on the statute books of New York were enacted.

Mr. Beals gave instances of the decline of prices in building materials. Yellow pine now only 10 per cent. above pre-war levels in wholesale markets; Portland cement dropping from $5.10 to $4.50 a barrel, brick from $23 to $16, lime 55 per cent. lower than a year ago, and plaster prices shrinking. But, he said, "building material prices are only at temporary levels," and "the best that the prospective builder can hope for in the immediate future is for building material prices not to revert to pre-war levels but to revert to the 1919 basis."

To Increase Danish Butter Exports.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

NATIONALISTS WAR ON REDS IN ITALY

Violence Spreading Over the Country as Campaign of Reprisals Gets Under Way.

FLORENCE IS IN DARKNESS

Shooting in Town Near Pisa—Fascisti and Communists Raid in Trieste.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MILAN, Jan. 27.—Like wildfire is spreading the merciless crusade of devastation started by the Nationalist faction in reaction against the communistic excesses during the last eighteen months. Destruction of the principal property of the revolutionary organizations throughout Italy is evidently the plan of campaign. After Bologna, Ferrara, Modena, Castellammare, the City of Florence is now come under the lash. The printing works of the Socialist daily, La Difesa, has been stormed and burned to the ground. All the linotypes were destroyed.

A general strike has been the immediate result, in which railway men, gas workers, electricians and postal and telegraph workers have joined. Florence, therefore, is in pitch darkness at night and train service has entirely ceased. There are no cars or trams. Theatres and schools are closed down and no newspapers are allowed to appear.

Nationalists raided the Chambers of Labor at Vicenza, Carpi, Chivasso and other towns, hurled books, registers and furniture into the streets and consumed them in big bonfires.

At Cecina, near Pisa, the police were escorting back to the railway station numerous groups of Fascisti (Nationalists) who had invaded the town on a raiding expedition, when the procession was subjected to a fierce volley of fire from the Labor Exchange and houses in the adjacent streets. There were eleven victims. The Mayor of Cecina, two Councillors and Dr. Ambrogi, President of the Provincial Council, have been arrested.

At Trieste 100 Leninist revolutionaries seized the editorial offices and printing establishment of the Socialist organ Il Lavoratore. Red guards were stationed at the entrances to forbid everybody admission and when the editorial staff turned up for the night's work, they were shown a circular letter from the party directorate by virtue of which all socialistic property in the district where communists outvoted the unitarians and reformists at the recent Leghorn Congress is being sequestrated. The editors and printers in a body refused the invitation to continue their work on Leninist lines, consequently all were turned adrift forthwith and the Journal could not be prepared in time by its new masters. Simultaneously Nationalists marched into the old city and wrecked the Communist Club.

Daring deeds of violence continue to be enacted throughout the vast Emilian region. The situation is exceedingly tense and the task of disarming the civil population within the time limit, which expires on Saturday, is proceeding amid fierce opposition.

FRENCH WITHDRAW EXTREME DEMANDS

under the treaty to compel Germany to put herself in a position to pay.

She is not doing so now. Her revenue is fantastic, not even approximating expenses. She is not imposing taxation to anything like the same extent as the Allies. No doubt this is due partly to a desire to improve her power of bargaining; but the Allies must see to it at once that Germany imposes at least as heavy burdens on her people as are borne in other countries, and see to it that Germany is compelled to make the same economies as the victor nations.

"Three things are essential: First, the fixation of the amount of reparations and the amount of payments; second, Germany must be required to put her finances and taxation in order; third, a meeting with the Germans like that at Spa, at which the whole question shall be settled."

Count Sforza, the Italian delegate, favored the plan of conferring with the Germans. M. Jasper, the Foreign Minister of Belgium, stood behind Lloyd George, advocating the Boulogne agreement as a basis.

M. Doumer then said that the speeches had not changed his views as French Finance Minister that the Boulogne figures were entirely too low.

Premier Briand then spoke. He had been advised by President Millerand that the Boulogne plan was the best to follow, but recently he was intent on letting himself down easily. He declared that when taking office he had not understood that any definite agreement had been reached at Boulogne, and the French Chamber believed that the French Government had a free hand. The real question, he said, was what it was possible to get.

French public opinion was reasonable, he said, but it would not accept the proposition that what the treaty provided was impossible. Even the experts, he declared, said that the present was an unfavorable moment to fix the total indemnity. If the necessity was proved, he said, French public opinion would accept another solution than the treaty plan, but it was not prepared to abate its expectations to the limits of the Boulogne agreement without further proof.

French public opinion, he said, favored the fixation of annual payments for the next few years, but insisted that if German prosperity increased the French should share in the results within the treaty limits.

"If German prosperity doesn't increase, then the French will not attempt to exact the impossible," he said.

Recurring to the old French plan, M. Briand recommended that the Reparations Commission proceed to fix the total of Allied claims. Even if it produced an extravagant total, what did it matter? he asked.

France would realize that she had to make sacrifices, but at least she would get credit for her generosity. M. Briand said the Boulogne agreement fixed France's share at 65,000,000,000 marks gold and yet the external debt of France was 25,000,000,000. He said the difference would not enable France to restore the devastated areas and pay pensions. It was impossible, he said, for France to agree on the indemnity total until satisfied as to the truth about Germany's present and future capacity to pay. Experts could determine the former, but no one today could determine the latter. He suggested fixing the first annual payments now, and the total liability of Germany by May 1, and at some later time taking up the consideration of what the Allies would exact.

Lloyd George replied that it was essential that something be done now, and that neither the Allies nor the world at large could bear further delay.

At the suggestion of M. Jaspar a committee was named to report tomorrow a proposal to form a basis of the allied negotiations. This committee consists of MM. Loucher and Doumer for France, Lord d'Abernon and Sir Laming Worthington-Evans for Great Britain, Colonel Theunys for Belgium, Signor Giannini for Italy and Kengo Mori for Japan. The committee is meeting tonight and will prepare its report as speedily as possible for presentation to the Council, possibly tomorrow.

Agreed on Merits, Says Lloyd George.

Mr. Lloyd George took up the whole question of reparations at the opening of the session of the Supreme Council, should meet Germany and finally discuss a settlement.

Count Sforza paid a visit to the Foreign Office late this forenoon, presumably for a talk with Premier Briand. Later, the Premier went to the headquarters of the Belgian delegation.

It was learned today that ex-Premier Venizelos of Greece had been invited to Paris by Mr. Lloyd George, and that he had arrived here and already had twice conferred with the British delegates on the Near Eastern question.

Mr. Venizelos came to Paris from Nice, where he has been residing since his departure from Greece after his defeat in the elections there. It is expected that he will see Mr. Lloyd George himself tomorrow.

TWO MEXICANS DIE IN ELECTRIC CHAIR

Governor Miller Denies First Plea for Mercy Made Since His Election.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, Jan. 27.—Henrique Garcia and Augustin Sanchez, Mexicans convicted of unrelated murders in Olean, were executed in Sing Sing prison tonight when the Mexican Government lost the last battle of a stubborn fight in their behalf.

The two were the first to die in the electric chair since Nathan L. Miller became Governor, and Mexican diplomatic and consular representatives in this country turned at last to him, hoping he would stay the proceedings at least long enough to familiarize himself with the cases. The Governor, however, took the position that both condemned men had had every opportunity allowed under the law. He declined to intervene, though he gave an hour in Albany yesterday to Mrs. Grace Humiston, a lawyer, to plead the case of Sanchez. Mrs. Humiston, who frequently has been active in behalf of condemned men and was successful in the Stielow case, pleaded that a woman's comb, said to have been found near the scene of Sanchez's crime, substantiated his story that the killing was done by an unidentified man and woman.

The Governor intimated that he did not regard the alleged new evidence as warranting him in interfering with the executioners. She retired to prepare a written brief to submit to him tonight, but receipt of that communication did not change his mind.

While Manuel C. Telles, Mexican Chargé d'Affaires in Washington and Ramon P. De Negri, Consul General of Mexico, worked hard for both men whose sentences they sought to induce the Governor to commute if new trials could not be had for them, they devoted particular attention to Sanchez's case. He was convicted of killing Jose Lizarrazza, a Spaniard, with whom he started for a walk from Olean on Sept. 19, 1919. The Spaniard was found dead at a lonely spot, his pockets rifled. Sanchez swore he fled when a man and a woman attacked his companion.

While the plea was being made to Governor Miller by Mrs. Humiston, the Chargé d'Affaires in Washington sought to get the United States Supreme Court to intervene, but failed.

RUSH SEVEN NEGROES OUT OF ARKANSAS

Authorities Save Associates of Lynched Murderer—Governor Asks for an Investigation.

Special to The New York Times.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 27.—Seven negroes were secretly taken out of Arkansas today to prevent possible lynching of them as fellow-members of an Odd Fellows lodge with Henry Lowry, who was burned at the stake last night for the murder of W. O. Craig, a planter, and his daughter near Nodena, Ark. Five of the negroes were brought here from Marion, Ark. Two were taken from Blytheville, Ark., to Caruthersville, Mo.

Muddy conditions of the country roads, which were practically impassable for automobiles, was probably all that saved these negroes from lynching last night after the burning of Lowry. The latter before death confessed the killing and implicated two negroes as having helped him to escape to El Paso, where he was captured. One was in jail at Marion and another at Blytheville.

After burning Lowry half of the mob planned to go to Blytheville, and the others to Marion to get the seven negroes. They had to abandon the idea, however.

The seven, now at Memphis and Caruthersville, Mo., are to be taken to Little Rock, it is said, but excitement runs high in eastern Arkansas.

Reaction in feeling has set in, however, following an announcement from Little Rock that Governor McRae had sent a message to the Legislature, calling for an investigation and arraigning the deputies for delivering Lowry to the mob which intercepted them on a train at Sardis, Miss. He also urged a law to have any official held responsible for failure to protect the life of a prisoner.

LABOR BOARD MOVES TO READJUST WAGES

other roads prior to our conferences with our employes."

Whiter Pushes for Ending Agreements.

In the continuance today before the Railway Wage Board of the appeal of railroad men for abrogation of the national agreements with workers, E. T. Whiter, chairman of the railroads' committee, declared that the public "pays in freight and passenger rates all the expenses incurred by the railways" due to inefficiency of men.

"The railways, under the Transportation act," he went on, "are required to operate economically, so that the public will not have to pay excessive rates. The evidence we have introduced regarding abolition of piecework shows that in every case where piecework was abolished for the hourly wage system there was a reduction in the average output, in most cases from 25 to 50 per cent.

"We request the board to permit the re-introduction of methods of paying employes that will offer proper incentive to increase effort and give proper and adequate recognition to skill and industry.

"We are seeking the abolition of restrictive rules, imposed under Government control, such as the one prohibiting piecework. Unless rules can be adopted which tend to promote efficiency and economy of operation, the railroads cannot secure the increases in efficiency and economy necessary to protect the public from excessive costs of transportation and excessive rates."

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Jan. 27.—Any attempts by the Railway Labor Board toward wage reductions will be vigorously opposed by the railroad brotherhoods, Warren S. Stone, Grand Chief Engineer of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, stated tonight.

"The men in railroad work are not going to accept reductions in wages now," Mr. Stone said. "They have to pay just as much as they ever did for what they get."

Heads of the brotherhoods will attend the hearing Feb. 10 and fight particularly any attempts to reduce wages on the Atlanta, Birmingham & Atlantic Railroad to the extent of about half the increases granted since Dec. 31, 1917, Mr. Stone said, and also will oppose the general movement sponsored by the Labor Committee of the American Association of Railway Executives.

REBUFF TO WILSON IN COUNCIL'S ACTION

Recognition of Russian Border States Shows Rejection of President's Note to League.

DANGER SEEN IN POLICY

Encouragement to Japan to Continue in Siberia Carving Up of Former Russian Empire.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The decision of the Allied Supreme Council to recognize Latvia and Esthonia as sovereign States was received with keen disappointment in official circles in Washington today, because it is interpreted as forecasting an unfavorable response by the European allies to the American Government's latest appeal for the maintenance of the integrity of the territory of the former Russian Empire.

Failure of the powers to heed the President's appeal for unity of action on the Russian problem will be sincerely regretted by President Wilson, who had hoped that the stand taken by the Washington Government, as outlined in the communication recently sent by Under Secretary Davis to the principal allied powers through Paul Hymans, President of the Assembly of the League of Nations, would influence the Allies toward a more harmonious policy with respect to Russia.

The view of the American Government is that the powers should not take advantage of the stricken condition of Russia to dismember that country, and until a responsible and representative government shall have been erected in Russia the powers should not attempt to dispose of Russian territories. The first violation of this principle was the assignment to Rumania, without Russia's consent, of Bessarabia, and there is grave apprehension here that the pursuance of the policy by the allied powers invites not only territorial lust and its satisfaction, but further postpones the recovery of Europe in an economic sense.

The action of the allied powers in creating independent States out of European Russia is expected to have a dangerous reflex in Asia by furnishing Japan with pretexts for promoting the severance of all political ties between Siberia and European Russia. While even the Japanese Government is declared to be at this time doubtful of the feasibility of following such a policy, it is feared that the actions of the allied powers in favor of dismemberment of European Russia will tend to encourage militarists and imperialists in Japan.

The belief is growing in Washington that instead of promoting peace in Europe the allied powers are reaching deeper and deeper into the muddy pretexts for war, especially between Russia and bordering States.

HITS LABOR LEADERS.

Counsel Says Ignoring Court Injunctions Tends to Anarchy.

James A. Emery of Chicago, counsel to the National Association of Manufacturers, at the weekly luncheon of the Rotary Club yesterday at the McAlpin said that, while it was his belief that workmen in this country are loyal, law-abiding and useful citizens, statements of labor leaders that injunctions granted by the courts against their unions should be ignored by them tended to breed anarchy. He said that a man should be permitted to work where he can obtain employment, regardless of whether he is a member of a labor union, or the system of government in this country should be changed.

John R. Young of the Merchants Association called attention to five bills introduced at the present session of the Legislature to do away with the daylight Saving law. He asked the gathering to communicate with members of the Legislature with a view to preventing its repeal.

BILL GIVES FUNDS FOR CONSULS' TRIPS

Items of $155,000 Not to Bring Home Diplomatic 'Lame Ducks,' but for Business Tours.

RUSSIAN POST VOTED DOWN

House Also Refuses to Raise Peking Legation—New Countries Cause Confusion Among Congressmen.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The House today began the consideration of the Diplomatic and Consular bill, with indications that it would be passed before the end of the week. The bill makes a number of increases over amounts carried in the bill for the present fiscal year, with the idea of improving the consular service to meet the increased demands of American business.

The biggest increase in the bill is an item for $155,000 to cover the traveling expenses of diplomatic and consular officers. This suggested the idea that the incoming Administration intended to remove a great number of consular agents and diplomats and that the appropriation was recommended to care for the returning "lame ducks."

Representative John Jacob Rogers, in charge of the preparation of the bill in the Budget Committee, said that the item was included upon the recommendation of the State Department and was not intended to cover special traveling expenses, but chiefly the traveling expenses of consular agents, who are called upon to travel in line of their duty abroad and when they return to the United States to make speeches before businessmen's organizations.

Under-Secretary of State Norman H. Davis explained the purposes of this item when he appeared before the committee.

"As to the item for traveling expenses, the purpose of the estimated increase," Mr. Davis testified, "is to cover the traveling expenses for officers when they come to this country and are sent out to appear before commercial organizations or Chambers of Commerce, or to confer with business men or to place themselves at the disposal of the branch offices of the Department of Commerce in the various cities where those branch offices are maintained. There has been an increasing demand from the Department of Commerce from business men and business organizations to have our Consuls, when they come to this country, to visit them for conferences. We can only at the present time suggest to a Consul that he should go. We cannot expect him to pay his expenses around the country when he is here on leave of absence, which, as a rule, he does not take too frequently in any event. He has to come home at his own expense, and at very great expense at the present time, in order to take advantage of it.

"It does not seem fair that the department should order him to spend more than his income going about and meeting the demands of commercial organizations. We think the Government ought to pay for it. I think the general business community and the commercial organizations feel that the Government ought to pay for it. We have estimated an exceedingly small amount for that purpose, when the cost of transportation is considered, for a year's travel for that purpose.

"I feel, also, that the value of those visits and those conferences, first, to the business men who want them, and, second, to the consular service in the practical knowledge of American business affairs and conditions which those conferences would give our officers, and it would be worth many times the amount which is estimated to be expended. It will be of interest to you to know that the British Government send not only their Consuls but their diplomatic officers to confer with business men."

House in Tangle Over New Nations.

WASHINGTON, Jan 27 (Associated Press).—The House voted down tonight a proposal to pave the way for appointment of an Ambassador to Russia and struck out of the Diplomatic Appropriation bill a provision for raising the American legation at Peking to an embassy.

Then finding its feet entangled in difficult diplomatic problems, it quit work with an agreement to continue consideration of the bill tomorrow.

After brief debate the House rejected an amendment by Representative Mason, Republican, of Illinois, to set aside $17,500 as the salary of an Ambassador so that Mr. Harding as President might be prepared without further action to establish diplomatic relations with Russia in the event conditions should so develop as to make such a course desirable. Mr. Mason declared that, whereas, many conflicting reports had come out of Russia, his own information from unprejudiced sources indicated that the Bolsheviki had done more for the people of that country than ever was done before.

Attack on the provision for a Minister to the country of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes was made on the ground that there was no authority of law for such representation. Chairman Rogers, in charge of the bill, explained that this country was merely the old Serbia with new boundaries and a new name, and that the same situation applied to other countries of Europe. A point of order was made against the provision and also against a proposal for appointment of ministers to Finland and Turkey. At the latter post the United States has heretofore been represented by an Ambassador.

Representative Garrett, Democrat, Tennessee, suggested that it be made plain that efforts to eliminate the name of any nation to which ministers are sent are made solely because of the peculiar House system of enacting appropriating legislation and not for other reasons.

A section providing for ministers to Czechoslovakia and to Poland at salaries of $12,000, was stricken out on a point of order and Mr. Garrett said it was necessary to transfer them to the section containing the names of ministers whose salaries were $10,000.

In the course of two hours' debate on the bill the chief reference to it was by Chairman Rogers, who explained it in detail. Forty-five minutes of the Democratic time was taken by Representative Venable, Mississippi, in a tribute to President Wilson, and the balance was devoted to discussion of unrelated subjects.

MAY TRY FORMER RECTOR.

Marriage of A. I. du Pont Causes Charge of Violating Church Canon.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 27.—Trial of the Rev. Baker P. Lee, formerly rector of Christ Church here, before twelve of his peers in the Episcopal Church, on a charge of violation of an ecclesiastical canon in having performed a marriage ceremony for Alfred I. du Pont, powder manufacturer of Wilmington, Del., and Miss Jessie D. Ball of Los Angeles, was being considered today, according to church officials. The marriage occurred here last Saturday.

A resolution was adopted at the convention of the Diocese of Los Angeles assuring the Right Rev. Joseph H. Johnson of the support of the convention should he decide, as Bishop of the Diocese of Los Angeles, to call Mr. Lee for trial.

The charge, it was said, would be violation of Canon 42, which forbids performances of the marriage ceremony by an Episcopal clergyman when one of the parties is divorced and has a former spouse living.

Mr. Lee declared he had been "fully justified" in performing the marriage, and "would fight to a finish" any charges which might be preferred against him.

MUCH TALK IN SENATE ON EMERGENCY TARIFF

Speeches Go Far Afield to Find Arguments While Penrose Seeks to Invoke Closure.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The Fordney Emergency Tariff bill was theoretically before the Senate today but was discussed only in a speech by Senator Simmons, Democrat of North Carolina, and in a brief debate on sugar items. Speeches were so far afield at one time that Senator McCumber, Republican, of North Dakota, declared the Senators had discussed "everything from negroes to battleships" and asked why the tariff should not be taken up.

During the session Senator Borah, Republican, of Idaho, spoke at length on the general subject of disarmament into which other Senators were drawn into debate. Senator Walsh, Democrat, of Montana, discussed the Landlord-Tenant laws of the District of Columbia and Senator Ransdell, Democrat, of Louisiana, entered an emphatic denial to published statements which, he declared, had sought to link the Louisiana Senators with the big sugar interests.

Tariff debate, however, was not without pointed argument. Senator Simmons's speech of more than two hours was directed at what he termed the iniquities of the proposed legislation. He charged that Congress would be exceeding its power in enacting such legislation and asserted that its provisions were confiscatory in that they would compel consumers to pay tribute.

The North Carolina Senator also took Senator McCumber to task for his attitude on wheat protection. He argued that Mr. McCumber was supporting legislation which not only would increase the price of bread and cereals, but would place the United States in a position to suffer retaliation at the hands of Canada, from which Mr. McCumber had said the "dangerous wheat importations" come.

Denying the statements of Mr. McCumber that Canadian prices were lower than those in the United States, Mr. Simmons quoted official statistics to show that prices had varied little between Minneapolis and Winnipeg. This country, the Senator added, is on an exporting basis and therefore the slight difference between the prices would have no effect.

"Our market is Liverpool," he continued. "It does not matter whether the Canadian wheat goes direct to Liverpool or comes through the United States and is milled here. The tariff proposals will not stop that, and if they do, it means we will have to pay more for our bread and flour."

Senator King, Democrat, of Utah, asked during the discussion whether it would not be proper for the Government to "take care of the unemployed with a pension if it were going to take care of the wheat farmer and the Louisiana sugar grower." He declared that Congress should never establish such a precedent and asserted that the losses of other lines of trade were equally as important.

During the day Senator Penrose circulated a petition to invoke the closure rule and limit Senators to one hour's debate each on the bill, but the movement had not developed seriously tonight.

FRELINGHUYSEN SUES HARDING YACHT SELLER

Senator Asks $5,000, Charging Timbers Were Unsound—Not Guaranteed, Says Counsel.

Alleging that the yacht Victoria, upon which President-elect Warren G. Harding is spending a vacation in Florida, was seriously damaged when he purchased it, Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen of New Jersey has brought suit in the United States District Court in Brooklyn to recover $5,000 from Sherman Loomis, former owner of the vessel. Mr. Loomis is in the lumber business and lives at 817 Carroll Street, Brooklyn.

According to the complaint, Senator Frelinghuysen paid $9,000 for the boat last September. The vessel was then known as the Saramar. After the sale was completed, the new owner discovered some of the timbers of the frame at the bow and stern were unsound. These timbers, the complaint states, were concealed by exterior planking and interior fittings. The vessel was represented by agents of the owners as being sound and seaworthy.

George V. Brower of 44 Court Street, counsel for Mr. Loomis, has served notice that he will contest the claim of Senator Frelinghuysen. Mr. Brower said yesterday that before the Senator bought the vessel it was taken to the shipyard of Tietjen & Lang in Hoboken, where it was subjected to a thorough inspection by experts employed by Senator Frelinghuysen. The sale, according to Mr. Brower, was made without any guarantee or warranty, and if there were any shortcomings the Senator's experts should have discovered them at the time of the inspection.

The yacht was built at City Island in 1906, by John S. Loomis, father of Sherman Loomis and a well known lumber merchant. In 1913-1914, according to Mr. Brower, it was overhauled at an expense of $12,000. The boat was also overhauled in 1920 a few months before it was sold.

NEGRO BURGLAR SAYS HE KILLED MISS HOXIE

Confession So Readily Made, However, That Police Doubt Its Truth.

Detectives of the West Twentieth Street Station, suspicious of the actions of James Brown, a negro, 24, of 250 West Sixty-eighth Street, trailed him yesterday and caught him in the act of jimmying the door of an apartment at 252 West Twentieth Street. After they had arrested him and taken burglars' tools and skeleton keys from him they began to question him.

According to the detectives—Peter Corcoran and Bernard Clark—Brown admitted that on Feb. 2 last he assaulted and murdered Ream Constance Hoxie, 17 years old, in the apartment of her parents at 72 West Eighty-ninth Street. Besides acknowledging this, the detectives said Brown admitted entering the home of Mrs. Loretta Smith, 26 Jane Street, on Nov. 4 last.

The intruder beat and kicked her and escaped with everything of value in the house. Mrs. Smith's skull was fractured and she has but recently left the hospital. She identified Brown at the station house yesterday. Brown also, the police said, admitted that under the alias of Leslie Breuer he had escaped on Nov. 30 with a sentence of only thirty days for burglary.

The confession was so readily made and Brown's story embodied some discrepancies so obvious that the police were not sure he was telling the truth. Captain Arthur Carey, head of the homicide squad and a member of the Homicide Bureau in the District Attorney's office, took charge of his examination, which lasted until late in the night, without the authorities reaching a conclusion.

SPELLMANS TO MONTREAL.

Parents of Runaway Girl to Decide Whether She May Study Art.

The parents of Blanche Adele Spellman, the 18-year-old student in the Department of Extension Teaching at Columbia, who ran away to Montreal to study art and be relieved of trigonometry, have gone to Montreal to see their daughter and to decide whether she shall come home or continue her studies in Canada.

The only member of the family who could be reached yesterday was Howard Spellman, the girl's brother, who could give no information about the case.

"When we know anything more we will give out what we can," he said. "I can't say a word about it now."

Dean Virginia C. Gildersleeve of Barnard College said yesterday that Miss Blanche Spellman, mentioned in THE NEW YORK TIMES as a Barnard student, was not and never had been a student in Barnard College.

Why Worry?

The difference between investing and speculating is the difference between peace of mind and worrying. It is easy to pick out a safe investment. It requires great experience and confidence for safe and profitable speculation.

Ninety per cent. of the people, however, are fond of speculating. Pure investing is too slow. The 10%, however, who really invest, as, for instance, in Guaranteed First Mortgages, are about the only ones who have peace of mind and keep their principal intact.

COLBY TOUR ALLAYED LATIN SUSPICIONS

Wilson Sent Him to Counteract Influences Working Against United States.

EXCHANGE RATE RESENTED

Doubts on Monroe Doctrine Reduced by Secretary's Speech—Trade Turning to Europe.

By WILLIAM H. CRAWFORD.

Few Americans appreciate the possibilities or the importance of the Colby mission to South America. I frankly admit that I did not myself. I accepted the assignment to accompany the party because I thought it would give me an opportunity to gather some material for stories upon economic and political conditions in South America and not with any understanding of the real significance of the work.

It has been possible on the long return journey from Buenos Aires to get a perspective upon the results of the visit and to review the swift and crowding incidents connected with our trips to the three South American capitals.

South America's trade and friendship are of the utmost importance to the United States. It is the natural outlet for our surplus material and manufactures. The day has passed when America was sufficient unto itself. We can no longer be a hermit nation. Because of our improved agricultural methods and machinery, we produce more farm products than we can consume. Because of our superiority in machinery and the intelligence of our labor we produce much more manufactured material than we need for ourselves. Consequently it is necessary for us to export our surplus. And South America is our best, most natural and most favorable market.

During the war we had an excellent opportunity to obtain control of this market. Economic conditions were so paralyzed in Europe that it was impossible for Europe to supply South America. She herself was an importer rather than an exporter. Consequently South Americans were dependent on us. Even now we are in a much better position, both economically and financially, to meet their needs than any other country. Europe was so badly crippled by the war that it will be several years before it is back to normal. We have had, therefore, about six years in which to gain an ascendancy in this trade.

During the war South America was very friendly toward the United States. This friendship, unfortunately, and this predominant economic ascendancy are rapidly waning. The South Americans are going back to Europe as a trade centre as fast as Europe is prepared to supply their demand, and unless steps are taken to counteract the influences that are working against America she will lose her ascendancy in these countries within a few years.

Mr. Wilson, with his far-seeing eye, was quick to recognize this condition of affairs, and he sent Mr. Colby on a dual mission, of repaying the calls of the two South American Presidents, but in reality for the express purpose of counteracting the insidious influences that are working to discredit the United States in Latin America.

There are several things that have combined to prejudice Latin America against the United States. These sentiments are in the air. They have no tangible expression, but you feel them everywhere. Here are some of them:

Blame Bankers Here for Exchange Rate

By some unknown process of reasoning the high rate of exchange against South American countries is attributed to exploitation by the New York banks. I took occasion to ask 100 men, picked indiscriminately—bankers, doctors, lawyers, street car conductors, peddlers and peons—to what cause they attributed the present high rate of exchange, and the consequent depreciation in the purchasing power of South American money. Ninety-two of them blamed the New York banks for their misfortune. Their replies were stated parrot-like, without any attempt to prove the truthfulness of their assertion.

Secondly, there is a strong undercurrent of prejudice against America because of our—unfortunate to us—relationship with some of the Latin American republics. The Latin is not convinced of the justice of our position in our controversy with Colombia over Panama. Neither am I, for that matter. But with this difference: that I recognize that it is not the established policy of America, but rather the act of our dearly beloved but impetuous Roosevelt. The Latin feels that his sister-republic has been robbed of Panama by the ruthless hand of the powerful Republic of the North. And he further feels that it might be his time next, provided he has some territory that might be advantageous for the United States to possess.

He has forgotten Cuba, and its liberty restored, but remembers Haiti, the Dominican Republic, Costa Rica, the landing at Vera Cruz and invasion of Mexico by Pershing's forces. It is largely believed in South America that the United States is set on aggrandizement and filled with the European idea of the control of minor peoples under the thin guise of spheres of influence.

There are degrees of dislike for America in the various nations to the South. The Uruguayan genuinely likes us. The President and his Ministers have all spent considerable time in America. They have learned to like our ways and means and to know us. Uruguay is the Yankee of the South, and they like our hustle and business manners. This sentiment, beginning with the statesmen, has spread among the people and was much increased by the visit of Admiral Caperton several years since. Uruguay is our best friend in South America.

The conditions in Brazil are peculiar. In the Southern part the predominating population is German. Whole colonies and provinces are practically of Teutonic origin. These provinces are anti-American. Nearer the Amazon about 85 per cent. of the population are negroes who cut no particular figure in the political situation except that they are prejudiced against the United States because of the high exchange rate.

The ruling classes are friendly toward America and are perfectly willing to cultivate a friendly relationship with their powerful northern neighbor. So that I would say that Brazil is about equally balanced for and against America.

Coolness in Argentina.

In Argentina the conditions are different. Most of the big businesses, most of the enterprises that are worth while, most of the concessions that are profitable, are in the hands of European capitalists, and their agents have industriously spread anti-American propaganda for trade reasons.

In addition to this, the Argentine people are a proud race. They consider themselves as the dominating people of South America, and resent any protectorate exercised by the United States through the Monroe Doctrine. I believe, therefore, that as a result of these two causes there exists a genuine dislike for America and things American by the people of the Argentine. The story that I wrote on arriving in Argentina as to the lack of enthusiasm on the part of the Argentinians was literally true.

Thus you have a background of the condition of affairs which Mr. Colby was supposed to overcome. I believe that he did much to accomplish these ends.

Republican newspapers in America and anti-American interests in South America had aroused at least a strong suspicion in the minds of most of the Latin American statesmen that America's aims were not based upon a high altruistic plane, as the speeches of some of our statesmen would make them appear.

They were on the balance, unable to determine as to what America's intentions were concerning her weaker sister republics. I believe that Secretary Colby convinced them more by his bearing and evident friendliness than by his spoken word that President Wilson had been inspired by the highest ideals in his steadfast policy of forbearance and self-restraint in the face of continued provocations at the hands of Mexico throughout her period of internal disorders, and incidentally this favorable impression was partly gained by the act of the United States in the acceptance of the proffer of mediation by the so-called A B C powers shortly after the Vera Cruz incident.

In regard to Colombia, I believe that they now recognize that the treaty would have been long ago ratified but for Republican partisan opposition.

Explanations on Haiti and Dominica.

I believe that they understood that there is no tincture of military intervention in the case of either Haiti or Santo Domingo; that the landing of American forces for the preservation of order and life has the sanction of express provisions contained in treaties freely and openly arrived at with both republics. And that there is a vast difference between proceeding in strict conformity with treaty permission, previously and formally given, and so-called imperialism, which forcibly interposes in the internal administration of the affairs of a friendly neighbor.

I believe that they understand the appalling conditions in the Island of Santo Domingo, which compelled the United States to reluctantly and rather tardily take up the work of restoring order, lest its refusal to do so might precipitate an intervention far less acceptable to the Haitians and the Dominicans on the one hand and the Latin American people on the other.

Some partisan American newspapers predicted that the Colby mission would arouse but a languid interest in South America because its people knew that President Wilson's term of office was about to expire. Instead of Latin America feeling that President Wilson was passing off the stage, it acted as if it felt that he was steadily mounting to a higher and higher position of influence in the world affairs, and, whether President or not, would continue as long as he lived to be a commanding and highly potential factor in influencing the course of history. And consequently his Secretary as his alter ego was received as a representative of a dominating and masterful force in world affairs.

Monroe Doctrine Elucidated.

Mr. Colby's attitude throughout the trip was the best possible one to adopt to accomplish the ends aimed at. South America doubted America's sincere friendship. Mr. Colby demonstrated by his manner, by his courtesy and by his friendliness that the American people wanted to be friendly. By his speeches he explained that the Monroe Doctrine was intended not as an aggressive dominating force, but as a protecting arm for all America, including the United States, against European aggression.

Mr. Colby tried to make friends with the people. He carried himself with a simplicity and modesty that made a very straight way to the friendship of his hosts. On the other hand, there was no truckling, no apology for America's actions, but a manly and truthful expression of our position upon Pan-American subjects. He was in every sense a Minister of State of a great republic, but he was obviously a gentleman in the house of friends who appreciated the cordiality and was anxious to show that he did.

The impression that he created in each country visited was one of which the country should be proud. It was distinct. It was strong. It was undeniably favorable, and I am convinced that his visit will greatly contribute, through the years to come, to a truer understanding and a closer relationship between the United States and the South American Republics.

PEOPLES IMPRESSED COLBY.

He Says Latins' High Standard Is Not Properly Understood.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Secretary of State Colby is preparing a formal statement concerning his mission to South America.

"I had a most delightful trip" he said today, "and, in my opinion, it was important and worth while. I would not like to discuss it, though, in a way, that is not commensurate with the importance of the subject. I was everywhere received with the utmost cordiality.

"It is a very enlarging experience to see those advanced nations to the south. The general impression in this country is not adequate to the high standard of life and the high tone existing in those nations.

"The conditions in South America are good. They are feeling the reflex of the war in a degree, but not so much as other nations, in my opinion. The whole tone of life down there is one of supreme confidence and great hopefulness. The war has emphasized the dependence of the world on their great natural resources of raw materials and food.

"It is natural that the nations in South America should appreciate their power, wealth and importance, which every other nation so freely concedes. They are a delightful people, progressive, educated, enlightened, and their attitude toward this country is one of unmistakable friendliness and appreciation and they ought to be appreciated and deserve to be."

PLAN TO SAVE WORKERS $6,000,000,000 A YEAR

Farmers and Unions Form Non-Partisan Organization to Get 'Economic Justice.'

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—The organization of what has been named "The People's Reconstruction League," to conduct a campaign for certain kinds of economic reform, was announced today from headquarters, which have just been established in Washington. Herbert F. Baker, President of the Farmers' National Council, has been chosen Chairman of the new organization, which is described as being "a non-partisan union of farmers and labor organizations and representing also the general public, to carry out a program of economic justice" which the league's officers say they think "will save American workers with hand and brain $6,000,000,000 a year."

The announced program of the league includes the "prompt restoration of the railroads to unified Government operation so that freight rates may be reduced to those in force when the railroads were returned under the Cummins-Esch law, legislation to control the packers, paying off the cost of the war and current Government expenses by taxing privileges instead of poverty; strict control of national resources and changes in our credit and banking system which will make our credit system the servant instead of the master of the people." The program also declares against compulsory military training.

The following officers of the league have been selected to date: President, Herbert F. Baker, President Farmers National Council; Vice Presidents, William H. Johnston, President International Association of Machinists, and Mrs. Florence Kelley; Treasurer, Jackson H. Ralston; General Manager, George P. Hampton, Managing Director Farmers' National Council; Executive Secretary, Benjamin C. Marsh, Secretary Farmers' National Council. Among the members of the Executive Committee, in addition to the officers, are Warren S. Stone, Grand Chief Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers; William Bouck, Master Washington State Grange; R. W. H. Stone, President North Carolina Farmers' Union; Arthur Le Sueur and L. E. Sheppard, President of the Order of Railway Conductors of America.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 27.—When the State Capitol building here was burned down the West Virginia House of Delegates decided to hold sessions in the Baptist Temple, and it was agreed that, as meetings would be held in a church building, delegates should refrain from smoking.

Prior to adjournment yesterday the House adopted a resolution under which the money saved on "smokes" will be contributed to the treasury of the church. The resolution commended the self-restraint on the part of the delegates.

COLBY WILL SOUND SENATORS ON JAPAN

California Congressmen Also to Be Heard Before Settlement Is Approved.

PHELAN FOR BINDING TERMS

Opposes "Gentlemen's Agreement" for the Restriction of Japanese Immigration.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The simultaneous presence of Senator James D. Phelan of California and of Baron Kijuro Shidehara, the Japanese Ambassador, at the State Department for conferences late this afternoon gave rise to speculation over developments in the Japanese question as involved in the recommendations just made to the Washington and Tokio Governments by Ambassadors Morris and Shidehara.

Senator Phelan called on Secretary Colby for the purpose of ascertaining, if possible, exactly the character of the recommendations that have been made by Ambassador Morris for a settlement of the issues involved by Japanese immigration and the alien land law situation in California. Ambassador Shidehara called on Under Secretary of State Davis principally for a discussion of the case of some Japanese seamen but not for a conference over the report of Ambassador Morris.

The two conferences proceeded simultaneously in adjoining rooms. Ambassador Shidehara was interested in a case at Norfolk where Japanese seamen had been involved in a quarrel with Americans and where certain officials desired the Japanese involved to be present for use as witnesses. The Ambassador had ascertained that these particular seamen were on board a vessel now en route to Honolulu.

Mr. Shidehara informed Mr. Davis that he was hopeful that a satisfactory settlement of the Langdon case would soon be reached. He also inquired whether it was true, as reported, that Ambassador Morris's report had been submitted to the State Department. He learned that this was true, but that Secretaries Colby and Davis had not yet read the report, which is rather voluminous.

Phelan Presents His Views.

Senator Phelan previously held conferences with Secretary Colby and Ambassador Morris relative to the negotiations in progress and was aware at one time how those negotiations stood, but he stated after his conference this afternoon that he had not been able to ascertain the exact nature of the recommendations made by Mr. Morris. The Senator was closeted with Mr. Colby for nearly an hour, and during that period, although the Secretary was not in a position to discuss with him the recommendations of the Morris report, there was a general interchange of views relative to the California question. Senator Phelan in a general way sketched his views to the Secretary relative to suggestions for a settlement.

Secretary Colby will devote several days to consideration of the Morris report preliminary to taking up the recommendations with the President, provided they meet Mr. Colby's approval. On leaving the State Department Senator Phelan said that he had an appointment to see Secretary Colby again in three days. At that time the Senator will be informed as to the exact nature of the Morris recommendations and will then determine his attitude toward the proposed settlement.

Senator Phelan said tonight that reports that the Senate Foreign Relations Committee had been consulted in connection with the Morris-Shidehara negotiations were incorrect. "I spoke to Senator Lodge relative to reports that the committee had been so consulted," Senator Phelan said, "and was assured today by Mr. Lodge that the committee had not been consulted in the negotiations." A report to that effect had been printed, but it can be stated that officials of the State Department, who have been very reticent regarding the negotiations, had inspired no such statement.

Will Inform Senators of Steps.

Now that the Morris report is before the State Department for consideration it is understood to be the purpose of Secretary Colby to give it his immediate consideration. It is also understood to be his intention, acting for the President, to inform members of the Foreign Relations Committee, anxious for the facts as to the exact character of the recommendations, and to ascertain the attitude of the members of that committee as well as of the California delegation in the Senate and House toward the suggested plan of settlement, the basic idea of which is to prohibit absolutely Japanese immigration to this country, and to seek such an adjustment of the Japanese alien land ownership problem as not to aim the California legislation at Japanese and Orientals alone.

Senator Phelan, after his visit to the State Department, said informally that his understanding was that certain phases of the matter had reached the stage where the questions involved were largely questions of method by which the desired ends were to be achieved. It has been suggested that the proposed restriction of immigration should take the form of a revised "gentlemen's agreement" between Japan and the United States. Mr. Phelan said there were three methods by which this matter might be handled. These were by Federal statute, by treaty, or by a "gentlemen's agreement." While he did not say he would absolutely object to utilization of the new "gentlemen's agreement" plan of dealing with Japanese immigration, he did say that he thought the better way of dealing with the matter would be through the framing of a treaty.

One objection which Senator Phelan urged against the "gentleman's agreement" method was that such an agreement would not have to be submitted to the Senate for ratification, that it would be in the nature of a private agreement and would leave the initiative in regard to prohibiting Japanese immigration to this country to the Japanese Government, instead of leaving it to the United States Government to determine whether Japanese coming to the United States were entitled to admission.

MURGUIA DENIES REVOLT.

Denounces Former Followers of Carranza in Open Letter.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 27.—Francisco Murguia, a former Carranza General, whose secret departure from Mexico City several weeks ago following his release from prison was the cause of rumors of his intentions to start a new revolution, says he is not thinking of an uprising against the present regime and desires only to be allowed to live out his life in peace, according to a letter alleged to have been written by General Murguia and published this afternoon by Las Noticias.

Carlos Ortiz, editor of the newspaper, vouches for the genuineness of the letter, which was written to him under date of Jan. 20. The only date it bears is "in encampment." The letter is bitterly sarcastic in its references to former followers of Carranza, characterizing several of them as demented, robbers and traitors.

"With such elements there is not going to be revolution—only robbery—and therefore I am going to do nothing," says the letter.

New Fast Mail to the Orient.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Announcement that the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, an American steamship line, will inaugurate on Feb. 1 a service of 20-knot steamships from San Francisco to Honolulu, Manila, Saigon, Singapore and Calcutta, was made today by the Post Office Department. These steamers, postal officials assert, not only will give mail service to certain points in the Orient, but will reduce the transit time in cases where they compete on routes now taken by steamers of other lines.

DISARM, SAYS BORAH, OR BUILD BIG NAVY

Idaho Senator Threatens a Move for Wide Inquiry Into Our Naval Program.

HITS THOSE URGING DELAY

Must Act or People Will Overturn Congress, He Says—King and McKellar Back Him.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan 27. Speaking in the Senate today on his resolution for the negotiation of a treaty between Great Britain, Japan and the United States to reduce gradually the naval forces of those countries within five years, Senator Borah said that if Congress was to perform its full duty to the people it must act as speedily as possible on the question of naval disarmament. "Two alternatives today faced the United States," said the Senator—first, an international agreement looking to disarmament, or second, construction of a navy safe to defend the country against any possible enemy or group of enemies."

To complete the capital ships included in the present naval program would require, Senator Borah estimated, about $500,000,000. "There are sixteen ships on this program, and Senator Borah said the final cost would be about $40,000,000 each. It was because of the tremendous expense involved in the program, he explained, that he introduced the resolution to direct the Committee on Naval Affairs to inform the Senate what could be accomplished by a modern fighting navy. The Senator added that he wanted to know whether under present conditions it was wise for this Government to continue to build such ships as were on the ways or authorized.

"If action upon this measure," said the Senator, referring to his resolution, "is to be delayed, as I understand is the desire of some gentlemen in public life, then it is important that we should know something of our own building program, and whether or not when completed it will prove efficient, in the event we have to use it. If it should transpire that we are building obsolete ships and creating an inefficient navy, it would seem to me that it is a stupendous blunder to complete that program.

"If what alleged experts say is true it would seem to a layman that forty submarines, which I understand can be built at about the cost of one modern battleship, would be far more effective. I would rather have forty submarines up and down the coast than eight or ten battleships.

"I believe that the masses of the people in this country, Japan and Great Britain are in favor of abandoning a competitive naval building program. I think we owe it to the people of this country before we place additional burdens upon them, to exhaust the means of avoiding it.

"If Congress does not demonstrate to the voters of this country that we have endeavored in good faith to secure partial disarmament and have failed, and that, therefore, there is no alternative left but to have an efficient navy for safety and protection, they will send a Congress here which will cut these appropriations, regardless of consequences."

He added that if the report of the Committee on Naval Affairs to the Senate was not satisfactory, he would introduce a resolution calling for an investigation of the entire naval problem. In answer to questions, he said he was not informed whether the Navy Department had made an investigation along that line.

He asserted that some high navy officers believed that capital ships had lost their value, but could not state their real opinions. He urged a release of the real thought of the navy.

Senator King, Democrat, of Utah, supported the Borah proposals.

Senator McKellar, Democrat, of Tennessee, also endorsed the idea of an inquiry about the best type of vessels for the navy.

KUKLUX INITIATE 500 KLANSMEN

Searchlights and Torches Light First Semi-Public Ceremonial at Birmingham.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Jan. 27.—More than 500 candidates waded knee-deep in water and slush tonight into the Mystic Cave of the Knights of the Kuklux Klan and mounted to the heights of Supreme Knighthood, where they may now sit among the gods of the Empire Invisible.

The ceremonial, described as the greatest since the founding of the new organization of the Klan, was held on the fifty-fourth anniversary of the taking of the oath as Imperial Wizard by General Nathan Bedford Forrest, when the original Invisible Empire of the Kuklux Klan was founded on Jan. 27, 1866, in the hills of Tennessee.

Half the Alabama State Fair Grounds, where the ceremony was held, was knee deep in water. The candidates, however, were not permitted to pick dry spots, but were forced to splash forward to the strains of weird music.

The initiates took the oath about the fiery emblem of the order, on the inside of a great quadrangle, formed by hordes of white-robed, hooded figures. The outer walls of the great square were guarded by Klan horsemen, that none might enter but those who were conversant with the secrets of the order.

Meanwhile, the Klansmen, shrouded in white, formed the living cross in the centre of the racetrack. Each held a cross aloft, the standard being white and the cross-arm red. Two great searchlights played upon them. In front was the throne of the Imperial Wizard, surrounded by a thousand Klansmen.

The candidates were marched forward in fours, passing the throne and the cross, and there, in front of the living emblem, the oath was administered.

This is the first time in history that the public has been permitted to witness a Kuklux Klan conclave, even from a distance. Newspaper men were permitted to stand on a housetop inside the fair grounds enclosure, with guards on all sides to see that they kept the places assigned to them. The general public had to be content with a more distant view.

Referring to the alleged hunt for Klansmen in New York, Mr. Simmons declared that "they couldn't find us after the Mayor sicked 'em on us, but we are in New York just the same."

UNIONS OFFER HOOVER HELP

Would Supply Train Crews to Transport 50,000,000 Bushels of Wheat.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 27.—Engine and train crews to move 50,000,000 bushels of wheat to be donated by Western farmers was today offered by the chief executives of the big railroad brotherhoods, without charge for the men's labor, to Herbert Hoover, in charge of relieving starvation among the hungry millions of Europe.

The offer of the railroad men's service was contained in a telegram to Hoover and said it was believed arrangements could be made with the railroads to furnish solid trains to transport this wheat to coast cities free of charge. The message was signed by Warren S. Stone, Grand Chief of the engineers; L. E. Sheppard, President of the conductors; W. S. Carter, President of the firemen, and W. G. Lee, President of the trainmen.

Mr. Stone took up the matter with the railroad executives after he returned from a farmers' convention at Columbia, Mo., last week, where President Gustafsen of the farmers' organization of Nebraska said the Western farmers were ready to donate 50,000,000 bushels of wheat to starving Europeans.

Daniel Willard, President of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, has wired Mr. Stone pledging his assistance and cooperation.

SAYS BRITISH LOOK TO US IN PACIFIC

Writer in London Times Suggests Naval Agreement With Dominions.

Special Cable to The New York Times.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—The Venerable R. H. Cole, formerly Archdeacon of Taranaki, who has spent many years in various parts of the Pacific, writes to The London Times on the British naval problem as it affects the Pacific. He says that the British Empire being the richest commonwealth in the world could solve its naval problem by simply creating a navy proportionate in size and strength to its enormous population, its great area, its dignity, its vast resources and its great responsibilities to the world.

"But," he says, "the Empire has, apparently at least, broken itself into fragments and independent nationalities, each standing alone and apart, each, with one exception, not only declining this naval dignity but even failing to provide an adequate navy for its own national safety and protection . . . The United States—and, indeed, Japan as well—on the other hand has welded itself by tears and blood into one great political and naval unit, wisely determined to rely on itself and owe allegiance to itself alone. By so doing it is becoming the most powerful unit in the world, and therefore feels itself equally entitled to the greatest navy in the world. This it is determined to have and will have. We who refuse this dignity for the lesser dignity of little nations and little navies cannot question its claim thereto."

He says that instead of having a grand commonwealth fleet the Empire is having recourse to agreements and understandings with foreign powers, and he mentions that between Great Britain and Japan. He proceeds:

"Probably in the main the public opinion of the other and smaller nations in the commonwealth is against this agreement and its renewal because through the operation of certain sinister secret forces of fairly well-known origin the fear of Japan has in the Pacific become an obsession. It is unreasonable, but there it is. There remains then but one power with whom the lesser nations in the commonwealth might come to some form of understanding, and that power is the United States. Clearly there are no superlative difficulties in the way for such an understanding. Public opinion in the United States would probably be in favor of an agreement with these independent nations in the Pacific, but it would not be, and, indeed, it is difficult to see how it ever could be, in favor of a naval understanding with the paramount nation of the commonwealth, however much England might desire it. It is wisdom to face that fact and cease to pretend.

"While we are busily engaged in emphasizing our differences and in declaring the equality of our nations before the world we are allowing the trident to fall out of our hands. The United States is intent upon picking it up, and until our naval problem is solved through commonwealth naval unity and solidarity, which, after all, is the only solution, as the great war has shown, the trident must remain in other hands. If this is to be, let us at least hope that as we have proudly borne it untarnished from the days of our great forefathers to Jutland, the hand of the United States will bear it aloft equally untarnished in the years that are to be."

COOLIDGE FOR TARIFF FOR 'PUBLIC WELFARE'

Southern Congress Passes a Resolution Favoring the Fordney Bill.

ATLANTA, Jan. 27.—Calvin Coolidge, Vice President-elect, addressing the Southern Tariff Conference tonight, said that in a determination of the economic policy of the country "the sole object to be sought is the public welfare." He defended the protective tariff, but said there would need to be "a careful resurvey of the feild."

"Geographical divisions and sectional lines have been swept away," said Mr. Coolidge. "The just pride of the North and the South, the East and the West, is everywhere submerged in the overmastering sentiment of a yet greater pride that we are all Americans."

Pleas for tariff protection for Southern industries were made by Governor Parker of Louisiana, John H. Kirby of Texas, President of the congress, ex-Senator McLaurin of South Carolina and others.

Passage of the Fordney emergency tariff bill was asked in a resolution adopted by the congress.

ORDERS ILLINOIS RATES UP.

Interstate Commerce Commission Finds Injustice to Indiana.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—State rates in Illinois on freight and on milk and cream were ordered raised today to the same level as those prevailing in interstate commerce. The order, as issued by the Interstate Commerce Commission, is effective March 7.

The commission in its decision held that while Illinois rates were lower than interstate rates, thereby favoring Illinois concerns, such rates were not fair to competing business concerns in Indiana and Michigan and worked as a general discrimination against interstate traffic. The commission declared this was particularly true of the rates on coal, ores, cattle and grain moving in and through the State of Illinois.

HELENA, Mont., Jan. 27.—Upon application of counsel for Montana railroads, Attorney General Rankin was enjoined today by the United States District Court here from interfering with the establishment of increased passenger fares within the State recently authorized by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

SHIP BOARD LACKS FUNDS.

Members of Senate Committee Urges It to Appeal to the House.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The Shipping Board informed the Senate Commerce Committee today that funds for operation of its fleet would be exhausted within a few days. No formal action was taken by the committee, but Chairman Jones said members were of the opinion that the board should seek emergency relief in the House, and had been culpable in not doing so.

The House voted recently against appropriations for such operations. Representative Good of Iowa, Chairman of the Appropriations Committee, saying that the board should secure necessary funds by selling surplus ships.

"That means scrapping the ships," said Senator Jones today. "Everybody knows there is no market for ships. They can't be sold immediately."

Deny Actor Will Aid Famine Fund.

The Board of Foreign Missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church made known last night that it had asked no actor to appear in a benefit performance in aid of the China Famine Fund to be given next Sunday night. Ralph A. Ward, secretary of the missions, said that the Methodist Church had nothing to do with the benefit, and that the missions had no connection whatever with any theatrical performance of any description.

Hold Liquor Dealer for Having Alleged Forged Permit—Explosion Reveals Brooklyn Still.

Holders of permits to engage in the wholesale liquor business are in danger of losing them. All applications for renewal of these permits have been held in abeyance by Prohibition Commissioner John F. Kramer, in Washington, pending a ruling from Attorney General Palmer whether the Prohibition Department, under the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead act, should restrict wholesale dealers in liquors to wholesale druggists, as is contended should be done by the Anti-Saloon League and similar organizations. This became known yesterday on the return of Federal Prohibition Director Charles R. O'Connor, from a conference at Washington, with prohibition officials.

The decision of the Attorney General is expected almost any day now, Mr. O'Connor said. Mr. O'Connor has contended that, from a legal standpoint, wholesale liquor permits should be granted. He said yesterday he had not changed his views.

About 900 of the 1,700 holders of permits last year to wholesale liquors made application for renewals. Director O'Connor said he had already passed upon about 90 per cent. of the applications for renewals and had notified each applicant of his action. However, the applications will not be forwarded to Washington, he said, until the ruling comes from the Attorney General. Mr. O'Connor said the total number of wholesalers, in the event the ruling of the Attorney General is favorable, would not exceed 400 or 500.

The issuance of withdrawal permits to wholesale liquor dealers for the withdrawal of liquors from bonded warehouses for non-beverage purposes has been stopped, Mr. O'Connor said, until the status of the permit holders has been determined. Mr. O'Connor said he had been allowing the withdrawal of about 7,500 cases of liquor a day for some time for medicinal purposes, so that in case of an epidemic there would be ample liquors out of bond to meet the need.

Charged with having in his possession an alleged forged withdrawal permit and with having obtained 1,250 cases of liquor fraudulently, Angelo Sasany, Secretary of Migliaccio & Manno, Inc., a liquor concern at 124 West Twenty-first Street, was arraigned yesterday afternoon before United States Commissioner Hitchcock, and was released in $10,000 bail pending examination.

An explosion in the basement of 62 Morrell Street, Brooklyn, early yesterday morning resulted in the arrest of David Saltzman, who occupies an apartment in the building and has a dry goods store on the ground floor, on a charge of violating the Volstead act. Patrolmen Peterson and Morrissey of the Stagg Street Station said they found in the basement a twenty-gallon still, wrecked by the explosion; six barrels of mash and five gallons of liquor. Commissioner Barmore held Saltzman in $1,000 bail.

MET STOLL ON TRAIN.

Acquaintance Reports Clue to Missing Photoplay Company Head.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 27.—The first definite information concerning the whereabouts of Frederick F. Stoll, President and organizer of the United States Photoplay Company, who has been missing since Christmas, was discovered here tonight through Robert Lowenthal, a traveling man employed by the Garden City Window Shade Company.

"I met Mr. Stoll in Los Angeles, Cal., on Dec. 25," said Mr. Lowenthal, "and we both left on the same train for the East. At Kansas City Mr. Stoll left the train en route to Hot Springs, Ark., where he said he was going to take the baths to relieve his lumbago."

The disappearance of Mr. Stoll, who under President Cleveland was a Superintendent of Mail Carriers in Chicago, was revealed through the filing of a number of suits against him in New Jersey, where the photoplay company has studios.

SAYS OPEN SHOP WILL FAIL.

Secretary Morrison of A. F. of L. Predicts Victory for Labor.

Frank Morrison, Secretary of the American Federation of Labor, spoke at the Manhattan Trade School for Girls, Twenty-second Street and Lexington Avenue, last night, on "What the Open Shop Means." He quoted ex-President Taft as saying that the so-called "open shop" is a "closed non-union shop."

The advocates of the "open shop," Mr. Morrison said, desire to destroy the labor movement and to have autocratic sway as to wages, working conditions and hours. He predicted that the movement for the "open shop" would not be successful, but that, on the other hand, the labor movement would continue to progress in spite of the opposition of "the lawyers, courts and legislators."

TO BE CHILDREN'S MOVIE DAY

Performances Tomorrow Morning to Aid European Relief Fund.

At practically all the motion picture theatres in the United States tomorrow morning children will be entertained at special performances, the entire proceeds of which will be donated to the fund for the relief of Europe's starving children. Tickets for the special morning matinées have been sold in advance by the picture men and by the Red Cross, Y. M. C. A. and other charitable and welfare organizations.

In New York 500,000 children will be guests of the picture theatres and of the persons who have purchased tickets at 50 cents each and donated them to the public schools, orphan asylums and other children's institutions. On Friday afternoon between 150,000 and 200,000 tickets will be distributed to children in the public schools of New York.

Announcement was made yesterday that the national collection for $33,000,000 to feed the starving children of Europe had passed the half-way mark. New York has given $3,000,000 to the fund though the campaign in this State has just been started.

SAYS LLOYD GEORGE PREDICTS DRY ENGLAND

'Pussyfoot' Quotes Him as Conditioning Prophecy on Success of Prohibition Here.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—William E. (Pussyfoot) Johnson, just returned from London, on arriving in Washington issued a statement in which he said Premier Lloyd George asserted recently that "if America makes good and enforces her prohibition law England herself will be dry within ten years." Mr. Johnson said that England was more concerned about America's prohibition policy than about our action on the League of Nations and that British troubles in India, Egypt and Ireland were "largely caused by the liquor traffic."

"American prohibition," said Mr. Johnson, "is the target at which every minister interest in the world is shooting. 'If America makes good and enforces her prohibition law England herself will be dry within ten years,' is what the British Prime Minister recently told a friend of mine. It is being generally recognized in Europe that if the United States stands pat on her dry policy the whole world will be compelled to do the same for economic reasons, whether they wish to or not.

"The British liquor interests are scared stiff and are spending money in torrents slandering America and American institutions. How much of British money is being used in America in fomenting trouble God only knows, I don't.

"England is more concerned about our prohibition policy than our action as to the League of Nations or anything else. Her troubles in India, Egypt and even in Ireland are largely caused by the liquor traffic. There is less unrest and less economic trouble in America than in any civilized nation on earth except prohibition Finland and prohibition Norway.

"The fate of the liquor traffic throughout the world is being fought out right here in the United States. If we make good the whole world will follow in our footsteps within the present generation. If we flunk the world will simply become a game preserve for the liquor corporations for another fifty years. But we will make good. The prohibition law with all its difficulties is even now being better enforced than the old license laws ever were. That is what is spurring on the wets with a campaign of falsehood that should make Ananias dig out of his grave in disgust."

PALMER 'PLAYED UPON,' REDS' CHAMPION SAYS

Ralston Tells Senate Committee Attorney General Was Duped by His Subordinates.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Methods of Department of Justice agents in all parts of the country during the raids on radicals in the Winter of 1919 indicated, in his opinion, a "thorough scheme of action" planned at Washington, Jackson Ralston, an attorney of this city, today told the Senate Judiciary Committee. Mr. Ralston was one of the lawyers who signed a report charging the Department of Justice with illegal practices in its conduct of the raids.

Attorney General Palmer, Ralston declared, was "played upon by the growing bureau of investigation which was trying to justify its existence" "by advertising a radical outbreak that never took place.

In reply to a question of Senator Sterling, Republican, of South Dakota, whether in his opinion sufficient apprehension of a radical uprising had existed at the time to justify extreme action by the Department of Justice, Mr. Ralston said:

"The public had been carefully trained by the Department of Justice through the Bureau of Investigation to believe that there was great danger. They advertised uprisings on specific dates, which failed time after time to materialize, until the whole matter became a national joke."

Ralston added that some of the bombs alleged to have been sent prominent persons had never been produced.

Printed copies of the Third Internationale manifesto, issued at Moscow in March, 1919, and alleged by Department of Justice agents to have been found in the possession of Max Holder of this city, who has received a court award of $400 for false arrest, could not have been in Holder's possession, Mr. Ralston said, since no translation into English had been made of the manifesto until after his arrest.

Mr. Ralston said that letters he had written to attorneys in different cities asking for expressions of opinion regarding a proposed impeachment of Assistant Secretary of Labor Louis F. Post for his alleged leniency toward radicals had brought replies from all over the country. He said the letters defended Secretary Post and denounced the Department of Justice for its methods in arresting aliens without warrants and holding them for deportation without allowing them counsel.

HOME FOR DUTCH LEGATION.

Site Chosen and Work on New Structure Will Be Pushed.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—With the return to Washington from Holland tomorrow of Jonkheer W. H. de Beaufort, Counselor and Chargé d'Affaires of the Netherlands Legation, plans will go forward for the erection in Washington of a permanent building to serve as a home for the legation of that Government.

The site has already been bought. It is on the east side of Fifteenth Street, N. W., immediately south of Euclid, and faces the new Meridian Hall Park. From the new legation building there will be a clear view across this park to Sixteenth Street, facing the French Embassy building and the residence of Mrs. Marshall Field.

It is not the purpose of the Netherlands Government to erect a "palance" but to build an ornate and substantial structure that will serve as a residence for the Netherlands Minister and as offices for his legation. During the past year the Netherlands Government has bought buildings at Berlin, Paris and Brussels as permanent homes for their diplomatic missions in those capitals.

SAVE 200 BOYS IN FIRE.

Xaverian Brothers' School in Maryland Is Destroyed.

LEONARDTOWN, Md., Jan. 27.—A number of small boys, pupils in the Xaverian Brothers' School here were dropped from windows and caught by men below when the school building was burned today. There were more than 200 boy pupils in the school at the time the fire broke out but the brothers got them all out safely and prevented a panic.

For a while destruction of the town was threatened, but with the exception of a small building that was partly burned the fire was confined to the school building.

The fire is believed to have started in a defective flue in the office of the school. The flames spread rapidly and in a few minutes the building, a large frame structure, was burning fiercely.

Two other school buildings, one in the course of construction, were partly burned, but were not destroyed, being of concrete.

Col. Green Gives $10,000 to Fordham

A contribution of $10,000 from Colonel E. H. Green, son of the late Hetty Green, yesterday sent the Greater Fordham Appeal Fund to $201,549. In announcing his gift at a luncheon at the Bankers' Club, Colonel Green, who is a Director of the Seaboard National Bank, said: "Although I am not of the Catholic faith I appreciate the great work that is being done at Fordham University and the dire need of new buildings and additional equipment to carry on that work."

Imitations of Genuine Merchandise Give Imitation Results

Please ask the man with a wooden leg or an artificial arm if that is not so.

Grateful indeed we are, most assuredly, for anything that gives assistance to those who gave their all to their country when they put on an Army or Navy uniform. We cannot but sympathize with "the boys" who must make the best of whatever they can get.

But imitations of wool and worsted and shoddy in woods, furniture and household goods are horrors that this Store avoids.

Possibly there never was a time when inventors and dishonest speculators were so busy and so adroit in finding ways to cheapen everything by deceit in making articles appear to be genuine when they are only substitutes to sell at a lower price.

FRANCE BUYS RIGHT TO NEW HELICOPTER

Inventor Says He Is Trying to Produce the Airship of the Future.

CALLED FLYING AUTOMOBILE

Army Mission Leaves to Observe a Demonstration of the Machine.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 27.—Will the Helicopter be the airship of the future? This question is receiving a great deal of attention in French scientific circles.

Advocates of the development of the helicopter point to it as an airship which can rise from one's backyard and alight anywhere, thus eliminating the dangers of starting and landing, which today cause 90 per cent. of all airplane accidents.

An inventor who has made greatest progress with the helicopter is Marquis Raoul Pateras Pescara, of Argentine birth, who has been conducting experiments at Barcelona. So impressed was the French War Office with his progress that it has bought the exclusive rights to use his machine, and today a French Army mission left Paris with Pescara to set his machine perform.

"The helicopter is a machine which mounts vertically, is theoretically capable of great speed and descends vertically. The great difficulty heretofore has been in landing easily. This, Pescara says, he has solved. Before leaving for Barcelona the inventor consented today to give some of his ideas about the development of the helicopter.

"A great mistake has been made in the development of this machine," he said. "Inventors have tried to make a helicopter machine which worked like an airplane with the engine stopped. My plan is to compromise the vertical movement with a longitudinal movement. I have obtained two essential results which mean the solution of the problem—descent and landing.

"My machine can descend by leaving the propellers free to revolve and their resistance makes the machine come down like a parachute. As for the necessary motion in landing, that is accomplished by changing the angle of the propeller blades.

"The machine is an automobile which flies. The body has the form of an automobile. The upright from the motor bears two sets of propellers which revolve in opposite directions. The height of the machine is about 10 feet and its weight is 700 kilograms. I have established stability in every direction, both vertical and longitudinal.

"This machine is capable of a speed of 100 miles per hour. I am going to build a machine which will fly faster than the swiftest airplanes making a speed of 180 miles or more, with which I hope to win the next Michelin race. But that is for the future. For the present I am trying to give France the airship of the future."

M. Painlevé, former Premier of France and one of the foremost scientists, will soon read a paper before the Academy of Sciences on Pescara's machine.

DIDN'T DISCUSS CUBAN BANK

Crowder Denies That He Said National Bank of Cuba Must Be 'Saved'

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The State Department today announced that it had been advised by cable by Major Gen. Enoch Crowder, U. S. A., now in Havana on a special mission for the President in connection with the effort to solve the Cuban situation, denying that he had made any statement to the effect that the National Bank of Cuba must be "saved." On the basis of General Crowder's denial the State Department issued this statement:

"General Crowder has cabled to the State Department from Havana that he has just seen a statement published in the United States that he had stated that the National Bank of Cuba must be saved. General Crowder, in his message to the department, stated that he had expressed no such view, either publicly or privately, about any bank, local or foreign, doing business in Cuba.

"The statement referred to was contained in a Havana dispatch, dated Jan. 16, published in THE NEW YORK TIMES of Jan. 17, 1921, as follows:

"'The first development in this will come tomorrow morning, when William A. Merchant, President of the National Bank of Cuba, with a branch in Wall Street, is to appear before General Crowder. There has appeared some strong editorial comment since General Crowder's first public statement, to the effect that the National Bank of Cuba must be "saved." Fear is expressed that the American public would accept this bank, because of its name, as "the" Cuban national banking institution, especially because it was, prior to the moratorium, the depository of the nation's funds.'"

DOG SAVED FROM RIVER ICE.

Waif's S O S Halts Ferry, Throws Man Into Water, Delays Commuters.

The ferryboat Edgewater, which plies between West 130th Street and Edgewater, N. J., was held up half an hour in midstream at 9 o'clock yesterday morning while one of the quartermasters rescued a dog which had ventured out on the broken ice and was drifting toward the bay on the floe.

A few minutes after the ferry had left the Manhattan side, Captain James Brannigan sighted the dog, barking an S O S and began maneuvering so as to intercept the block of ice. Then Quartermaster Barry put a ladder over the side. He had scarcely placed his weight on it when the ladder broke, throwing him into the river. He clutched the side of the boat, reached for the dog and passed it to the deck, after which he was pulled aboard. Then dog and man hurried to the engine room to dry out. Not a passenger complained.

INDICT 2 DETECTIVES IN WHITMAN INQUIRY

Insurance companies to get money for finding the cars.

Mr. Whitman has lists from several insurance companies which, he says, show in detail rewards paid in several hundred cases within the last year. The lists show the owner of the automobile, the date on which it was stolen, the policeman or policemen to whom the reward was paid and the amount of the reward. The amounts range from $50 to $400, Mr. Whitman said.

"The average, I believe, is about $100 a car, which would make $450,000 paid in rewards during 1920," said Mr. Whitman. Some of the rewards, he added, had apparently been accepted under authorization by the Police Commissioner, but these the exceptions.

Mr. Whitman said that the evidence so far obtained indicated that a very small number of policemen had divided the graft.

Going On for Four Years.

"While this particular graft has been going on for four years, last year it was the greatest in the history of the city," he asserted. "There is no indication that it flourished under previous police administrations. In all my experience it is the most prolific graft system that I have ever known."

Many of the rewards for recovered cars, it was said, were paid through the Underwriters' Automobile Detective Agency. One company which paid no rewards had lost fifty-six cars, it was asserted, of which only three were recovered.

Two members of the Police Department were reported last night to have made statements to Mr. Whitman involving other members of the department. Asked about the report, Mr. Whitman said: "I don't want to answer that question."

Mr. Whitman said that he would go before the Grand Jury again on Monday and would ask for additional indictments.

Good Records of Detectives.

Both of the detectives who were indicted yesterday are well known. Owens was a Captain in the A. E. F. and was a police honor man. Horan was chauffeur for Rhinelander Waldo, when the latter was Police Commissioner, and has received honorary mention for his services.

Owens became a patrolman in 1907 and entered the detective bureau in December, 1910, becoming a first grade detective on April 13, 1912. At the outbreak of the war he was selected by Arthur Woods, then Police Commissioner, to represent the department in France. He drove the Police Honor Legion ambulance, the gift of Vincent Astor. He was decorated with the French War Cross with a Palm for bravery under fire. He obtained a transfer to the American Ambulance Corps and was promoted to a First Lieutenancy in May, 1918. He entered the military intelligence service and returned from France on Aug. 4, 1919, with the rank of Captain.

Sergeant Owens won his membership in the Police Honor Legion by rescuing, at the risk of his life, women and children from a burning building in Eldridge Street on May 9, 1911.

Horan joined the police force in April, 1910, and went into the Detective Bureau in December, 1913. He was made a first-grade detective in November, 1917. When Mr. Waldo was Commissioner Horan received honorable mention because he drove the automobile containnig the detectives who arrested Hans Schmidt, who killed Anna Aumueller.

The additional Grand Jury, which indicted Horan and Owens, also filed yesterday a superceding indictment against Police Captain Percy M. Du Bois, formerly of the West Twentieth Street station. Captain Du Bois was indicted last week for accepting unlawful fees during a printers' strike. The new indictment corrects minor errors which appeared in the original true bill.

Fire Commissioner Thomas J. Drennan issued yesterday a circular quoting a letter from Mayor Hylan which warns the firemen against violations of the penal law by taking illegal fees for services rendered in the course of their duty.

To the Business Men of the Retail Tire Business

MANY concerns in this country will look back on 1920 as the year they discovered the American public. They found out that a nation is not mere mass and statistics—but people.

Right now, everywhere, business policies are being re-written—with the individual uppermost. The average American citizen is no longer a market. He is a person.

There was never any other way to look at him in the first place.

NO manufacturer ever had a better chance to test a policy than the makers of United States Tires had last year.

With every temptation to force production—to join the scramble to get the big share of tire demand—the United States Rubber Company stuck to its quality program. Any suggestion of lowered standards for immediate benefit were met with the words: "No Compromise."

* * *

THOUSANDS of motorists—average American citizens—independent thinkers—acted in about the same way as this Company. They had temptations, too. Big discounts. Fictitious bargains. But they went to a legitimate dealer and bought United States Tires.

These men had keen noses for economy values—and nothing put them off the track. Somehow or other they fastened on to the simple down-to-earth policy behind United States Tires—a policy that had never been bill-boarded broadcast but that can be set down in fifty words:

"Take the average American you see on the streets of your home town.
Never mind the weight of his car or the size of its wheels.
Put as much conscience into a 30x3½ tire as any other.
Think of the man before anything.
Trust him to do square-toed, sensible thinking about tire economy."

WHAT this policy did is now a matter of record. This Company feels that it created the most substantial level-headed tire following in this country.

Because of this following, the makers of United States Tires are working with every element at normal. December, 1920, shipments to dealers for early 1921 business were greater even than in the same month of 1919.

MOREOVER, this Company starts 1921 with an unfilled order balance. Tire users get fresh tires, of current production.

And now—this very day—more dealers and more tire users are coming to U. S. Tires than ever before.

OFFERS $500 EACH FOR NIGHT RIDERS

Kentucky Governor Calls on Courts and Militia to Suppress Outrages.

HAS TROOPS IN READINESS

Grand Jury Investigations of Raids on Tobacco Growers Ordered In Two Counties.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Jan. 27.—Governor Edwin P. Morrow offered today rewards of $500 for the arrest and conviction of each person participating in night riding in Fleming and Bath counties, requested the courts in each county to forthwith make Grand Jury investigations of reports that bands of armed men intimidated tobacco farmers last Saturday night, and instructed the State Adjutant General to have four troops of cavalry in readiness for immediate action.

"I intend to, and will, use every power of the State to save the honor of the State and to prevent midnight outrages upon its citizens," said the Governor in a statement. "Every dollar in the State Treasury and every soldier at my command is pledged to the prevention of night riding, with its outrages, burnings and intimidations.

The troops are stationed at Louisville, London, Manchester and Louisa. They are supplied with horses and equipment for field duty.

On the heels of the announcement came word from Circuit Court Judge Henry R. Prewitt that he would convene a special Bath County Grand Jury at Owingsville tomorrow, and that Judge C. D. Newell was likely to deliver a special charge to the Fleming County Grand Jury when it convened at Flemingsburg.

The night riders were reported to have operated near Bethel, in Bath County, and near Sherbourne, in Fleming County. In each case, it was said, mounted men called tobacco farmers from their homes and threatened them if they failed to heed warnings to cut out a tobacco crop this year and hold the last crop for higher prices.

GALLIPOLIS, Ohio, Jan. 27.—Joseph Arrington, a tobacco farmer living near this city, reported today that his tobacco barn, containing 10,000 pounds of burley leaf tobacco, had been burned last night by an incendiary. Authorities believe the fire was started by persons opposed to the sale of the 1920 crop because of prevailing low prices.

SAYS REDS BURNED ARMORY.

Ohio Authorities Start Investigation of Cleveland Grays Fire.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 27.—H. A. Dykeman, State Marshal, left suddenly at noon today for Cleveland, where he will make a thorough investigation of the burning yesterday of the armory of the Cleveland Grays, a military organization.

The State Fire Marshal's office announced that an investigation would be made of tips that the armory had been set on fire by radicals.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 27.—Twenty-eight witnesses have been subpoenaed to appear before Thomas Loreen, Deputy State Fire Marshal, who began an investigation today into the cause of the fire which destroyed the Grays' armory, entailing a loss of $300,000, of which $50,000 was sustained by the Federal Government. Bliss Morton, chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, also is expected to conduct an inquiry.

Colonel L. S. Conelly, commander, and Trustees of the Cleveland Grays believe the fire was started by radicals in revenge for activities against them by the organization.

Access to that part of the building in which the fire started is through a door which is said o have tbeen locked and was broken open.

"There is no question in my mind about the guilt of the radicals," Captain H. P. Shupe, Chairman of the Board of Trustees, said. "They have attempted to break into the hall several times."

Clarke Is Security League Treasurer

Lewis L. Clarke, President of the American Exchange National Bank, of this city, was elected Treasurer of the National Security League at a meeting of the Board of Directors yesterday. Mr. Clarke succeeds the late Alexander J. Hamphill, who had been Treasurer since 1918. This was the first meeting of the Security League's Board this year. The league spent $84,341.44 last year and its membership receipts showed an increase over 1919 of nearly $7,000.

WOMEN AND BABES DROWN.

Captain Is Accused of Ordering Them Overboard in Philippine Wreck

MANILA, P. I., Jan. 27.—Women with babies in arms leaped overboard and were drowned or dashed to death against the rocks as a result of orders of the Captain of the schooner Felicidad, wrecked at the mouth of the Agno River, Pangasinan Province, with a loss of thirty-six lives, according to statements of one of the rescued passengers.

Official investigation was ordered here today into the conduct of the Captain and crew of the wrecked vessel.

The Captain ordered all hands to jump overboard when the storm-tossed schooner grounded and appeared to be breaking to pieces on the rocks, according to the survivors' account. Among the fourteen survivors were the Captain and four of the crew. Three of the crew and thirty-three passengers of the coastwise vessel were lost. The passenger victims were mostly women and children.

CONVICTED OF BOND THEFT.

First Verdict of Guilty Reached in Stealing of $3,000,000 of Securities.

The first conviction in connection with the theft of upward of $3,000,000 worth of securities from brokers in the financial district two years ago was returned yesterday in General Sessions against Patrick Rowan, who was indicted for criminally receiving securities stolen from Harriman & Co., brokers, of 111 Broadway, and Munds, Rogers & Stackpole, brokers, 25 Broad Street.

Bennie Silverman, indicted with Rowan, pleaded guilty. Saul S. Myers, counsel for the National Surety Company, was the principal witness against Rowan. He said Silverman confessed last Summer. Silverman told him, he testified, that dishonest messengers in the financial district stole the securities and turned them over to Rowan and himself. The securities were recovered in Providence, R. I., later. Judge Nott will impose sentence on Rowman and Silverman in a few days.

REMOVE AMY TRUSTEES.

Two Sons Found Guilty of Wasting Assets of Late Banker.

Louis H. and Ernest J. H. Amy were found guilty yesterday by Surrogate Cohalan of wasting the assets of the estate of their father, Henry Amy, a banker, who died in 1901, and removed them as trustees.

Their removal was asked by their sister, Lucille D'Aragon of Paris, and they made no objection. She charged that when the banking business of H. Amy & Co. got into trouble before its bankruptcy in 1919, the defendants used securities belonging to the the estate for the benefit of the business and to secure their own personal loans.

The Surrogate's decision directs the Amys to turn over to a new trustee the remaining assets consisting of $93,000 in cash and a fifth interest in certain stocks.

Payroll Thief Surrenders, Is Tried, Given 8-15 Years on the Spot.

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, N. J., Jan. 27.—Two and one-half hours after Adam Kalentowsky, wanted here in connection with the robbery of a $3,000 payroll of the Paterson Silk Company, on Dec. 17, had given himself up to the police of that city yesterday, he was sentenced by Judge Watsin, to serve eight to fifteen years in State Prison.

The prisoner pleaded guilty to a charged of robbery after he had confessed his part in the holdup to the police. He is twenty years old and lives in Paterson. His three companions in the robber, one of whom was his brother, were convicted last week and given the same sentence. He said he had been in Buffalo and Chicago since the robbery and that he had spent $363 of the stolen money.

HANGS HIMSELF TO BED.

Wall Street Employe Uses Bathrobe Cord to End Life.

Clarence Stewart, 35 years old, for eighteen years an employe of Clark, Dodge & Co. of 15 Wall Street, hanged himself in the bedroom of his home at 124 West Seventy-seventh Street last night. He had lost most of his money in speculation.

When his wife returned from a visit with friends about 8 o'clock she could not enter the room and called the housekeeper. They broke open the door and found that Stewart had hanged himself to the foot of the bed with a bathrobe cord. Dr. Smith of Knickerbocker Hospital said he had been dead about an hour.

Y., Jan. 27.—Despite warnings that the ice was not safe, Oscar and George Bernard, brothers, of Rouse's Point, on Jan. 15 skated across Lake Champlain to Alburgh, Vt., with the intention of returning the same day. As not a trace of them has been found, it is feared that they were drowned on the return trip.

'BARONESS'S' WOES RELATED TO JURY

Wedding Trip of Maria Louise Ewen Described at Will Contest Hearing.

PROMISED HUSBAND $300,000

Then Asked Law Firm to Save Her Property—Couldn't Understand Contractor.

Testimony in support of allegations by John Ewen, a lawyer, that his aunt, Miss Maria Louise Ewen was not of sound mind when she made her will cutting him off from a share in her $300,000 estate, was offered before Surrogate Foley and the jury hearing the contest of her will yesterday. Joseph A. Muldoon, contractor, said he called on her three times, the last time not long before her death, concerning work she wanted done on one of her houses. She couldn't understand what he was telling her, he said, and the Rev. Aubrey Percy Nelson, who lived with her, took charge of the matter for her. He would not say he believed her insane, but declared he thought her incompetent.

George H. Olney, former law partner of Arthur Train, now attorney for Miss Ewen's estate, who aided in having her marriage to the bogus "Baron" von Koenits annulled, told of following her and her husband to Florida on their wedding trip. Her husband had her guarded and Olney couldn't see her until the Rev. Mr. Nelson, who accompanied him, sought the aid of the Episcopal clergyman at Jacksonville. He disclosed to the "Baroness" her husband's criminal record, and pointed out that the marriage was purely "mercenary."

Mr. Olney said that the "Baroness" became hysterical but said she would have to remain with her husband until she could get her jewelry, when she would escape. When the opportunity came a few days later for her to plead that she had to return to New York on a matter of business she swore on a Bible that she would return to him and that while in New York she would get $300,000 in securities and send them to him by express. Mr. Olney said that the couple occupied separate rooms at the hotel. Mr. Olney said she made the firm of Train & Olney trustees of the $300,000 to prevent them falling into von Koenits's hands.

Mr. Olney said that the decadent returned to Florida and remained with von Koenits four months before she left him finally. According to arrangements she enclosed a maple leaf in letters which von Koenits had not censored or dictated, and in those he had seen there was no maple leaf. Several of these letters were read to the jury.

The trial will continue today.

EARTHQUAKE SHAKES UP STATE VILLAGES

Lake George, Fort Edward and Other Towns Experience Third Shock in Fortnight.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., Jan. 27.—Villages throughout this section were shaken this morning, for the third time in less than two weeks, by what is believed to have been an earthquake. The vibrations were reported from Lake George, Hudson Falls, Fort Edward, Greenwich and other places.

Large cracks appeared in the grounds at several points in this vicinity. At Fort Edward the earth was opened for a distance of more than eight feet by a crack two and a half feet in width. In Lake George an old stone building near the postoffice was seen to tremble. The shock appeared to be most violent in the central part of the village.

The earth tremors that occurred in the region of Lake George yesterday morning left their imprints on the seismograph at Fordham University, according to J. J. Lynch, Assistant Professor of Physics at that institution, who explained that the tremors began at 7:30 A. M. and continued for more than twenty minutes. He described the markings on the seismograph as "microseisms," which means a heavy waved line, and said they were usually caused by slipping of the earth's surface, due to a readjustment to marked changes in temperature. These seismographic waves are not so abrupt or as large as are the zig-zag lines caused by heavy earth shocks such as frequently occur in Mexico and South American countries. Professor Lynch said, and, judging from the seismograph record, it seemed to him hardly probable that crevases of the large dimensions reported had actually occurred at Lake George.

Biggs, has called a hearing for Saturday in the proceeding brought by the West End Association against New Jersey plants charged with polluting the atmosphere by acid fumes. BETTER LEAVE POLITICS OUT.

If we can reorganize the traction system of the city only according to the exigencies of Republican politics, Democratic politics, Hylan politics, or any other kind, we may as well abandon the attempt. Politics is poison to business. If the politicians are permitted to shape Governor MILLER'S plan to their own views, we shall get neither better traction service nor a better City Administration.

Are the voters of New York all fools, or mostly fools? That is evidently the assumption of scared Republicans who see in the Governor's plan a sure way to re-elect Mayor HYLAN. We deny their assumption altogether. It is sheer political cowardice for Mr. LAGUARDIA, Mr. CURRAN and the men of the Republican machine to construct a bogey out of the Governor's proposal and then run away from it, shrieking. The sound and reasonable thing to do, the manly thing, is to examine the proposal with the respect due to its source and the attention due to its merits, and then to co-operate with the Executive in the effort to find a way out of the traction situation, which has become disgraceful to the city and dangerous to the interests of its people. If it promises a businesslike solution of the problem, the plan may with confidence be submitted to the judgment of the people. It would be a test of the intelligence of the electorate under which it would not fail. Certainly the present outcry of politicians against the plan is evidence of their belief that government by the people is itself a failure.

The Republican politicians and the Hylan Administration assume that the Governor intends to send down here some Moloch from up-State who will proceed to devour the people of the city. That is not his purpose. He said yesterday, "I would not appoint "a single man from outside New York "City on the Public Service Commis-"sion that would have authority over "New York City." The city is to forfeit no right. The change proposed is a substitution of a competent, business-like organization and regulation of the passenger-carrying lines of New York for the incapable and unworthy Administration that has steadily resisted all efforts to build them up to a stage where they could render efficient service. The plan would be applied and would operate under direction of New York men. It is preposterous to suppose that the voters would reject and condemn a plan of deliverance from present evils merely because it originated in Albany instead of in the City Hall.

We shall make no headway with the reorganization of the traction system if every plan proposed must be drawn up in fear of the present discredited City Administration and of the still more deeply discredited influences that foisted it upon the community. Sound business sense, not the counsel of demagogues, must control if we are to hope for a successful result.

NEW STATES ON THE BALTIC.

The Supreme Council, in the intervals between discussions of the reparations problem, decided to recognize Latvia and Esthonia. Lithuania, which might have been included, was left for later consideration, evidently in fear of possible untoward consequences of the dispute over Vilna. England, France and Italy are now directly opposed to our own Government, which has steadfastly held to the views of the Kerensky party in Russia and refused to recognize the alienation of any territory of the old Russian Empire, except Finland, "ethnic" Poland, and whatever Armenian territory Russia might be willing to give up.

There are some arguments in support of this policy, though, of course, it disregards self-determination. Russia was a large and formidable nation in the past, and it will continue to be a large and formidable nation in the future. The leaders of the anti-Bolshevist parties do not like to hear of "dismemberment," and even the Bolsheviki, though willing to give up territory when it suits their convenience, obviously give occasional consideration to the advantages of attaching Russian patriotism to their Government by marching back to the old frontier.

More convincing still is the economic argument. When Russia once more begins to produce and export, the prosperity of the Baltic States will depend chiefly on Russian trade through their ports. They will have to maintain the closest sort of economic relations with Russia under those conditions, and two small States dependent on a great nation a hundred times as large as either of them are bound to fall back pretty much under that nation's control. The Kerensky faction and other Russian liberals insist that they are willing to give extensive political autonomy to the Letts and Esths, but do not want this territory "alienated."

On the other hand, if anti-Bolshevist Russians are willing to grant this autonomy to the Baltic States, they should not object if the Baltic States set up for themselves and preserve their own independence against a Bolshevist Russia, which they have done. Both Latvia and Esthonia have successfully defended their frontiers. Esthonia was compelled to sign a treaty which makes it probable that Bolshevist Russia would in the long run absorb it, if Bolshevist Russia ever became a commercial nation; but the Bolsheviki have as yet shown no indication of being able to produce a surplus for export. Latvia and Esthonia are radical but not Bolshevist. Their agrarian reforms were sweeping, perhaps too sweeping; but American observers recently returned report that under the new system production, even now, is not greatly below the former level, and that it is likely to go far beyond it in future.

And above all these are working and reasonably stable Governments based on the popular will. To give them full de jure recognition, as the Supreme Council appears to have done, is perhaps a somewhat imprudent step; Russia will have to be reckoned with some day. But de facto recognition by our Government would strengthen the Lettish and Esthonian democracies and would not close the door on a subsequent understanding with Russia.

ONE ATLANTIC NAVAL BASE.

The proposal made by Rear Admiral WILLIAM S. SIMS that the navy yards on the Atlantic Coast be sold and the proceeds used in part to construct a great naval base on Narragansett Bay has moved Senator SWANSON of Virginia, formerly Chairman of the Committee on Naval Affairs, to say that "if Congress should develop a single "naval base on the Atlantic Coast, "with a view of abandoning all oth-"ers, that base would be located on "Hampton Roads." Senator SWANSON adds:

> Chesapeake Bay has been the seat of war activities on the sea for more than one hundred years. Practically the entire fleet operated within that land-locked body of water during the war with Germany. * * * All strategic considerations, plus climate, favor Hampton Roads.

The Virginia delegation in Congress is "up in arms" to combat the proposal of Admiral SIMS. He is reported to have said in his address before the Newport Chamber of Commerce forum that Narragansett Bay was the only sheet of water on the Atlantic Coast where the entire fleet could be sheltered in safety. He argued that with the present system of Atlantic navy yards the fleet after an engagement off the coast would have to scatter for repairs, a condition greatly to the advantage of an active enemy that could still keep the sea. This view of the strategic requirements is unassailable. Widely separated naval bases are a weakness in the presence of the enemy and a handicap in various ways to the fleet which must use them. The single Atlantic Coast base with adequate drydocks and repair shops, in fact with everything the navy needs, is of course not original with Admiral SIMS. It has been advocated before, and he could probably cite more than one judgment in support of Narragansett Bay as the best location for such a naval base. It may be assumed that sooner or later the policy of concentration will be adopted. The choice lies between Chesapeake Bay, Narragansett Bay and New York.

In his "Naval Strategy" MAHAN says that "Chesapeake Bay and New "York on our Atlantic Coast are two "ports clearly indicated by nature as "primary bases of supply, and con-"sequently for arsenals of chief im-"portance. For these reasons they "are also the proper ports of retreat "in case of a bad defeat, because of "the resources that should be accu-"mulated in them." This eminent writer adds:

> New York by its natural advantages lends itself profitably to a development greater than Norfolk; because of its two entrances and because Narragansett Bay could be embraced in the general scheme of defense for New York. This would provide practically three entrances or exits for a fleet.

Rear Admiral BRADLEY A. FISKE, retired, the foremost American authority on sea power today, maintains in "The Navy as a Fighting Machine" that New York "can be made into a naval base better than "any other now in the world because "of the large sheets of water tributary to it in New York Bay, Hud-"son River and Long Island Sound." He would have "a small naval base" at Block Island. "With a suitable base there," he says, "and another "on Martha's Vineyard, and the pres-"ent canal from Massachusetts Bay "to Buzzard's Bay sufficiently en-"larged, the whole coast from Boston "to New York, including Narragan-"sett Bay, could be made to form "one naval base which would have "three exits." Apparently Admiral FISKE prefers New York to Narragansett Bay as the seat of dockyards and repair shops. He speaks of its "un-"told resources in money, supplies "and men that it could on demand "produce, and the ease with which it "could be defended." The project of a single naval base is soon to be proposed to Congress, according to a report current in Washington.

CONTROL OF TEACHERS' SALARIES

The bill introduced by Senator FRARON of Syracuse, amending the Education law in relation to "the "fixing of salaries of members of the "supervising and teaching staff in "cities," looks in a direction at the very opposite point of the compass from that in which release from our present school tangle is to be found. What his bill seeks is opposed to all sound educational practice. It would lodge in the Board of Estimate the power to fix the salaries of all whose minimum salaries and increases are not protected by statute. This would result inevitably in its entire control of the school system in the city, for the power to fix salaries would bring in its wake, ultimately, the power to determine the qualification and appraise the efficiency of all officers and teachers in our schools.

The present situation is intolerable. Dual or ill-defined control and divided responsibility have given political influences their usurping opportunity and have presented the unseemly spectacle of official quarreling at the schoolhouse doors, while the schools themselves, left to the last in the budget provision, are without means for even barest subsistence through the year. Of course, the necessary funds will be provided sooner or later. And if the tempering of the winds and the withholding of the snow continue, the school deficit may be materially reduced from city departments whose contingent wants have been amply anticipated.

The solution of our educational difficulties, so far as it is to be found in the machinery of administration, is in giving, under definite statutory restrictions, the fullest measure of power to a Board of Education made directly responsible to the people of the school district (which is a distinct subdivision of the State though conterminous with the city), and in providing a separate school tax and a separate school levy to raise such portion of the cost of the support of public schools as is not contributed by the State. It is in this direction that the city must move in extricating itself from the present tangle.

THE FEDERAL TAX RETURNS.

The figures of individual and corporation income and profits taxes can be put to better use than disclosing how millionaires and their wealth are increasing or decreasing. It is well understood that the tax figures are poor revealers of wealth, and that there are many more millionaires now than when their numbers were reported as larger. The wealth haters have so arranged their taxes that the wealthy practically fix their own tax payments by owning exempt securities. To that extent their wealth is undisclosed. It also is understood that if their wealth were taxed out of existence the result would be that the capital invested in production of consumable goods or services would be reduced, with disadvantage to consumers. In fact, that is the greatest grievance against the excess taxation of capital. It is withdrawn from productive industry to an embarrassing degree, and it is seen that it is necessary to increase the taxes on the relatively poor to make up for the exemptions into which the rich have been driven.

The local application of this consideration is convincing. A little over 41 per cent. of the total tax-paying corporations of this State report that in 1918, a comparatively good year, the deductions ($1,920,890,266) from their gross income ($1,731,135,496) left them with a deficit of $189,754,770. It is a mistake to think that deficits pay no taxes. There are many corporations whose losses on inventories have exceeded their earnings, and yet they are held to pay taxes on book profits which the changed conditions have turned into losses. The nation collected taxes on such losses at the last tax payment period, and another is approaching. The Treasury got its money, but larger sums were marked off security prices. Relief was refused last December, but perhaps may be afforded before next March. For one thing, the scale of labor costs, now adjusted to the condition and abilities of concerns operating at a profit, must be reckoned among the factors that tend to increase the percentage of those reporting deficits.

The figures show how well the taxes were levied so as to throw their weight on the Northern and manufacturing States. This State alone paid 25.56 per cent. of the total profits tax for the United States, and one-third of the national income tax. It is not improbable that other districts where wealth is less, and business reverses more severe, paid even more disproportionately to the payments of the districts which are bewailing their losses and seeking grants of legislation in their aid. It may be conjectured that even the exemption of forty billions of personal property from taxation is less injurious to the common welfare than legislation which so affects the price of commodities that consumers pay many times the amount of the relief sought.

The bearing of these considerations lies in their application to the argument that it is necessary to provide a broader basis for taxation. It is plain that whatever reduces income and profits reduces the yield of taxes from income and profits. The tax on wealth and profits has been so heavy that it has passed the point of productivity. There may be worse tax years than 1918 to come, and even the diminishing yield of 1918 is swollen by collections of arrears. We shall be collecting the taxes for 1920 in 1921 before the audit of the taxes for even 1917 is completed. That points to still another defect of the present tax system. It is so complicated that no one can tell what his taxes are or should be until the Treasury informs him. There are arguments against a sales tax, but those arguments are weaker than the case for correcting the more objectionable tax system which we have.

BISHOP MANNING.

Dr. MANNING has long been thought of as a clergyman who might some day become Bishop of New York. His character, experience and service marked him out as eminently fit for that high office. To many it was a surprise that he was not elected in succession to Bishop GREER. It was explained then that Dr. MANNING'S sympathy with the movement for Christian unity had given offense to some of the High Church party, though he himself was supposed to be of it. But that objection, if it existed, and all others were swept aside on Wednesday, and Dr. MANNING was chosen Bishop amid warm expressions of approval and good-will both within and without his Church.

Peculiar gratification will be felt at his success in the face of the grotesque newspaper attack upon him, at the last moment, on the ground that he was of English birth. The author of that attack seemed to think that the business in hand was not the election of a Bishop, but the canonization of a saint, when it is customary for a devil's advocate to come forward with the worst that can be said. At any rate, he came forward in that guise with his usual vociferated slander. Its only effect, however, was to make the calling and election of Dr. MANNING sure. The preposterous assault upon him won him support which he otherwise might not have had. JOHN SELDEN said that ecclesiastical assemblies no doubt act under divine guidance, but that it is the "odd man" who really determines their decisions. Dr. MANNING might not have got the necessary vote of the odd man if he had not been so indecently and foolishly assailed.

The new Bishop's thoroughgoing Americanism needs no attestation. Throughout the war his light was not hidden under a bushel. And his modest bearing, his proved capacity, his industry, his success in administering the large affairs of Trinity parish, will assure his taking with him into his new work not only the good wishes but the high expectations of the people of this city.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Another Disturber of Traffic.

As it is not likely that the Captain and quartermaster of the ferryboat Edgewater, running on the Fort Lee route, will get any more substantial reward for the kindliness displayed by them yesterday morning in one of their trips across the Hudson, their conduct shall receive here the public recognition it deserves.

Soon after the Edgewater started from the Jersey shore there was sighted, just ahead, a small cake of ice that carried a cold and frightened passenger—a little black and white dog. From the professional breeder's point of view the obvious complexity of his lineage made the taking of trouble to save him not worth while, and against attempt at rescue was the argument that it would delay the arrival at shop or office of several hundred members of the commuter tribe—people who by nature never travel early enough to reach their destinations, even when everything moves on schedule time, sooner than at the last permitted minute.

Fortunately for the little dog, nobody on the Edgewater seems to have given any thought to considerations of that sort. The Captain stopped the boat, and then, after a good deal of backing and going ahead, brought it so near the ice cake that the quartermaster could descend a short ladder put over the side and seize the dog by its collar. Before he could reach the deck another piece of ice hit the ladder and threw both man and dog into the water. With a little help from a deckhand with a boathook the quartermaster, still holding on to the dog, reached the ladder again and mounted it.

Then the Edgewater went on, and all was well, though she did tie up on the New York side something like twenty minutes late.

Nobody Minded the Delay.

People who talk about the inhabitants of New York City as a cold and rather heartless folk may well give thought to this stopping of a big ferryboat and the delaying of her many passengers for a reason no better or greater than to save from drowning a dog of low degree or of none at all. They should note, not only that the Edgewater's Captain saw but one thing to do when his attention was called to the little animal's peril and suffering, and not only that the quartermaster put his own life in some risk to effect a rescue for which he certainly would receive no reward except such satisfaction as the act itself gave him; in addition, every one of the hurried commuters seemingly was glad to be belated if only the little dog were saved. At any rate, if anybody felt impatience it was well concealed, and not an audible protest or criticism was made. Probably nobody wanted to make one.

Of course, the same thing might have happened anywhere in the country. It is not claimed that New Yorkers are kinder than other people, but they are at least as kind, though they are not so "neighborly" as people are in smaller towns, where, as the saying is, everybody knows everybody else. As a matter of fact, this ferryboat episode is notable rather for the peculiar circumstances attending it than for its essential element—the rescue of the dog, at some cost of time and trouble.

They Fed Before They Killed.

Psychologists will have some difficulty in explaining why it was that a big crowd of bitterly and savagely angry Tennessee men, just before they carried out, this week, their determination to burn alive a negro murderer, asked him if he had anything to say, and, when he said that he was hungry, delayed the execution of their purpose until he had eaten the hearty meal they provided.

Why did they care whether their victim was hungry or not, when they felt no compunction at all about subjecting him, as soon as he had eaten, to horrible tortures in a fire so slow that he did not die for forty minutes after it had been lighted? Perhaps there was in the minds of the lynchers remembrance of the fact that in prisons where capital punishment is inflicted it long has been the invariable practice to give condemned men, just before they go to the gallows or the electric chair, a last meal, more varied and of better quality than the ordinary prison fare. And, so remembering, it may have been in a vague desire to palliate the irregularity and illegality of their vengeance by observing at least one of the formalities established by constituted authorities when imposing the law's ultimate penalty that they fed the man before they killed him.

That the lynchers thus should have combined what seems like kindness with the extreme of cruelty is hardly more puzzling than it is that the murderer, knowing perfectly what confronted him, should have asked for food and consumed it with an appetite. Was it merely to gain a few minutes more of life, and the remote possibility of escape therewith, or was it to have one more pleasure before an inevitable termination of life?

Congressmen Must Be Enlightened.

Representative and organized business men of New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Baltimore and the State of New Jersey have united in extending an invitation to like bodies in all States in the Eastern time zone to send delegates to a meeting here, to be held in the Woolworth Building on the morning of Feb. 9, for the purpose of conveying to Congress a formal expression of their desire for a resumption of daylight saving throughout this zone.

It is hoped that the meeting will be well attended. It certainly will be if the friends of daylight saving realize as well as do its opponents the need to make their desires known to the Federal legislators, and thus what seems to be the present danger of allowing those opponents to have their way at least may be lessened. Bills already before both houses would revive a source of almost incalculable benefit to the industrial East, but it is now proposed to set the clocks ahead during five months, instead of seven, and that concession, though otherwise regrettable, probably was wise by increasing considerably the number of those favoring the plan.

At any rate, Congress should not be allowed to remain of the opinion that the only "vote" interested in daylight saving is that of the farmers.

A Denial for Gipsy Smith.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In an article appearing in THE NEW YORK TIMES this morning there is a reference to an interview with Gipsy Smith, the evangelist, in The Belfast Telegraph, in regard to a reception given to Mr. de Valera.

Whoever the "Gipsy Smith" may be in the article mentioned, it is not the celebrated English evangelist, because Gipsy Smith is at present conducing an evangelistic campaign in Newark, N. J., under the auspices of a committee of fifty, of whom the undersigned are Chairman and Secretary, and at his request we are writing you asking that you will deny that any such interview has taken place with Gipsy Smith, because Mr. Smith keeps himself free from all matters of discussion of this kind, and he feels annoyed that his name should be used when there is no ground whatever for it. He is in America and has been here ever since last October, and has granted no interview whatever in respect to the Irish question or those connected with it.

Fordham's Appeal.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Fordham University, the only Catholic university in the greatest archdiocese in the country, faces a serious crisis because of lack of room and adequate facilities. As all undoubtedly know, Fordham is the university for the boy of moderate means. It has been Fordham's boast that no deserving student has ever been turned away for lack of funds. In the last five years $300,000,000 has been contributed to non-Catholic universities and only $5,000,000 to Catholic colleges, none of which has gone to Fordham. The university continues because its professors receive no return for their services but board and clothing.

The student at Fordham has not only his mind developed but his soul as well. The academic is combined with religious and moral training. In these troublesome times, when forces of destruction are sweeping the country, undermining our very foundations, the kind of leadership developed at Fordham is needed. Will its appeal be answered?

"LONGING."

AN AVIATOR'S SONG.

Why should I limit my wild dreams
Of flight unfettered, mile on mile,
Till in Orion's starry dawn
I shall alight and surely smile
At the small minds of earthbound serfs
Who crawl and grovel in the soil,
And all our dreams of endless flight
Strive hard to break with useless toil?

No, let me to the morning star
Fly as to home and find my rest;
Nor shall its distance be to me
A bar to limit travel's zest.
This is my universe to choose
Where'er my soaring plane shall fly,
With every star a landing place
And every road the ethereal sky.

TO STOP CRIME WAVES.

A Suggestion and Appeal From Thomas Mott Osborne.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Many remedies have been set forth as a means of stopping the "wave of crime" which has been extensively advertised of late. Let me make a practical suggestion. I am just in receipt of the following letter:

"Brooklyn, N. Y., Jan. 21, 1921.

"Dear Sir: I take the liberty of writing you these few lines, praying you will not be offended at my doing so. I have recently been released from prison after serving a fifteen-year sentence. I've tried to get employment, but up to date have failed to succeed. Mr. Hodson says at present time nothing can be done. I am in desperate circumstances and up to date owe several weeks' board. I have no trade, but am willing to work at anything that is not too hard, as I am a consumptive, which makes it hard for me. I could get a little cigar store and go in business for myself if I could borrow $200. I could pay it back in monthly payments. If I could get work to do I could save that in several months. Mr. Osborne, you understand things and know what I am up against. I'm trying very hard to go straight, but it seems every one is against me. Can't you please do something for me? I assure you that you will have no cause to regret it. I find nothing in crooked life and if given a fighting chance will make good. The friends I am boarding with are good to me, and if it was not for them I would not know what to do. I am enclosing my release from prison so you can see for yourself. Will you please return it at your convenience?

"Hoping you will please help me in some way, I will close for the present, with best wishes to you. Hoping to receive a reply, I am very truly yours,

"A. B."

For obvious reasons, in copying this letter I have omitted names.

My suggestion is that whenever a crook wants to go straight, it is for society's advantage to give him the chance. Every thief turning to the right not only removes one wavelet of crime but he influences others.

Are there not some of your readers who will help this man and others to secure honest employment?

At the office of the Welfare League Association, 4,836 Grand Central Terminal, I shall be glad to receive money, clothing or offers of employment. Our aim is to recommend only those men who intend to go straight, and hundreds for whom we have secured work are doing so.

Here is a practical and successful way to stop the spread of crime. Who will help?

Unemployment Relief.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your editorial article of Jan. 24 on "Relieving the Unemployed" performs a valuable service in pointing out the duty of industry and communities to meet the existing emergency in a constructive spirit.

Temporary relief—the feeding and housing of the hungry and homeless idle workers—is imperative, but the real cure for unemployment is employment. And you are right in emphasizing the fundamental need of efforts, both public and private, to provide useful work for all.

As an aid to effective community action in relieving the unemployed a program of action has just been collated and issued in pamphlet form by the Association for Labor Legislation. The standard recommendations therein presented for the relief and prevention of unemployment grew out of the experience of more than 300 organizations and individuals in 115 different communities during the bread line crisis of 1914-15. They cover the following nine proposals: Organizations, education, emergency relief, separation of unemployable and unemployed, industrial training, employment exchanges, public work, regularization and unemployment insurance.

In many large industrial centres, notably Buffalo and Newark, the immediate and necessary work of relief is now being undertaken through community committees organized on a representative basis and following out well-considered plans, as outlined in the standard recommendations. It is one of the hopeful signs of the times that, in this important respect, lessons from hard experience of the past are being put to good uses.

Army Promotions in the Senate.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Fraught with the gravest danger to this country is the move which prompts the announcement from Washington that the list of service promotions is being held up by the Senate under the leadership of Henry Cabot Lodge. A lifelong Republican, I say that it is to the everlasting credit of the present Administration that politics and political Generals played so small a part in the late war. As a volunteer officer who served in both the Spanish war and the world war, the former in the point of efficiency seems to me now like a terrible nightmare. The word militarism is bandied about a good deal with little knowledge of its true meaning. But as sure as the stars shine above us, real militarism in all its dread form comes into play when for purely political purposes the army and navy are dragged into politics.

Senator Lodge does not agree with purely military boards as to who the officers are who are best fitted to rank as Generals of our army. With him the New England Congressional delegation unites. Then from Virginia comes word that Senator Overman and Senator Glass want one of their favorites elevated to General rank. The veterans of the Ninetieth Division not so long ago in convention passed resolutions that their former leaders should be made Generals forthwith.

The efficiency of the whole military structure, of this country will crumble should this sectional or State or organization booming of favorite sons extend further into the army and navy. To be certain that his favorite prospect gets promotion, Senator Lodge holds up some three or four thousand purely routine promotions.

I no longer wonder at the absolute dread of the old time army officer of promotion by selection.

Irish Workers' Republic.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Referring to the article entitled "An Irish Workers' Republic" in your issue of Jan. 20, I beg to submit the following for your information:

Mr. Johnson, whom you quote, is a born Englishman, and not of Irish extraction. He has lived most of his life in Ireland and by his ability and sympathy with the cause of Irish labor and of Irish independence he has been selected as the representative of the Irish labor body at different labor conferences.

Mr. Johnson holds no office in the Irish Republican Government. You are, doubtless, aware that Ireland is an agricultural country and the Labor Party is but one political factor in the general movement for independence. The utterances of Mr. Johnson represent his point of view, but in no sense represent the policy of the Irish Republican Government as announced in its proclamations and the various laws which have been adopted by Dail Eireann, the Congress of the Irish Republican Government.

FORCES THAT MAKE THE LEAGUE INEVITABLE.

The Basis for Republican Criticism Has Been Removed by the League Itself—Our Practical and Moral Obligation.

BY A PRO-LEAGUE REPUBLICAN.

FIFTH AND LAST ARTICLE.

THE UNITED STATES AND THE LEAGUE.

The Republican platform, as we have seen, committed the party to the idea of the Council of the League of Nations and called for the development of an international court. From the League as a whole it withheld its approval. To several parts of it, and especially to those parts which were most warmly approved by its opponents, it was irreconcilably opposed. In the heat of the campaign, as it happened, the party at times found itself in an attitude of seeming hostility to the entire Covenant. Rejecting many features of it, and especially the article which was proclaimed as its very heart, it was difficult to deny that it was for "scrapping" the League. Yet last as first it maintained the mental attitude of its platform. It stood for the principle of the Council and for the principle of the court. These granted, it stood for "a" league. It steadfastly refused, however, to commit itself to any detailed program. In this, I believe, it was wise. The League was already organized and in action. Before the party could come into power the first general session at Geneva would be a matter of history. Today we have a far surer means of judging it—and also of judging the situation of the world at the time when we must decide as to our entrance into it.

The outstanding feature of the Geneva session is that—no less inexorably because unconsciously—the League is shaping itself to the dimensions of the Republican idea. What was here declared to be "an absolutely compelling moral obligation" to "preserve" all members of the League against aggression has been declared upon the authority of the League itself to be only an obligation to "condemn" such aggression. Thus Article X. imposes no obligation to exert our armed forces; all question of military action is delayed until each crisis develops and is at hand. A precisely similar modification has been made in the validity of Article XVI., many nations having repudiated their obligation to enter the economic boycott "automatically" at indefinite future times. Thus, with only one important exception, the member nations reserve intact their sovereignty. This exception is with regard to making war, and it is of a negative character. The members agree to submit all disputes to arbitration or to inquiry by the Council, and not to go to war until three months after the award by the arbitrators or the report by the Council. This abatement of sovereignty is in entire accord with the Republican idea. It is in fact essential to the being of an international court. And here again the League is actually developing in line with the Chicago platform, having established a court which may even have obligatory jurisdiction over the many nations that have made dual treaties binding themselves to it.

All this is stated not in the way of controversy, but as an evident fact. As to the wisdom of the Chicago platform, and, indeed, as to the wisdom of recent action at Geneva, hospitably minded Republicans express at most a personal conviction. Even in the matter of Article X., many of their leaders, from Theodore Roosevelt and Henry Cabot Lodge to ex-President Taft, have, at one time or another, declared in favor of the general principle. It is quite possible that, if we had entered the League with full conviction as champions of Articles X. and XVI., events at Geneva would have taken a radically different course. Pre-eminently we have stood for justice, and so have earned, and in some measure gained, a confidence which small nations hesitate to grant to the great European powers. But in the present state of the world and of the League all this is speculation—of interest at most to the future historical critic.

The pregnant fact is that by an overwhelming majority the Republican Party has been returned to power and that by action almost equally decisive the League has reshaped itself in accordance with the Chicago idea. In the Republican Party there are leaders who are still swayed by the passions of the great constitutional struggle of a year ago, in which the prerogative of the Senate was defended against executive aggression, and who therefore are irreconcilably opposed to anything that bears the name of league. To the pro-League Republican they seem to be engaged in slaying dead lions. But what shall we say of those champions of "the" League who still resist the ideas of the Republican platform, even the action of the League itself? Are they not as clearly backing a dead horse to win a race that is alive and even now sweeping to the goal? For better or for worse the course of our country with regard to a League of Nations will inexorably be determined by the leaders of the Republican Party, and upon their action in a great measure depends the cause of the peace that is founded upon justice. They are the one hope of the League—any league. Surely it behooves true patriots, true lovers of their fellow men, treat these leaders with candor, to understand them and to give them all possible aid.

It is no easy task that confronts them. Great as were the achievements of the Geneva session, and promising for the peace of the world, vital weakness was discovered in the Covenant—not one, but several weaknesses. In dealing with the delicate question of mandates the Council stood for secrecy and the prerogative of certain great nations in a manner that strongly smacked of the old diplomacy. This fact, together with the fact that the Covenant vests the Assembly with little or no power of decision and of action, engendered a strong movement for the drastic amendment of the Covenant—which, in turn, raised questions as to the future of the Treaty of Versailles. It was admitted on all sides, moreover, that even apart from these basic questions the Covenant is in need of alteration. The general cry is for amendment.

Yet there is an obstacle to this which does not seem to have been realized at Geneva. Article XXVI. provides that amendments shall take effect when ratified by all the nations represented in the Council and by a majority of the nations represented in the Assembly. But there is a further clause:

> No such amendment shall bind any Member of the League which signifies its dissent therefrom, but in that case it shall cease to be a Member of the League.

All amendments, however important or however trivial, must go before the treaty-making power of forty-odd nations, and every nation refusing to subscribe to any one of them will cease to be a member of the League. The process is likely to take infinite time and to leave the League sadly reduced in numbers. A serious question arises, whether it would not be better to have a convention frame a largely new instrument and present it as a whole to the nations. That certainly would save time; it seems likely also to prevent casualties in the League membership.

Is it strange that the President-elect still refuses to commit his administration to a specific, detailed program? Time is the great, the indispensable, counselor. In providing an International Court, the League has already, so to speak, furnished a handle for the blade of political and military action. It now intends to provide a new blade. If this proves to be true steel, well tempered, it may ultimately be thought worthy of a new and stronger handle. It is thus that good workmen use their tools, and better them. Necessity is the mother of invention, but its more practical parent is experience. Few serviceable instruments are projected full-grown from the creative brain; they are developed by use, in the warm hand of humanity.

In the heat of the campaign it was often asked whether the Republicans proposed to accept the present Covenant with amendments or to frame a new "association." Let us not be misled by words. To those who hold that the heart of the Covenant is Article X., with its "absolutely compelling moral obligation" to "preserve" territorial integrity, the League has already been transformed. It retains, however, the ambassadorial Council, which the Republican platform accepts, and it has added the court, for which that platform calls. Even if the Republicans were to insist on fashioning an entirely new instrument, blade and handle, they could not, if they are true to their explicit and unvaried declarations, make an association essentially different from the League as it now actually exists. In so far as they are guided by wise and experienced leaders, they are little likely to insist on this. Men who are familiar with the infinite difficulty of international negotiations know the value of agreements already ratified. To start with a clean slate would be to open up a multitude of issues that have already been disposed of, and thus to consume invaluable time. "Above everything else in diplomacy," a Republican statesman once declared, "I value a basis of agreement—even if it is only an agreement that the moon is made of green cheese. I value it because it shows that the parties are in the attitude of agreement, without which negotiation is impossible." The League as it now exists offers a basis of agreement far broader than that—and more substantial. It includes all that the Republican platform stipulated; and by accepting it, with such improvements in drafting as suggest themselves, it enables us to fulfill our obligations to the nations of Europe and to the world.

As the bitterness of that old Senatorial conflict subsides, I think we shall realize that these obligations are many and compelling. The President, it is true, was not authorized to commit us to either Treaty or League—and he did not succeed in doing so. But in proposing the terms of the armistice he was well within his prerogative, as also in negotiating the Treaty. And, though he could not commit this country to any definite action, he had full authority to say what the country would not do. The advice and consent of the Senate were not needed for that. It was by the exercise of this right of negation, as now appears, that the present form of the Treaty and the League was largely determined. We cannot stand aside from the other nations now without—in effect, if not in law—breaking the contract we got them into. To say that we owe them no honorable obligation is willfully to disregard the provisions of our Constitution, sanctioned by over a century of action. More than that, it is to show a callous disregard of the plight of sister nations, who have suffered heroically and are spent, and who are fellow-guardians with us of all the temples of our civilization.

In the truth of fact, which is stronger than any other truth, those nations were, and still are, our allies. There was a time when we sent them our young women as nurses, our physicians to man their hospitals, our engineers to build railways and docks and terminals wherever they were most needed. We poured out billions without stint and are still making good the cost without murmuring. In the fullness of time we sent our young men, committed them proudly and gladly to the generalship of the great Marshal. Their bodies today are mingled beneath the sod, as their spirits are mingled in victory, with the sons of France, of Italy, of England. Men talk with fear of alliances; but was there ever, in all history, an alliance as sacred and compelling as that which we cemented in blood on the field of France?

Without us the League of Nations is a minority league, outweighed by the men and the resources of Germany, Russia and the rest. In any crucial question, even the reduction of armaments, our co-operation is necessary to success. With us the League will be a majority league, potent to advance the true interests of all nations, great and small—potent also, in the fullness of time, to enlist Germany and Russia under the banner of fellowship and peace. To join hands once more with our old comrades is to give hope to the bankrupt, the starved millions of Europe—as we once gave them hope of victory. And though we do not acknowledge our economic and commercial interest as a dominant motive, we need not be unmindful of it. In the reconstruction of the world we have a vital stake, as we once had in preserving its liberties.

Is any course left us but to say frankly to the nations of Europe: "What is it you want of us? There are things we cannot and will not do, but in essentials, as it seems, we are agreed. You know your needs better than we. Tell us what we can do for you and, as far as we may, once more we will go along with you."

Defining New Crimes.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Apropos of the editorial paragraph in this morning's TIMES on prohibition and laws against crime, if in response to the demand of our good citizens for Sunday enforcement laws playing golf on "the Sabbath" should be made a crime, would it be the duty of every one who now amuses himself on the links on Sunday to consider the knocking of a ball about a field on that day a "crime"? Here is an act that on six days of the week is perfectly harmless, as harmless as crushing grapes and drinking the juice, either fermented or unfermented. By law it is declared to be a criminal act on the seventh day. Does the enactment of a foolish law, even though it is favored by the "good people" who think Sunday amusements sinful, make all the difference between innocent enjoyment and criminal law-breaking?

MRS. BELMONT TIFFANY GIVES A NOVEL REVEL

Society Folk Act Bright Skits at Dinner for Miss Mary Cameron at Coffee House Club.

Mrs. Belmont Tiffany gave last night one of the most novel affairs of the season for her débutante niece, Miss Mary Cameron. It was a strictly informal dinner and a theatrical entertainment at the Coffee House Club at 54 West Forty-fifth Street, and Miss Cameron herself was the star in one of the "bits." It was entitled on the program, illustrated with a drawing of a Scotch piper, a "Dinner and Theatrical Revel given in honor of Miss Mary Cameron, dare-devil débutante." The dinner was served at long bare wood tables running across the room as simple in arrangement as a cafeteria. There were seventy-five guests for it, mostly young people, including a few young married couples, and also a very few of Mrs. Tiffany's older friends.

The theatrical items were rendered in the following order, with society folk and one professional as players. First came "Adieu and Au Revoir," by Grace Willard, with Mrs. Lydig Hoyt as Mrs. Beech, Emery Pottle as Mr. Aimes and Wadsworth Lewis as Mr. Beech, the scene being laid in a Park Avenue apartment at 11 P. M. Next was "Love à la Mode," a fashionable courtship between a Débutante and an Enchanted Young Man. Miss Cameron was the Débutante, Leonard Doyle the Young Man and Ernest Lawford the Young Man's Uncle. The last bit was "La Boutique Fantasque," with music by Miss Hazel Archibald of Seattle, a sort of modern Mrs. Jarley's waxworks. Miss Jane Sanford was a Vampire; John Clarke the Movie Villain; Miss Isabel Pell the Outdoor Girl; John Stearns the Golf Nut; Miss Margaret Flint the 1921 Débutante, and William Hyle was the Parlor Snake. Dr. George Draper, a surgeon and a brother of Miss Ruth Draper, varied the program with a "turn" described as "an effectual but painless operation." There was no end of applause for each performer.

Informal dancing closed the evening's jolly entertainment.

PRAISE OF BISHOP LED BY DR. GRANT

End of Differences in Church Predicted by Dr. Guthrie, One of "Radicals."

INTEREST IN NEW RECTOR

Dr. Gates of Trinity Chapel Mentioned With Dr. Bellinger and Dr. McComas.

Dr. William Thomas Manning, rector of Trinity Church and the newly elected Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of New York, probably will be consecrated soon after Easter. Until then Bishop Arthur S. Lloyd will remain Acting Bishop of the diocese.

Official notices will be sent out today to all the Bishops and the Standing Committees of the Church announcing the election of Dr. Manning, signed by Dr. Ernest M. Stires, rector of St. Thomas's, who withdrew after the second ballot. Dr. Stires is President of the Standing Committee.

As soon as a majority of the Bishops and the Standing Committees have ratified the election of Dr. Manning arrangements will be made for the consecration.

Just who will be the next rector of Trinity is a question being asked. The Vestry of Trinity will meet Feb. 8, but it was said that nothing would be done concerning a successor to Dr. Manning until his election had been ratified.

There was a report that the new rector might be Dr. Milo H. Gates, vicar of the Chapel of the Intercession, Trinity Parish, Broadway and 155th Street. He recently declined a call to the Cathedral at Denver. Other names mentioned are those of the Rev. Dr. William W. Bellinger, vicar of St. Agnes's Chapel, West Ninety-second Street, and the Rev. Dr. Joseph P. McComas, vicar of old St. Paul's Chapel, Trinity Parish, Broadway and Fulton Street.

"Theer are few men so well equipped for administrative work of a high order as Dr. Manning," said Dr. Stires. "And there are few men who have so broadened and strengthened in the last few years. His churchmanship today is comprehensive. He no longer can be regarded as the representative of a party and may be depended upon to secure loyalty to the Church and leadership in the development of the great opportunities which await Christianity with intelligence and inspiring guidance."

Dr. Grant "Pleased."

Dr. Percy Stickney Grant, rector of the Church of the Ascension, who favored "American-born Bishop," and started opposition against Dr. Manning on the ground of his English birth, said yesterday that he was well satisfied with the choice of the convention and that he had great personal friendship for Dr. Manning.

Dr. Grant, although regarded as the most "radical" of Episcopal clergyman in the diocese, was only one of several to express themselves as well pleased over the election, and to send letters of congratulation.

Dr. W. Norman Guthrie, another so-called "radical," said that the election of Dr. Manning was pleasing to all branches of the Church and was certain to be the forerunner of an era of peace and good-will.

Dr. Grant refused to make a statement on the election. When he was informed that some of his friends had repeated statements made by him that he and Dr. Manning were personal friends and that he was highly satisfied with Dr. Manning's elevation, Dr. Grant said:

"I can confirm that. It is true that I have said such things."

Dr. Grant's statement was the more interesting because of the controversy which preceded the election. His appeal for an American-born Bishop was followed by attacks of conservative churchmen on Dr. Grant and the advocacy of Dr. Manning on the ground that he was the man to use "curbing bits" on the "radicals."

In 1914 Dr. Manning accused Dr. Grant of preaching from the pulpit in favor of "free love" and called on Bishop Greer for action against him. Dr. Manning was a close friend of the clergymen who sought to have Dr. Grant tried before an ecclesiastical tribunal a year ago for his comparison of the deported aliens of the "Soviet Ark" to the Pilgrims of the Mayflower.

Dr. Guthrie predicted that the differences inside the church and public attacks of one clergyman upon another would cease with Dr. Manning as Bishop.

Dr. Guthrie a Friend.

"Dr. Manning is far from being a displeasing choice to the so-called 'radicals,'" he said. "I am supposed to be one myself, but I voted for Dr. Manning on one of my three ballots."

Dr. Manning has received hundreds of telegrams. They began coming to his home at 4 Washington Square an hour after his election. Yesterday they poured into his home, Trinity Church and Trinity's office, Church and Fulton Streets.

Dr. Manning is the fifth rector of Trinity to be elected Bishop of New York. Half of all the Bishops of this diocese were chosen from there. The others were the Right Rev. Samuel Provost, first Bishop, and the Right Rev. Benjamin Moore, second Bishop, who are buried in Trinity graveyard; the Right Rev. John Henry Hobart, who is buried under Trinity's altar, and the Right Rev. Jonathan Mayhew Wainwright.

Thirteen years ago Dr. Manning was elected Bishop of Harrisburg, Pa., and five years ago Bishop of Western New York. He declined both positions.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 27.—A telegram of congratulation to Dr. William T. Manning of New York, newly elected Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church, was sent today by the Rev. Dr. Newman Smyth of this city, as representative of the Congregationalists of the United States in the Commission of the Episcopal and Congregational Churches on Concordat for Unity.

AWARD FOR RIVER TO FORD'S

$470,142 to Be Paid for Land Taken in Condemnation.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Jan. 27.—After spending nearly three months in hearing testimony as to the value of land required for the straightening and widening of the River Rouge to allow lake carriers to reach the Ford blast furnaces, a Federal jury today made its award, totaling $470,142, all of which, it is disclosed, will be paid by the Ford interests. The award is about one-third of the appraisal made by experts acting for the owners.

VASSAR IN STYLE REVOLT.

Girls in Long Skirts and With Coiffure Gone Startle Scholars.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, Jan. 27.—Vassar College students, in rebellion against the elaborate styles of today, have gone on strike, and all over the campus girls in long trailing skirts such as their mothers wore, and with hair slicked back into little knots, may be seen dressed for the part they are playing in speaking and singing against the prevailing fashions in coiffures and styles.

Coiffures, the students say, have increased in height until they have brought about their own destruction, and ears have not been visible for so long that when they became visible today they seemed almost indecent, it was suggested.

Every student on the campus wore a skirt that touched the ground and either a middy or a tailored shirtwaist. Hair was bound back, and when a girl entered the dining room with hair fluffed over her ears she was hissed until she retired to bind it back. Those with bobbed heads wore the hair pinned back with hairpins into tiny knots.

"It is comfortable to dress the way mother did," said a senior; "only my ears get cold."

Another student differed from her, saying, "If these are the good old days, I'm glad they're gone, and I think modern science, with the permanent wave, has 'it all over' the nocturnal agony of rag curlers."

Older residents at Vassar looked on with silent amusement. One Faculty member thought the newer fashion was more becoming to the girls. Another said that it proved the students had a sense of humor.

PARIS BIRTH RATE HIGHER.

More Children Born Than Any Year Since 1901.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 27.—After the record number of after-the-war marriages has come what is almost a record number of births. In Paris during the last year 55,813 children were born, while there were only 43,000 deaths. For anything like so many births one has to go as far back as 1901, when the number exceeded 56,000. During the war years the number of births fell from an average of 48,500 to as low as 28,200 in 1916 and 30,400 in 1918.

Figures for the whole country are not yet available, but an increase in the birth rate for the past year may be confidently anticipated from the fact that during 1919 the number of marriages in seventy-seven departments reached 447,000, against 178,000 in 1918 and 248,000 in 1913.

In all the birth statistics the proportion of boys to girls is about seven to six in favor of the male sex.

Montrealer Wants Dempsey-Carpentier Bout So Ardently Rickard Gets Wide Choice.

Amount of Canadian Cash Actually in Sight Not Made Public—Ready to Give Guarantee.

Only an Alpine climber, a kangaroo or a man fired with enthusiasm would make his way unprotestingly up the multitudinous stairs that lead to the eyrie of Tex Rickard, impresario of fisticuffs, high in the dusky reaches of Madison Square Garden. President C. F. Graham of the Eastern Canada Securities, Ltd., performed the feat with a smile on his face yesterday, and, as he is quite obviously not a kangaroo and has no interest whatever in the Alps, enthusiasm offers the sole explanation.

Mr. Graham was eager to see Mr. Rickard, not so much because the former is a lover of beauty, as because the latter has, or is expected to have, in the palm of his hand the control of a certain sporting enterprise in which the world's heavyweight championship will be involved—that is, unless Jess Willard gets unexpectedly rough with Jack Dempsey beforehand. Graham appeared as the representative of a syndicate of Canadian capitalists who are eager to offer hospitality to the homeless bout between Georges Carpentier, heavyweight champion of Europe, and Dempsey, whose title knows no such limitations as a mere continent.

Rickard Hears Oratory.

Contrary to commercial custom, which is that the seller does nine-tenths of the talking, Rickard sat back yesterday and listened to the flowing words of his visitor, who was certainly a would-be customer. Graham wanted that bout. He wasn't certain that he dared to return to Montreal and face the "outraged school children of that fair city with the sad news that the great battle was not for them. He came direct from consultation with his local attorneys, Braun & Solomon, and, fortified with their counsel, was prepared to make divers propositions to Rickard in the hope that one of them would cause the calm dealer in oil wells and in other men's fists to flare with the enthusiasm that radiated from Graham himself.

Now, Rickard is not much of a flarer. He would make a very poor lighthouse, or even Roman candle. As a refrigerating plant he would have his merits. However, that didn't make much difference to Graham, who came prepared to furnish enough enthusiasm for two. All he really needed was a good listener, and Tex Rickard is all of that. So the Canadian stated his proposition, or, rather his propositions, for he had several arrows in his quiver.

The first offer laid before the great supervisor of jabbing exhibitions was a plain, flat, but not wholly unornamental suggestion that he sell the bout outright to the Canadians. Figures were mentioned in this connection, but they only got as far as Rickard's bosom, where they were promptly interned for the duration of the war. Tex was absolutely uncommunicative on the point, although entirely willing to allow other people to conjecture, if it afforded them any relief. It is hereby conjectured that the sum offered was $700,000. If that is correct, which there is some reason to believe, Tex is going to spend a day or two in rolling the figures under his tongue or through his mind, or, maybe, setting them to music. In any event, he is keeping them for private consumption.

Makes Two More Offers.

Observing that Rickard failed to fall off his chair in joyous agitation over his initial proposition, Graham went right ahead with his alternative suggestions. The second was that the Canadian syndicate should be admitted to partnership in the venture, assuming such proportion of it as Rickard desired. The third and final plan submitted was that the American promoter should be guaranteed against loss in case he decided to take his performers to Montreal.

The Montrealer declared that there would be no difficulty in raising money necessary to insure financial success in Canada. The amount in cash, he said, would be deposited in a bank. He told Rickard that one of the Canadian syndicate had offered to contribute $100,000 and was ready at any time to make a cash deposit of that amount.

Graham said there would be no difficulty in staging the bout in Canada and that the proposed date, Saturday, July 2, would be satisfactory. He further promised that excellent training quarters would be provided for the two principals and that an arena would be erected outside Montreal of any size Rickard thinks necessary.

In reply, Rickard, rising to his feet and thrusting one hand into the bosom of his Prince Albert—no, no; it's Burr McIntosh we're thinking of. What Rickard did was to say quietly that he would take all the offers under advisement and communicate his decision to Graham within a fortnight.

Plenty to Think About.

Rickard has other things to consider besides the tugging of the sportsmen from the land of snow and plentiful Scotch dew. He isn't absolutely certain yet that he's got that bout at all, although he would doubtless wager large sums at generous odds that he will have it. There is every reason to suppose that Charles B. Cochran, the London member of the original trio of promoters, accepts as his own the attitude of William A. Brady, who announced his withdrawal several days ago. Cochran has communicated with Brady to that effect, but Rickard has not heard from him directly, he says. Nevertheless, Rickard takes it for granted that the interests of the other two will be assigned to him, and he will then be free to go ahead with the matter. He is likely, at the outset, to revamp the financial arrangements made with the brace of mighty boxers, although even that may not be necessary, in view of the value which the match seems to have in Canadian eyes.

Rickard repeated last night his determination to take no definite action concerning the match, or a site for it, until he has discussed matters fully with Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, who will probably arrive here next Tuesday or Wednesday.

As for the expected meeting between Willard, the former champion, and Dempsey, Rickard regards that as practically on the cards already. Willard's attitude, the promoter said yesterday, is one almost of indifference as regards the financial side of the affair. He doesn't seem to care whether his share is brought to him in freight cars or thimbles. All that is keeping the huge Kansan from his normal amount of slumber is a burning desire to face Dempsey in the ring again, with the design and hope of obliterating the memory of a certain broiling afternoon in Toledo.

Boxing Bill for Washington.

OLYMPIA, Wash., Jan. 27.—A bill legalizing ten-round boxing contests in the State was introduced in the State Senate today. Senator William Wray said he had been assured of enough votes in both Senate and House to obtain its enactment.

Headlock No Worse Than Two Other Holds, Says Caddock

CHICAGO, Jan. 27.—Wrestlers, especially those seeking a contest with the present heavyweight champion, Strangler Lewis, must develop a defense against the champion's famous headlock, said Earl Caddock, who was defeated by Lewis in a match in New York last Monday night for the title, chiefly by application of the hold mentioned. Caddock said he felt none the worse for the punishment he received in his encounter with Lewis in the headlocks clamped on by the champion, and that the hold is no more deadly than the toe hold or double wristlock. He was on his way today back to his farm in Walnut, Iowa.

STATE WILL TAX VISITING BOXERS

Clubs Required to Withhold Amounts Due From Non-Resident Fighters and Wrestlers.

ALBANY, Jan. 27.—Professional boxers from other States who show their fistic wares within the State of New York are going to split their earnings with the State, wherever such earnings come within the schedule of income tax limitations. Furthermore, clubs which include such boxers in their programs of events are going to be held responsible to the State for whatever percentage is due the Commonwealth. Such is the outcome of a meeting held recently at the headquarters of the State Boxing Commission.

Jack Curley, the wrestling promoter, and other followers of the wrestling game, have also been notified by Assistant Director Somers that the law requiring them to deduct the tax from non-resident wrestlers must be obeyed.

Clubs Must Report Tax.

The meeting was addressed by James T. Somers, chief of the Investigation Division of the Income Tax Bureau, and Assemblyman John G. Malone, District Director of the Albany Income Tax District. Mr. Somers pointed out that all sums aggregating $1,000 or over paid by clubs to resident boxers, referees or club employes must be reported to the bureau, and that in the case of non-resident boxers the club was required not only to make such report, but to withhold taxes due the State from such amounts from purses and pay the money to the State. Drastic action will be taken against clubs failing to do so. Incidentally the Madison Square Garden Club is the only one in Greater New York credited with complying with the law in this respect in the past.

"With the fancy purses hung up and the capacity business reported all over the State," said Mr. Somers, "the State is expecting considerable revenue from this source. We will immediately send out different forms to be filled out by club officials showing payments to resident and non-resident boxers and expect a strict compliance with the law. If a club does not withhold from a non-resident boxer at the time his share is paid to him we are required under the law to collect from the club. We have also been assured by officials of the State Boxing Commission that if any boxer attempts to evade the payment of his income tax his license to appear in the ring in any New York State club will be revoked. This also applies to any boxing club failing to comply with the income tax law.

"We are expecting, however, hearty co-operation on the part of club officials as it is only fair that non-residents of the State like Jack Dempsey, Jess Willard, Georges Carpentier and others attracted to New York by the large purses should pay a tax the same as residents of the State like Benny Leonard, Johnny Dundee, Joe Lynch and other such fistic stars. Although boxing has only been legalized since the middle of last September, our bureau is advised that the public has already paid over $1,000,000 to see seventeen boxing exhibitions. This gives an idea of the money involved."

Some Checks Received.

The Income Tax Bureau has received a check in payment of the income tax of Richie Mitchell of Milwaukee, who boxed Benny Leonard at Madison Square Garden at a show promoted by Miss Anne Morgan, as Chairman of the American Committee on Devastated France. The other Mitchell boy—Pinky—has also paid a tax for his bout with Willie Jackson at the Garden on Jan. 7.

Jack Dempsey is said to have sent to the State a substantial check in connection with his Madison Square meeting with Brennan on Dec. 14.

Letters are being sent to boxing clubs in Buffalo, Rochester, Syracuse, Utica, Binghamton, Troy, Auburn and other cities asking them to make returns on the required forms on or before April 15.

NOT TO SHOW FIGHT FILMS.

Rickard Denies Yarn About Text of Federal Law.

Tex Rickard denied yesterday, quietly but emphatically, as is his wont, stories emanating from Milwaukee to the effect that the motion pictures of the Dempsey Brennan bout, recently staged in the big arena at Madison Square Garden, were to be shown next week in the city made famous by an almost extinct fluid. The tale, which purported to have Ray Cannon, attorney for Dempsey, as its authority, was that the exhibition was planned as a test of the Federal law forbidding the transportation of films of prizefights between States, and that arrests would be courted.

Rickard said that he had in his personal possession all the negatives of the pictures taken of the bout; that he had no intention of shipping them outside of this State and no yearning at all to test the aforesaid statute.

BRENNAN OUTBOXES WALKER

Gets Newspaper Decision After 12 Slow Rounds in Dallas.

DALLAS, Tex., Jan. 27.—Bill Brennan of Chicago obtained the newspaper decision over Hugh Walker of Kansas City, Mo., in twelve slow and uninteresting rounds here tonight. The fight, according to Maury Hughes, Dallas County District Attorney, marked the end of boxing exhibitions here until such events are legalized.

Not a hard blow was struck by Brennan or Walker until the seventh round, which Brennan took by using straight lefts and rights. In the eleventh round, after three more slow rounds, Brennan slightly cut Walker's cheek. Brennan took the eleventh and twelfth rounds, according to newspaper men.

BOXING FOR CONNECTICUT.

Bill Introduced in Senate to Legalize 15-Round Bouts.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., Jan. 27.—If a bill introduced in the Senate today becomes a law—and it is believed that Governor Lake, a former Harvard football star and overseas Y. M. C. A. worker, will approve—Connecticut will have a new athletic commission and will legalize boxing bouts with a fifteen-round limitation. The bill has been under consideration for several months and is believed to embody the best features of boxing laws in other States.

POLICE ARE CALLED TO PROTECT LEWIS

Wrestler Faces Angry Mob in Kansas City After Beating Sulzo With Headlock.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 27.—A squad of police escorted Strangler Lewis, world's heavyweight wrestling champion, through an angry crowd to his dressing room after Lewis had applied a headlock on Gustav Sulzo in winning the second fall of their wrestling match here tonight.

Lewis clamped the hold on Sulzo after five minutes of fast wrestling, and Sulzo's shoulders were forced to the mat. He lay there several minutes, apparently unconscious, and it was then that the crowd surrounded the ring. Police prevented any serious disorder.

Lewis won the first fall in seventeen minutes with a double wrist lock.

On the same bill John Pesek won in two straight falls from Waldek Zbyszko, winning the first fall in twenty-six minutes and the second in four minutes, using a toe hold in both falls.

SQUASH PLAYERS ADVANCE.

Heminway, Whitlock and Seller Reach Semi-Finals.

With the completion of the fourth round in the squash tennis tournament for the national Class B individual championship yesterday afternoon on the courts of the Squash Club, four men remained to contend for the final honors. E. H. Heminway and F. S. Whitlock of the Harvard Club and F. A. Seller of the Montclair A. C. won the only three matches played and joined Thomas R. Coward of the Yale Club, who had won his fourth-round match the preceding day, in the semi-finals. Coward, who is a general favorite for the championship, will meet Heminway this afternoon and Whitlock will cross racquets with Seller.

Of yesterday's matches, one of the most interesting and the oddest in the manner in which the lead alternated was that in which Seller eliminated Basil van Gerbig of the Squash Club. Van Gerbig ran the score up to 8—3 in the first game, whereupon Seller scored 8 and then finished out the game without further difficulty. The second game was easy for Van Gerbig, and, when he ran into a lead of 3—0 in the rubber, he looked like an almost certain winner. However, he encountered a streak of hard luck and began to miss his shots by the narrowest of margins. Seller captured 15 aces while his opponent was gathering in 3 and the Montclair man was the victor at 15—11, 6—15, 15—5.

Heminway started slowly in his match against J. C. Rochester of the Squash Club. Rochester led in the first game at 12—5, but the Harvard man then came to life, setting the game at 13, and then running through 5 straight aces. He won the second game more readily. The feat of Rochester and Van Gerbig removed the last remaining Squash Club contestants from the lists.

R. V. Mahon of the Columbia Club yielded to Whitlock in the final match of the day only after a game struggle. Whitlock came from behind to capture the second game, after he had dropped the opener. In the rubber Whitlock made a spectacular start, winning no less than 9 aces in his opening hand. Later he ran his advantage up to 11—0, and then changed his racquet and his luck at the same time. Mahon took a hand at the manufacture of a long run, compiling 8 straight aces before he yielded a point, although he required several hands in which to accomplish the feat. That was the end of his rally, however, and Whitlock quickly gathered in the 4 aces necessary to take the game and the match at 11—15, 15—11, 15—8.

The summaries:

Fourth Round — E. H. Heminway, Harvard Club, defeated J. C. Rochester, Squash Club, 18—13, 15—5; F. A. Seller, Squash Club, defeated Basil Van Gerbig, Squash Club, 15—11, 6—15, 15—5; F. S. Whitlock, Harvard Club, defeated R. V. Mahon, Columbia Club, 11—15, 15—11, 15—8.

VIETOR BEATS SIMONDS.

Victory Puts Yale Club in Strong Position for Squash Title.

METROPOLITAN LEAGUE SQUASH TENNIS STANDING, CLASS B.

Team.	Won.	Lost.	P.C.
Yale Club	9	0	1.000
Crescent A. C.	5	2	.714
Columbia Club	6	3	.667
Harvard Club	5	5	.500
Princeton Club	3	7	.300
D. K. E. Club	2	6	.250
Army and Navy Club	1	7	.125

The Yale Club acquired an all but insuperable advantage in the race for the Class B club championship of the Metropolitan League in the squash tennis yesterday afternoon when J. A. Vietor of the Elis vanquished F. M. Simonds Jr. of the Columbia Club, two games to one, scored 6—15, 15—11, 15—13. This match was held over from Tuesday, when the Yale and Columbia Clubs concluded their day's work in a deadlock, each having gained three victories. The seventh match was postponed to yesterday by agreement.

The Columbia Club had been Yale's closest competitor until Vietor's victory sent the Blue and White racquet men down to third place in the standing, a notch below the Crescent A. C. The Yale Club has but three more matches to play in the team tournament and herculean efforts will have to be made if the Elis are to be overtaken. The Yale men seem to have as firm a grasp upon the Class B laurels as the Harvard men have upon the Class A championship.

Vietor's victory was gained in an uphill battle. After dropping the first game at 6, he had all kinds of trouble annexing the second at 11. In the rubber Simonds led for a brief time at 10—8 but, in a finish that had the gallery on the edge of its chairs with excitement, Vietor forged ahead and, after twice missing the match point, finally put it over on a clever placement to Simonds's feet.

Farmer Sullivan and Eddie Nugent will break the ice with a six-round offering.

HARVARD BAFFLES TIGERS AT SQUASH

Crimson Club Takes Seven Straight Matches and Tightens Grip on League Leadership.

METROPOLITAN LEAGUE SQUASH TENNIS STANDING, CLASS A.

Team.	Won.	Lost.	P.C.
Harvard Club	6	1	.871
Yale Club	4	2	.667
Columbia Club	4	2	.667
Princeton Club	0	6	.000

The Harvard Club squash tennis team gained what appears to be a strangle hold upon the Class A championship of the Metropolitan League yesterday afternoon by defeating the Princeton Club seven straight matches. The Harvard Club now has a standing of 6 won and 1 lost, with but a single match, that with the Yale Club on Feb. 10, yet to be played. There is still a possibility that Yale can force a tie with its Crimson rivals, by taking both its remaining matches. The Columbia Club, which defeated the Crescent A. C. by 4 to 3 yesterday, also has a chance to force the Harvard seven into a tie, Yale and Columbia being deadlocked in second place with a count of 4 and 2 in the standing. The Yale and Columbia clubs will meet next week.

In the Harvard Club victory over Princeton, one of the most brilliant performances of the day was that of J. W. Appel Jr. of Harvard, who defeated A. W. Riley by scores of 15—7, 15—5. Appel not only won with plenty to spare, taking both sets by wide margins, despite the stoutest resistance, but he proved that he is fast rounding into the form that has won him the highest national honors. Appel has been content to develop his game gradually this season with the national championship as his one supreme goal and the quality of his play yesterday was testimony to the wisdom of his tactics.

Appel Shows Great Speed.

Appel had hurricane speed and puzzling change of pace and he made get after get that partook of the sensational. There was every indication that, with another week's practice, Appel will be at the summit of his form and capable of battling on a level with the best of his antagonists for national honors.

The Harvard player was slow in starting yesterday and Riley had a lead of 6—2 in the opening game before his rival struck his stride. Appel ran out the game with the loss of but one more ace. In the second game the Harvard expert ran the score up to 13—0, and for the remainder of the game was content to take things easily, retaining the upper hand without difficulty and winning practically as he pleased.

Anderson Dana won for the Harvard Club in another admirably contested encounter. He defeated H. R. Mixsell, the No. 1 man on the Princeton team, by scores of 15—11, 10—15, 15—6, outplacing and outgeneraling his opponent in the third and decisive game.

Gould Is Victor.

The Columbia Club's victory over Crescent by the margin of a single point included one match that went to the Blue and White by default. E. W. Putnam was awarded the verdict over James Doig without the necessity of working for it. Otherwise all the matches were keenly fought. Jay Gould, Columbia's brightest luminary, played magnificent squash to defeat J. Earl Fink by the scores of 15—6, 15—5. The scores look one-sided, but they do not do justice to the speed of the play and the stalwart nature of Fink's opposition. The Crescent man's play was particularly notable for his marvelous recoveries of shots that were all but unreachable.

Keeler won one of the closest struggles of the day when he upset Dingee of Crescent by 4—15, 18—16, 18—16. After an overwhelming victory in the first game Dingee came from the rear to set both the second and third games at 13, but Keeler out-manoeuvred him in the final strokes.

The summaries:

Riley, Princeton, 15—7, 15—5; A. H. Tomes, Harvard, won from Harold Tobey, Princeton, by default; L. I. Grinnell, Harvard, defeated H. D. Harvey, Princeton, 15—10, 8—15, 18—15; J. A. HIGH SCHOOL ATHLETES FIT.

Eagerly Await Annual Meet, to Be Held Tomorrow.

Tomorrow afternoon the eighteenth annual high schools indoor field and track championship games will be conducted by the Public Schools Athletic League at the Twenty-second Regiment Armory. There are to be three classifications for the events, as follows: Intermediate or junior high school boys, junior or senior day high school boys and evening high school boys.

Stuyvesant High School, which won the championship last year, has entered what appears to be a most formidable team, with the hope and belief that the title will come to that institution for another stay of a twelve-month. Large squads have also been named by De Witt Clinton, Erasmus Hall, Manual Training and the High School of Commerce, and the sturdy young athletes who compose them have their own freely expressed opinions that the point trophy will find a new home after tomorrow's proceedings. The chief hope of the aspirants for the honors now held by Stuyvesant lies in goodly strings of reliable performers, rather than in notable individual stars.

ERIE A. A. IN WEST.

New Jersey Soccer Team to Play Exhibition Matches in St. Louis.

Twenty players of the Erie Athletic Association Football Club of Kearny, N. J., departed yesterday for St. Louis to play an exhibition series of two games at Sportsman's Park — on Saturday against the Ben Millers, last year's national soccer champions, and on Sunday against a picked team of the powerful St. Louis Soccer League.

Accompanying the players in a special car are Jack "Dots" Miller, an old-time soccer player, native of Kearny and National League infielder, once of the Cardinals and later of the Phillies; Mayor Keenan of East Newark, N. J., and Thomas Walsh, President of the National Association Football League.

TENDLER GETS LICENSE.

Application of George Chip Also Granted by Boxing Commission.

Lew Tendler, the Philadelphia lightweight, who is on the trail of champion Benny Leonard, received a license to box here when his application was favorably acted upon by the New York State Boxing Commission. An application from George Chip of New Castle, Pa., was also granted.

Solons of Keystone State Consider Boxing Measure

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 27.—Fifteen-round boxing matches and the creation of a State Boxing Commission are provided for in a bill just introduced in the Legislature by Representative C. J. McBride of Allegheny. The commission would have its general offices in Philadelphia and would be authorized to issue permits and supervise all boxing in this State. It would report on boxing activities to the Legislature. A fine of $1,000 for violation of the regulations of the commission is provided in the bill, which also provides that no person under the age of 18 years shall participate in any boxing or sparring match, and that no children under 16 years of age shall be permitted to attend.

BIRCH EXONERATED BY POULTRY SHOW

Secretary Orr Holds British Exhibitor Blameless for Artificial Coloring Found on His Bird.

As a result of an investigation by D. Lincoln Orr, Secretary of the Madison Square Garden Poultry Show, Alfred Birch of Sefton, England, has been found "absolutely blameless" regarding the alleged artificial coloring of the hackle of a cock included in the Birch exhibit of Dark Cornish birds. During the progress of the show, which came to an end last Sunday, a document was filed with Mr. Orr by other exhibitors protesting against the awarding of any prizes to Mr. Birch, the exhibitors charging that the bird in question had its "hackle feathers colored at the base."

Mr. Orr's statement, which is addressed to Mr. Birch, says in part:

"I wish you to know that the Garden management and myself personally have the greatest confidence in you as judged by your conduct while here, and I hold you absolutely blameless, and I want you to feel and know that I do not approve of the methods used by some to hurt your character and reputation, and I have decided to allow the awards to remain as placed by the judge. If at any time I can assist you further in this case, just command me.

"Further, should you wish to be with us again, I would be most happy to receive your entry."

In a statement made yesterday Mr. Birch declared: "The bird when penned the night before the show was in a perfectly natural state, as were all my exhibits."

SPORTSMAN'S SHOW NEXT.

Madison Square Garden Transformed for Exhibition.

Madison Square Garden, which was turned into a barnyard only a short time ago so that the hens and the ducks might feel at home, has now been made to resemble as nearly as possible the great outdoors, the playground of all sportsmen. The reason for this transformation is the Sportsman's Show, under the management of Tex Rickard, which opens tomorrow afternoon to continue until Feb. 5.

All sorts of features, both land and aquatic, are announced. A prominent event will be the trapshooting competition, which is to go on afternoon and evening. Amateur and professional shooting titles will be decided in this competition, also the women's indoor title, now held by Mrs. G. L. Vogel of Detroit, will be at stake.

MAKES GREAT STRETCH RUN.

Mayor House Gallops Over Field at End of La Opinion Handicap.

HAVANA, Cuba, Jan. 27.—Closing with a terrific rush in the last sixteenth, Mayor House scored in a sensational manner in winning the La Opinion Hadicap at Oriental Park today.

The performance of the son of Hanbridge—Helma S. was the outstanding feature of the card. He was practically left at the post, with apparently no chance to win. However, Fletcher, who had the leg up, waited patiently with his mount, nursing him along to the stretch. He was lucky to find an opening on the turn. He rushed the horse up fast on the inside and, taking the lead in the last fifty yards, won going away by three lengths. Fright, the even money favorite, was fortunate to beat Mumbo Jumbo a head for the place. The five and a half furlongs was run in the fast time of 1:06 4-5. Bucknall was the only choice to win.

KIMPALONG FIRST IN THRILLING RACE

Outgames Frogtown in Stirring Stretch Run and Wins New Orleans Feature.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 27.—Because the handicap which was originally scheduled for today failed to fill, it was necessary to rearrange the card, and the result was that a very ordinary program was offered the racegoers at the Fair Grounds. The general lack of quality was made up for in a measure by the size of the field and the fact that the favorites held their own throughout the day, three of them getting home in front.

The fifth race, at a mile and a furlong, which posed as the chief event of the day, resulted in a good contest between two horses which went to the post equal choices. These were Kimpalong and Frogtown, and the victory went to the former. Frogtown was defeated by more than a length, after making a hard stretch run. The Portuguese lasted to save third place among the seven starters.

There was a steady stream of support for both Kimpalong and Frogtown, the latter being liked because the horse is just getting into form. They went to the post quoted at 5 to 2 each. Neither was prominent in the early running, as Young Adam took the bit in his teeth and drew away as though he intended to show up the field. Going through the back stretch, he was five lengths in front of the nearest of the others and it was just a question of whether he would last.

Young Adam Quits.

Young Adam decided that for himself at the far turn, when he suddenly tossed his tail in the air and called it a day. He quit utterly, and the entire field rushed past him before the finish was reached. Frogtown got into the lead in the stretch and appeared to be the winner, having shown great improvement over recent races. But Kimpalong, which had been under restraint from the start, was let down by Roberts and, once he started to run, quickly made up ground. From sixth position he rushed into the lead at the sixteenth pole and outgamed Frogtown to the finish. Frogtown began to swerve in the stretch when put to a drive.

The closest finish of the day came in the third race, a test for fillies and mares, at a mile and seventy yards, when Lorena Koss won by a nose from Light Wine, after the two had fought it out for fifty yards. Light Wine ran as though much the faster, and, with a better ride, might have won. Shelepets took her far back in the early running and did not give her a chance until the stretch was reached, when he tried to rush her to the front. Meantime the winner had caught the tiring Loys, and, racing her down, had gone to the front. However, she had to be hard urged at the finish and would have been beaten in another stride. Sentimental took third.

Thirteen maiden two-year-olds faced the starter for the opening dash at three furlongs, and the race was a scramble from the start. Dolly Vardon, which was making her début, rushed through the pack and got up to win by a length from Little Ammie, with Rosa Lee third. The winner gave a good performance, saved much ground and finished strongly.

Easy for Undine.

Undine scored easily over Hagazza and others, at a mile and seventy yards, winning by three lengths. The winner lost much ground going to the first turn, but steadily drew up to a good position and slipped through at the turn into the stretch to take the lead. Susan M. was third and was not given much assistance by Roberts in the stretch drive. Hidden Jewel took the measure of a large field of platers in a sprint at five and a half furlongs, and, setting the pace all the way, won by a length from Trusty and The Nephew, among others.

PICK NASSAU CLUB FOR TITLE TOURNEY

Women Golfers Will Hold Next Metropolitan Championship at Glen Cove.

WEEK OF JUNE 20 CHOSEN

Conflict With Other Leading Events Avoided — Contest for Junior Title Probable Innovation.

The Nassau Country Club of Glen Cove, Long Island, will be the scene of the next Women's Metropolitan Golf Championship. The selection was made at the annual meeting of the association at the Biltmore Hotel yesterday, delegates from practically all of the seventy-seven clubs in the association favoring it. In fact, only one other club was mentioned as a possibility, the Cherry Valley Club of Garden City, and its claim was not pushed.

The week of June 20 was chosen as the time for playing the tournament, which places it some two weeks later than the Women's Eastern Championship and the Griscom Cup matches to be played at the Country Club of Brookline, June 6-10. A suggestion that a May date be named for the championship was passed up. In case some of the prominent players from this district go over for the British championship next Spring, they will have ample time to return for the local championship.

In addition to the women's championship, it is probable that the association will hold a junior championship also in the course of the Summer. Such an event was proposed four or five years ago, but before it materialized the war came on and the plan was dropped. The Chicago district stages a championship for girls, and the event has proved popular. No doubt it will be successful here.

Will Play 36-Hole Final.

On motion of Mrs. W. A. Gavin and with the hearty support of several other well-known players a departure in the plan of play for the association championship will be introduced this year. This consists of a thirty-six-hole final match. Heretofore only eighteen holes have been played. In fact, eighteen-hole matches have come to be accepted generally for women players, the national championship requiring only that number. It will be rather interesting to see how the fair sex stands up under a test of thirty-six holes in one day.

Mrs. C. F. Uebelacker, President of the association, announced to the meeting that criticism had been made of the prizes offered for the championship tournament, and expressions were sought on the proposal to increase the expenditures along this line. A suggestion that the annual membership dues be increased from $10 to $15 for this purpose was met with a response that the association now has a balance in bank of $655. After considerable discussion it was voted to make no change in the schedule of prizes.

Discussion of an occurrence in connection with last year's championship, wherein Mrs. C. M. Knight, an Englishwoman, took second prize in the qualifying round, led to a proposal that a change in the Constitution of the association be made with reference to the eligibility rules. The amendment will make one year's residence in the district compulsory before a player is eligible to enter the tournament. Mrs. Knight, it was pointed out, was here for only a few months, after which she returned to England.

The intersectional team matches, which have featured the season for the last two years, will be renewed this year. Last year the Long Island team won its matches against both New Jersey and the Westchester-Staten Island combination. The latter in turn, defeated the New Jersey team in their meeting.

One-Day Tourneys Approved.

A program of one-day tournaments was also heartily endorsed. Already the following clubs have offered their courses for such events: Glen Ridge Country Club, Scarsdale Golf and Country Club, Dunwoodie Country Club, Hackensack Golf Club, Essex County Country Club, Century Country Club, Siwanoy Country Club, Baltusrol Golf Club, Belleclaire Golf and Country Club and the Engineers' Country Club. Others will undoubtedly be added to this list.

A change in the date of the annual meeting was made, the conclave being set forward to December instead of January. It was pointed out that, with the meeting coming nearer to the close of the playing season, members would be in a better position to act for the betterment of the association's interests.

The following officers were elected for the year: Mrs. C. F. Uebelacker, Hackensack, President; Mrs. J. E. Davis, Piping Rock, Vice President; Miss Irma Waterhouse, Ardsley, Secretary; Mrs. M. H. Frayne, Dunwoodie, Treasurer. Additional members of the Executive Committee are: Mrs. C. C. Auchincloss, Piping Rock; Mrs. R. P. Thompson, Sleepy Hollow, and Mrs. A. M. Reynolds, Glen Ridge.

FLORIDA GOLFERS DEFY RAIN

Potts Puts Longenecker Out of Ormond Beach Tourney.

Special to The New York Times.

ORMOND BEACH, Fla., Jan. 27.—A right hardy breed of golfers hold forth at Ormond, for a cold blast from the north which hit this place suddenly today on the heels of a rain did not interfere with the playing in the Tomoka Sweepstakes. A few participants in the consolation divisions withdrew in favor of the fireplace, but everybody in the regular sixteens was on hand at the scheduled hour.

Two 85's were made; excellent scoring under the conditions. One was recorded by J. J. Gray of Asheville, a player in the consolation set, and the other by Paul McKeel of Morgantown, also a consolation player.

Charles Longenecker of Roslyn, one of the cracks of the tourney, was put out by George Potts of Willsboro, N. Y. Donn Byrne of Woodway won his match in the second sixteen. He beat his man yesterday 8 and 7, and today won by 7 and 6. Pretty soft for Mr. Byrne, who is playing nearer his form now after a poor 103 in the medal round.

The summaries:

First Sixteen—E. W. Van Houten, Arcola, won from W. F. Hite, Huntington, W. Va., by default; B. S. Colburn, Asheville, beat Wells Bassett, Exmoor, 1 up; George Potts, Willsboro, N. DAY OF UPSETS IN PALM BEACH GOLF

Hyde and Willoughby, Counted On as Finalists, Lose in Lakeworth Tourney.

Special to The New York Times.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 27.—Two upsets marked the semi-final round of the annual Lakeworth tournament today. Both Hugh L. Willoughby Jr. of the Merion Cricket Club and James R. Hyde of the South Shore Country Club, who had been counted upon as finalists, were put out of the running.

George C. Heintzman, a Canadian player from the Hamilton Country Club, disposed of Willoughby by 3 and 1. Willoughby was winner of the medal round and his consistent play made him loom large for the honors in the first flight. Hyde fell before W. B. Langford of Chicago by 3 to 2. Heintzman was 3 up on the turn and kept on going strong all the way home, while Willoughby seemed somewhat puzzled and was unable to hit his stride.

One of the best matches of the day was between J. W. Holmes and John Shepard Jr., the former winning, 1 up, in nineteen holes. Holmes was 2 up and 2 to go and then it was all square on the eighteenth. Playing the nineteenth, Shepard drove to the right and played a thrilling shot through some palm trees. Holmes was hole high to the green, making it three against four.

The score:

First Flight—George W. Heintzman beat Hugh L. Willoughby Jr., 3 and 1; W. B. Langford beat J. R. Hyde, 3 and 2.
Second Flight—Sydney Maddock beat A. F. Hunton, 3 and 4; F. V. Skiff beat R. C. Maxwell, 4 and 3.
Third Flight—J. W. Holmes beat John Shepard Jr., 1 up in 19 holes; Richard Greiner beat J. C. Hutchinson, 2 and 1.

DR. CULVER STAGES UPSET.

New Yorker Beats Judge Goode on St. Augustine Links.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., Jan. 27.—Donald Clark, the Huntington (W. Va.) golfer and medal winner in the tournament now in progress here; Hugh McKenzie of the Columbia Country Club of Washington, Dr. D. L. Culver of New York and William A. Knight of St. Augustine, former Florida State champion, are the players who will compete in the semi-finals tomorrow.

All of these except Culver won their matches handily today. The victory of the New York physician by 4 and 2 over Judge Goode was in fact the only big upset of the day. Even the doctor himself admitted the result was a surprise, for Judge Goode, who is familiar with the course here, is a fine player and was expected to go into the semi-final round. What makes the result the more surprising is that the local player got off to a flying start and won the first five holes. Culver nevertheless plugged steadily along and gradually cut down his opponent's lead, finally winning out on the seventeenth green.

The summaries:

First Division—Donald Clark, Huntington, W. Va., defeated C. A. Usina, St. Augustine, 4 and 3; Hugh Mackenzie, Washington, defeated A. Lehman, Peoria, Ill., 5 and 4; D. L. Culver, New York, defeated O. P. Goode, St. Augustine, 4 and 2; W. A. Knight, St. Augustine, defeated A. M. Taylor, St. Augustine, 4 and 3.

Second Division—M. Crane, Baltimore, defeated J. Dantzler, St. Augustine, 2 up; George Worthington, Bennington, Vt., defeated F. V. Culver, New York, 6 and 5.

Third Division—S. N. Doubleday, Rye, N. Y., won from S. T. Williamson, New York, by default; E. D. Connor, Philadelphia, defeated J. L. Weaver, 1 up.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Jan. 27.—Fordham won its second straight game on its Southern basketball trip when it defeated St. Joseph's College in the latter's gym tonight by the score of 31 to 19.

Captain Culloton and Kelly remained at guard and played a great defense game throughout. Fordham led at the end of the first period, 19 to 8. Gordon was the shooting sensation, with five pretty field goals, with Healey right at his heels with four. McDermott was St. Joe's star, with three field goals.

The line-up:

Columbia Basketball Players Resume Daily Practice Sessions.

While the remainder of the student body was grappling with mid-year examinations, Columbia's league basketball five resumed daily practices last night in the auxiliary gymnasium, and will continue with the evening sessions until next Monday, when the main gymnasium will be ready again for the regular afternoon drills.

The main objective of Coach Joe Deering's present campaign is the annual combat with New York University, which is a part of the informal series for the city basketball championship. The game, which last year attracted a throng far bigger than the capacity of the Columbia gymnasium, will be played a week from tomorrow night and will probably be staged in the Twenty-second Regiment Armory, which can accommodate in excess of 5,000 persons. Columbia's first league game will be with Yale's tail-end five in the Morningside gymnasium on Alumni Day, Feb. 12.

N. Y. U. FIVE EAGER FOR PENN

Many Students Will Accompany Team to Philadelphia.

New York University's basketball team put in a hard practice session yesterday afternoon in the University Heights gymnasium in preparation for the game next Wednesday against the University of Pennsylvania quintet. Now that the midyear examinations are over, Coach Thorp is able to work his charges more regularly, and between now and the game will give them some stiff sessions.

Arrangements have been made for most of the students at the local school to accompany the team to Philadelphia. A section of seats for New York University students has been reserved and the tickets are being sold at the university gymnasium.

FOUR YANKS SENT TO VERNON TEAM

Shore, McGraw, Hannah and Hyatt Go to California in Return for Mitchell.

Miller Huggins, manager of the Yankees, showed up at the headquarters on Forty-second Street yesterday, fresh from a fortnight's outing among the deer and saplings in Georgia. He wanted to know what the news was, but nobody told him, because what business has a baseball manager got to be interested in petty things like municipal investigations and jewel robberies? Besides, he was the party that knew the really interesting news, and it was up to him to talk instead of slothfully listening.

Huggins announced, for one thing, the imminent departure from these environs of Ernie Shore and Bob McGraw, pitchers; Truck Hannah, catcher, and Ham Hyatt, infielder. All these players—and they represent much past and present strength—are headed for Vernon, Cal., where they will help to bolster up the Vernon Club, of the Pacific Coast League. The consideration received by the Yankees has already been announced. When the Vernon officials ratified the sending of their crack infielder, Jack Mitchell, to Huggins's team a month ago, it was arranged that they should have in return four or five really valuable players. The ones just mentioned have been chosen for banishment, or for reward, depending on whether your viewpoint is a New York or a California one.

This dicker proves to have been a three-handed affair, involving San Francisco, as well as New York and Vernon. Lefty O'Doul, the twirler, goes back to San Francisco, and that same team will be further enriched by the acquisition of Slim Love and Roy Carhan.

Concerning the possible return to the major league ranks of Frank Baker, the one-time home run king, Huggins expressed some hope. Baker's decision still hinges on the return to complete health of his little daughter. The Yankees' manager plans to send Joe Kelley, the scout, to see Baker presently, and will go down himself if the conditions seem to make it advisable. Griffith, the boss of the Senators, is still hot on the trail of Baker.

Huggins is still rooting around in the underbrush for an outfielder capable of helping Ruth and Roth keep the outer gardens free of weeds. He wants a catcher, too, which is equivalent to saying that he is going to get a catcher.

The little mentor of the Yankees said that Carl Mays, Babe Ruth, Harry Harper and Waite Hoyt would go to Hot Springs on Feb. 15 for some conditioning, and that Bob Shawkey, Roger Peckinpaugh, Ping Bodie and Wallie Schang would be allowed to go there at the same time, if they so desired. He is going to send about a dozen of the younger players to Shreveport, the training camp, a week before the regulars go.

TO TAKE HOST OF PITCHERS.

White Sox Will Try Out 17 of Them at Waxahachie.

CHICAGO, Jan. 27.—Manager Kid Gleason of the Chicago Americans will take seventeen pitchers and four catchers to Waxahachie, Texas, the training camp, on March 3, a week before the members of the club report.

Secretary Harry Grabiner said today that Urban Faber and Dick Kerr, veterans of the pitching staff, and Raymond Schalk, the crack catcher, will be included in the advance guard to aid Gleason in choosing pitchers to replace those suspended for their participation in the baseball scandal.

HORNSBY SIGNED BY CARDS.

Crack Batter and Infielder Sends 1921 Contract In.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 27.—Rogers Hornsby, infielder and champion batsman of the National League, today signed a contract to play with the St. Louis National League Club the forthcoming season. Hornsby, whose batting average last year was .370, making him leader of the league, was the first Cardinal player to sign up for 1921.

The New York Giants offered $200,000 and four players for Hornsby, but the proffer was turned down.

ST. JOHN'S COLLEGE WINS.

Scores Easy Victory Over F. and M. Basketball Team.

The St. John's five put on extra steam after that and won handily. The feature of the game was the long shooting of Madison of the visiting team, while Damico starred for St. John's with nine goals.

The summary:

GARDNER OUTPLAYS DR. MIAL WITH CUE

Veteran Billiardist Wins by 300 to 122 in Match of 18.2 Eastern Title Meet.

EASTERN 18.2 CLASS A BALKLINE TOURNAMENT STANDING.

Name.	G.	W.	L.	P. C.
E. T. Appleby	1	1	0	1.000
F. Appleby	1	1	0	1.000
Clarkson	1	1	0	1.000
Gardner	3	1	2	.333
Mial	2	0	3	.000

The two veteran cue performers who are entered in the 18.2 Eastern balkline championship tournament of the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players, now in progress at the New York Athletic Club, were the opponents in last night's match, the fourth of the round-robin.

The knights of the green table to cross cues were E. W. Gardner and Dr. L. L. Mial, and when the pastime was ended, after twenty-six innings, Gardner was on the winning end of a 300—122 score. The high run of the winner was 55, made in the twentieth inning. The loser did not accumulate better than 23 for a high cluster, and this he made in what proved to be the final session, when the rally was too late. Gardner's average for the entire route was 11 14-26—which, by the way, is the highest average so far in the tourney. Dr. Mial's average was 4 18-26.

The match went much more swiftly than the two previous games. Gardner was very steady and although there was nothing spectacular about his exhibition, he drew but two blanks during the evening, and in six of the twenty-six innings he averaged nearly 24. His high run of 55 ended with an attempt at an around the table shot, which failed.

Dr. Mial was clearly off form from the start, the ivories proving the most recalcitrant of patients. On several occasions he did his best to read the riot act to them, but they refused to obey. In the eleventh inning the doctor made a run of eleven, and a few chukkers later he gathered in a cluster of 18. But just when it looked as though he had got the pellets doing tricks for him the prescription failed, and they romped to impossible corners or avoided each other as if in fear of contagion.

There will be no match tonight, although one had been scheduled. To make up and bring the tourney card for the week out correctly there will be two matches tomorrow. At 4 in the afternoon Clarkson will meet Francis Appleby, and at 8 in the evening Clarkson will cross cues with Dr. Mial.

The scores:

Gardner—7 24 5 1 0 22 8 8 8 4 7 2 0 45 1 30
3 48 7 55 1 6 9 1 1 3—300. Average, 11 14-26.
Dr. Mial—0 1 2 3 1 2 4 0 5 4 11 1 1 0 6 2 8
0 18 3 0 7 1 18 1 23—122. Average, 4 18-26.

GARDNER AND EAGLE WIN.

Each Beats Leak in Angle Game Title Tournament.

Gus Gardner and George Eagle were the winners in last night's matches of the New York State amateur three-cushion title tournament at the National Recreation Academy in Brooklyn. Gardner scored his first win of the tournament by taking M. Leak into camp 30 to 18. The winner led his opponent almost all the way. Fifty-eight innings were required. Gardner had a high run of 4, while Leak's best was 3.

Leak was the victim in Eagle's triumph also. However, their match was decidedly different from the other. The final count was 30 to 28, and throughout it was a nip-and-tuck battle, neither player having more than three points advantage. Eagle finished in fifty-one innings. Both had high runs of 4.

Following is the standing of entrants to date:

	Won.	Lost.	P. C.
R. Naughright	1	0	1000
H. L. Turk	3	1	.750
G. Laubach	3	1	.750
G. Eagle	4	2	.667
R. Crespi	4	3	.571
L. Servatius	2	3	.400
M. Leak	2	4	.333
G. Gardner	1	3	.250
G. Wyatt	1	4	.200

CHURCH WINS AT POOL.

Conquers Quinn by 125 to 115 in State Title Tourney.

Arthur Church defeated Frank Quinn last night in the continuation of the professional pocket billiard tournament at Lawler's Academy for the championship of New York State. The score was 125 to 115, the winner having a high run of 27, while Quinn clustered 22.

It was a remarkably close game, Quinn leading to the nineteenth point, when Church slowly but surely forged ahead and won. He has one more game to play, and if he wins that, he will take the title from Joseph Concannon, the present State champion.

Leo Silver meets Joseph Concannon tonight in the continuation of the tourney.

HOREMANS IN EXHIBITION.

Belgian Wizard Will Play 18.1 and 18.2 Billiards at New York A. C.

A billiard exhibition calculated to fill the largest room of the New York Athletic Club's commodious house is scheduled to take place there on Friday evening, Feb. 4, it was announced last night. Edouard Horemans, the Belgian wizard at all balklines, will play two exhibition matches, one at 18.1, the other at 18.2, against the winner of the Eastern 18.2 balkline championship tournament of the National Amateur Billiard Players, now in progress under the club's rooftree.

The contestants in the Eastern title tourney are E. T. Appleby, F. Appleby, T. Henry Clarkson, E. W. Gardner and Dr. Mials, and three matches have been played so far, with the two Applebys and Clarkson each having a standing of 1.000 per cent.

BE HELD FROM JURY

His Attorney Contends Evidence Is Insufficient to Sustain Verdict.

IT WILL BE ARGUED TODAY

Prosecution Rests Its Case—Expert Testifies Letter to Drewes Was Written by Brines.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 27.—A motion that the case be taken from the jury on the ground that insufficient evidence had been presented by the State to sustain the indictment against William P. Brines, University of Pennsylvania sophomore, accused of slaying Elmer C. Drewes, a Dartmouth College senior, was made at tonight's session of Brines's trial by his counsel, William A. Gray.

The motion came as a surprise just after Assistant District Attorney James Gay Gordon Jr. had announced that the State had completed its case.

Mr. Gray declared his readiness to argue his motion tonight, but at the suggestion of the Court postponed it until morning. Counsel for the defense made seven other motions to have testimony stricken from the record, but was overruled in each instance. He announced that if his motion to have the case taken from the jury is denied he would call some witnesses for the defense tomorrow.

Brines was the author of the mysterious letter signed "Samuel Magee," which, it is contended, lured Drewes to his death, in the opinion of a handwriting expert who testified today. Comparing specimens of the defendant's handwriting on three university examination papers and two applications for automobile licenses, the expert, Elbridge W. Stein, said it was the same as that in the "Magee" letter, which was sent from Reading, Pa., to Drewes at Dartmouth College, Hanover, N. H., and which contained an offer to sell him an automobile. Another handwriting expert, T. H. McCool, concurred in the opinion.

The bullet which killed Drewes was "almost certainly" fired from the pistol found in a deserted automobile alleged to belong to Brines, Dr. William C. Wadsworth, coroner's physician testified. Dr. Wadsworth based his opinion on a tiny streak of rust found in the barrel of the pistol, which would account for indentations in the bullet that drilled a slightly downward course through Drewes's forehead.

The stains found on the door of the automobile were declared to have been human blood by Dr. John Albert Kolmer, Professor of Pathology and Biology at the University of Pennsylvania, who gave a graph description of the processes which led him to this conclusion. Dr. William C. Robinson, city chemist, The defense hinted that it might base its case on the possibility that a man mentioned by Major S. O. Wynne, chief of county detectives, and known to him only as "Al," actually killed Drewes. In cross-examining Major Wynne today, counsel for the defense brought out that the chief of detectives had received a report of a woman having been overheard on a street car divulging to another that her son had accidentally killed the Dartmouth man. Wynne said he had sent a detective to investigate, but could throw no further light on the report.

Hitherto there had been no hint as to what the defense might be.

A session of court was held tonight in order that the prosecution might finish its case.

TO END ELECTORS' TRAVEL.

Texas Democrat Proposes Plan to Have Results Sent by Mail.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Representative Summers, Democrat, of Texas, wants to abolish the present system of sending messengers with electoral votes to Washington, and have the results sent by registered mail. These messengers are paid 25 cents a mile, and it is estimated that the expense will reach $2,500 this year.

Under a bill offered by Mr. Summers the Governor of each State would issue to electors eight duplicate certificates instead of the present three. One of these, with the result of the vote by the electors, would go to the President of the Senate, another to the Secretary of State, another to the Secretary of the State itself, another to the District Judge in the district where electors assemble, and two each to the clerks of the Senate and House.

Under his bill the electors would meet on the second Monday in December instead of on the second Monday in January, as at present.

THE MARK OF SUPERIOR MILK

Sheffield Sealect
The Mark of Superior Milk and its Products

TEN years ago when we put the word Sealect on a bottle of Sheffield Milk, it was placed there as a mark of identification for a superior product.

It marked a definite step upward in the progress of the milk industry.

It set a standard for the United States. It created a label by which you could instantly know the best in milk and milk products.

We selected the finest and richest milk from all the thousands of farms from which we draw our supply and sealed it with an absolute seal—the best milk we could find—in the best package we could devise, and we called it Sealect.

We believe nothing better was ever offered to the milk consumer.

It insured first of all a rich, clean, perfectly pasteurized milk, consistently high in cream content. It insured the arrival of this rich milk at your table in the same condition in which it left us.

The word Sealect has meant much to Sheffield. Behind it we have put every ounce of earnestness in our organization. It can only go on the very best of the things we offer or produce. It must ever be a mark of superiority.

We ask you to accept it as such. We promise that wherever you see it on milk or milk products it will carry with it the best that 80 years of experience has taught us.

AMERICAN STATUS URGED FOR SHIP LINE

Franklin Appeals to Board in Behalf of the International Mercantile Marine.

'WE ARE OUTCASTS,' HE SAYS

President and Attorney of Line Protest Charges of Undue British Influence.

APPEAL FOR GUIDANCE MADE

85 Per Cent. of the Tonnage Is of British Registry, It Is Shown at Hearing.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—P. A. S. Franklin, President of the International Mercantile Marine, and J. Parker Kirlin, general counsel of that corporation, appeared today before the United States Shipping Board and asked that the board either give it a "clean bill of health as a 100 per cent. American concern or suggest the course which it should follow to meet the desires of its critics."

Mr. Franklin said that his company was the butt of constant and unwarranted attack and that it had suffered at the hands of the Shipping Board in the allocation of American tonnage. He presented evidence to show that all of the members of the board of directors were American citizens and that approximately 94 per cent. of the shares were American owned.

It was developed at the hearing that about 85 per cent. of the tonnage of the International Mercantile Marine was of British registry, subject to the strict shipping laws of Great Britain and operated by subsidiary companies, located abroad, of which the International Mercantile Marine owned all of the stock. Under agreements made in 1903 and 1919, it was shown, the Directors of these subsidiary companies must have the approval of the British Board of Trade, and the International Mercantile Marine in effect agreed to do nothing which would work to the detriment of British trade or marine interests.

Secrecy in Agreements Denied.

It was to these agreements that objection was raised recently by Senator Wesley L. Jones of Washington, who held that they militated against the development of an American merchant marine. Today Mr. Franklin emphasized the statement that the agreement of 1903 had been published in the newspapers when made and by the Department of Commerce, and had been submitted to the Shipping Board on more than one occasion.

There had been no secrecy about the agreements, he asserted, and reports to that effect had given the officials of his corporation much annoyance. The fact was, Mr. Franklin stated, that the agreement of 1903 had been sought by the International Mercantile Marine in order to protect the best interests of the American shareholders and obtained for the ships operated under British registry by the subsidiary companies, the stock of which was owned by the International Mercantile Marine, the same privileges under British law as were obtained by concerns controlled by British capital. It was, he said, a practical proposition.

This side of the controversy brought on a sharp exchange of words between Admiral W. S. Benson, Chairman of the Shipping Board and Mr. Franklin.

"I admit," said Admiral Benson, "that the whole thing is a practical proposition. You, as the owner, are going to run this business for the best interests of the shareholders, and if it is practical you are going to run it to the exclusion of American-flag ships."

Declares Attacks Are Undeserved.

Mr. Franklin retorted that there was a fair chance for argument about the best business policies, but insisted that the facts did not warrant attacks made and that "'reflections have been cast on us which we did not deserve."

"If I were a shareholder," replied Admiral Benson, "I might admit, for the purpose of argument—for I would not admit it otherwise—that I would do as you do."

This clash came at the close of the morning session, and Mr. Franklin ended by shaking his head and refusing to make further reply to Admiral Benson.

The hearing promises to open the whole question of the relationship of America and foreign shipping interests. Mr. Franklin and Mr. Kirlin held that the fact that the greater part of the tonnage which their company controlled was of British registry, should not be placed against the International Mercantile Marine, as it was anxious to develop its American tonnage if a fair opportunity to do so were given. At present the International Mercantile Marine was simply doing the best in behalf of the American merchant marine that was possible under the circumstances, he said.

No decision was reached by the Shipping Board today, but another hearing will be held soon which Mr. Franklin and Mr. Kirlin have been asked to attend.

Shares Deposited in This City.

Mr. Franklin sketched the history of the International Mercantile Marine from its infancy, as the best way in which to present the picture to the board. The pioneers, he said, unable to obtain American tonnage, went into the British field and obtained control of the stock of certain British companies, now subsidiaries of the International Mercantile Marine.

Less than one-half of 1 per cent. of the stock of the International Mercantile Marine, which owned all of the stock of the British subsidiary companies, said Mr. Franklin, was held in England and about 94 per cent. was held by American citizens. The British companies, he added, had no control or ownership in the International Mercantile Marine. All the shares of all the British companies were deposited in New York.

The International Mercantile Marine, said Mr. Franklin, had distributed over $30,000,000 in dividends and paid off $31,000,000 of bonds.

"Are the people of the United States better off for owning these British properties?" he asked. "We think so. As to the earnings of the British companies, they come to the United States. We have not sold American interests but bought British interests."

"We Are Outcasts," Franklin Complains.

Mr. Franklin said that the company had realized for some time now, as a result of the agitation against it, that it was not to receive any favors, although anxious and willing to serve in building up the American merchant marine. As to its British holdings, he said:

"In England they think we are American and call us American. In America they think we are British and call us British. We are outcasts with no home except in the middle of the ocean. We don't deserve it."

The policies which the company had advocated from time to time for the upbuilding of the American merchant marine were evidence of the fact that the corporation was not under British dictation or working in behalf of British supremacy, Mr. Franklin insisted.

Upon being questioned by Admiral Benson, Mr. Franklin said that the British had never attempted to use their powers under the agreement of 1903.

Mr. Franklin admitted that under the agreement the British Government had the right to take over the British tonnage held by the company in the event of war, or, for that matter, at almost any time it saw fit, but it could do that regardless of the agreement, he declared.

Commissioner Thompson asked if it were not true that the British Director of Shipping, when the question of the United States Government taking over the tonnage was being discussed, had made it known that if such a plan were attempted the British Government would exercise its power under Clause 5 of the agreement of 1903 and take possession of the tonnage. Mr. Franklin said he had heard that the matter had been taken up but not as between the British Government and the International Mercantile Marine.

Competes With British Lines.

Mr. Thompson pressed Mr. Franklin for an opinion as to what the British Government would do if American tonnage controlled by the company was used in a manner hostile to British tonnage.

To this Mr. Franklin replied that the company was in competition with the Cunard Line and others and that no objection had been raised by the British.

"Since the agreement was made in 1903," he said, "we have pursued the policy that it referred only to British flag steamers."

The point was raised by Commissioner Thompson that the International Mercantile Marine had kept in service from Boston to Liverpool a British vessel, although this route had been allocated to the International Mercantile Marine by the Shipping Board. In explanation Mr. Franklin said that the British vessel was of such construction that it was run at a profit and that the American ship could be run on that route only at a loss.

While discussing this point Mr. Franklin said that the International Mercantile Marine had sought to obtain ships for routes where it was not established, but had little luck. He added that the Shipping Board had allocated to other companies ships of a better type for routes which the International Mercantile Marine already was operating with ships it had purchased from the Shipping Board.

High Praise Given Baruch In War Medal Citation

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Secretary Baker today announced that President Wilson had awarded a Distinguished Service Medal to Bernard M. Baruch for his services in connection with the World War. The citation in Mr. Baruch's case was given out as follows:

"To Mr. Bernard M. Baruch, for exceptionally meritorious and distinguished services in the organization and administration of the War Industries Board, and in the co-ordination of allied purchases in the United States. By establishing a broad and comprehensive policy for the supervision and control of the raw materials, manufacturing facilities and distribution of the products of industry, he stimulated the production of war supplies, co-ordinated the needs of the military service and the civilian population, and contributed alike to the completeness and speed of the mobilization and equipment of the military forces and the continuity of their supply."

MOVE FOR AUSTRIA TO BE PAPAL STATE

Christian Socialists Behind the Plan and Said to Be Negotiating With Vatican.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 27.—The Christian Socialist Party of Austria is trying to promote an arrangement by which the little State now left from the proud empire of the Hapsburgs would become the fief of the Catholic Church. The Austrian Christian Socialists are one of the most powerful groups in the country. Especially are they solid and homogeneous, whereas the rest of the Socialists are split in a majority and minority and the later sub-split into Communists, Reformists, Centrists, &c.

There are strong Christian Socialist elements in Italy, Bavaria, Czechoslovakia and Hungary whose co-operation is being sought by the Viennese leaders. The latter are stated now to be negotiating with the Vatican in an attempt to obtain the Pope's consent to their putting the suggesion before the allied conference, or, if the matter cannot be arranged in time, before the Council of Ambassadors.

I am informed that it is doubtful whether they will be successful for the reason that the Church authorities fear a confusion of power might result between Rome and Vienna in case the latter should indeed become the centre of a successful Catholic State.

The argument for the arrangement is as follows: Austria at present is an unworkable proposition, since by no possible means can the State raise revenue enough to run the country and feed the peopde. This is due to two causes—first, the disproportion of the great capital with a tiny territory, and, second, the hostility of the surrounding peoples, due to their hereditary hatred, which makes it impossible for Viennese industrials to receive raw materials or sell goods afterward.

Since France split with the Church of Rome Austria has occupied the position of "eldest daughter of the Church." The transformation of the republic into a papal State would satisfy the desire the Popes have never abandoned for a measure of temporal power. It would at the same time be welcomed by a majority of Austrian citizens, especially the more stable element.

GLORIFY EX-KAISER ON HIS BIRTHDAY

But Even Reactionary Papers Don't Want William as Their Next Monarch.

BOLD IN ELECTIONEERING

Junkers Make the Day Count in Their Campaign for Control of Prussian Parliament.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 27.—This is the ex-Kaiser's birthday, which was once the occasion for orgies of sham patriotism, Byzantinism and homage to the Spirit and the Man of Potsdam. Although William is a fugitive in Holland, there is still a large number of loyal subjects who, though they never raised a hand to defend the monarchy two years ago, will gather to drink his health and send him telegrams professing allegiance and assuring the deserted despot that the Prussian elections next month will prove that the German people have not forgotten their master.

A year or two ago the birthday was celebrated, too, though more or less secretly; but this year Junkerdom has regained its wonted impudence and recklessness, and is determined to adopt open electioneering for the cause of the monarchy and the restoration of the Hohenzollern dynasty, this being practically the platform of the two reactionary parties, the Deutsche Volkspartei and the Deutsche Nationale Volkspartei. Although both parties through their official leaders never fail to assure the public that they do not desire any change in the German Constitution except by legal means, and although this may be the honest feeling of most of their sober-minded members, a fait accompli like the Kapp insurrection would surely sweep them off their feet into a bloody civil war, which is really the one thing most dreaded by the monarchists, because they know they could not win against the overwhelming majority of the German people which would then arise to defend the republic, despite its present attitude of weariness and apathy.

Extreme Right Expected to Gain.

According to most experienced observers of the political situation, a considerable gain by the Extreme Right, i. e., the Deutsche Nationale Volkspartei, is most reckoned upon, while the other reactionary party, the Deutsche Volkspartei, may lose some seats, but not enough to neutralize the effect of the sister party's gain.

"There are two reasons for this," explained Dr. Otto Nuschke, editor of the Berliner Volkszeitung, who with Senator Petterson manages the campaign for the Democratic Party, to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent. "First, the Deutsche Volkspartei's wine has been watered considerably by its participation in the Federal Government, which participation, despite great promises to the electors, has proved almost completely ineffective. Secondly, because the reactionary slogan, 'For the monarchy,' has alarmed many. Well-balanced members who fear that it may lead to civil war—a fear which is shared even by so stanch a party organ as the Kölnische Zeitung, which today warns the Deutsche Volkspartei: 'Stop singing the song of Kyffhauser of the return of imperial glory, and do not awaken hopes that must remain unfulfilled.'

"But the German proverb says: 'What is one man's owl is an other's nightingale,' and the same slogan that diminishes the ranks of the Deutsche Volkspartei swells those of its sister party, the even more reactionary Deutsche Nationale Volkspartei.

"Here is where we suffer through our love for liberty. We gave the women suffrage, and the second time they exercise the franchise many who at first were enthusiastic Republicans will make use of it against those who secured their emancipation.

"The classes which suffer most from present conditions are subordinate officials, salaried persons of all kinds and pensioners—the so-called decent little people whose income in pre-war times was just enough to keep them in genteel sufficiency, but are now hopelessly inadequate—the responsibility for which the monarchists throw upon the Republic. 'Under William your salaries or pensions supported you well enough,' say the election orators sent out by the Deutsche Nationale Volkspartei, 'and, besides, you had a title or position, no matter how small, which compelled the respect of the masses. This equalizing republic is placing you on a level with mechanics and menials, only the latter are better paid. If you desire the return of the good old times vote for us.'

"This argument cannot sway any man of those classes who has made up his mind; but the women, who probably suffer most by the altered circumstances, will only remember that they wore better clothes and had a better table in pre-war times, without searching logically for those responsible for their present destitution; and thus many a Frau Secretary, Frau Lieutenant, Frau Tax Collector, &c., will promptly vote for those who show them visions of Hohenzollern glory and roast veal on Sunday. By far the most of the women of these classes will vote for the Extreme Right, while the minority will turn to the Extreme Communist Left, which also makes impossible promises, such as a proletarian dictatorship that will take everything from the rich and give it to them.

"But, despite this increase of the strength of the unavoidable two extreme parties, we of the middle parties have no serious apprehensions that the monarchists will come into power. They themselves, despite all their bragging, fear nothing so much as taking on their shoulders the sole responsibility for the German Government, because without any aid from the unwilling masses they would soon prove a complete and ridiculous failure. It is true that our army is almost completely monarchist now, but there are many officers and men who clearly see the impossibility of fighting three-fourths of the population, which will rise again like one man if it is necessary to defend the republic. In fact, provoked by the reactionary slogan, 'For the Monarchy' all the other parties, even the Centrists, have made 'the defense of the republic' their slogan.

"We are certain that the monarchists will not dare force the issue, even if they come out of the election with superior strength. I will prophesy, even now, that the next Prussian Parliament and Government will have nearly the same complexion as at present."

Reactionary Press Lauds William.

All the reactionary papers, from the Reichsbote to the Lokal-Anzeiger, publish long articles glorifying Kaiserdom. Nevertheless the Deutsche Zeitung and the Kreuz-Zeitung take occasion to make it clear to William that though his dynasty would be welcomed to the throne, he himself is not wanted. The Deutsche Zeitung, however, urges that he should have a place of refuge in Germany. The Kreuz-Zeitung lauds his alleged determination to renounce the throne and glorifies him as a royal martyr and exile, who will be consoled by the growing monarchical spirit.

"That means nothing else," comments Vorwärts, "than that William must not imagine himself ever returning to the throne." Vorwärts continues:

"The Kreuz-Zeitung's cautious remarks are quite comprehensible if one remembers William's most recent wrathful utterance to a confident visitor: 'If I come home heads will fly right and left.' William will hardly forget that it was the Kreuz-Zeitung that on Nov. 9, 1918, removed from its titlepage the inscription: 'With God for King and Fatherland.'"

DOORN, Holland, Jan. 27.—The former German Emperor observed his sixty-second birthday today. There was no elaborate ceremony. His daughter, the Duchess of Brunswick, and two of his sons visited him.

The condition of the former German Empress is unchanged.

$13,883,819,826.36 2-3 in Treasury Vaults; Count for New Head Reveals No Shortage

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Completion of the first count since 1913 of cash and securities in the Treasury has revealed that the vaults of the national Government hold a grand total of $13,883,819,826.36 2-3, of which $97,410,283.02 is in cash.

More than $10,000,000,000 of the bonds and other securities held in trust by the Treasury, which totaled $12,308,849,043.34 2-3, Acting Treasurer Allen announced, consist of evidences of the indebtedness of the allied nations. The presence of the two-thirds of a cent in the figures was explained by Treasury officials as due to a bond of the State of Tennessee for $1,666.66 2-3 held by the Treasury for the Secretary of the Interior as part of a number of Indian trust bonds purchased for the benefit of Indians from the proceeds of the sale of Government lands to them.

The last count of the Treasury's cash in securities in 1913 showed a grand total of $1,426,422,051.46 2-3, of which the total cash was $199,231,911.96. Sale of 100,000,000 standard silver dollars to the British Government during the war to relieve the silver famine in India, officials said, explained the major part of the difference in the cash.

Count of the Treasury's cash and securities, which was necessitated by the resignation of Treasurer John Burke, showed no shortage, and a receipt for the amount will be sent to him by Mr. Allen.

BADEN MAKES ISSUE OF BERGDOLL CASE

Minister Denounces Attempted Kidnapping—Asks Berlin to Protest to Washington.

OUR ARMY IMPLICATED?

Would-Be Captors Said to Have Stated They Acted on Coblenz Orders—Bergdoll Now a German.

Copyright, 1921, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

BERLIN, Jan. 27.—The attempt of American detectives to kidnap Grover Cleveland Bergdoll at Eberbach has become an international incident. The Baden Government through the Minister of the Interior, Remmele, has sent a protest to the Foreign Office, requesting the Government to demand satisfaction from Washington. Remmele in addressing the Baden Legislature, vehemently condemned the participants, saying:

"The Eberbach affair shows the world Germany's impotence and what foreign countries dare to do to the German people without Germany having a chance to obtain reparation."

The American detectives, Neaf of Baltimore and Zimmer of Denver, carried credentials of the German police at Coblenz.

It was learned today that Bergdoll and Eugene Stecher, his chauffeur, both of Philadelphia, became German citizens recently. Bergdoll has been living since October with his cousin, Robert Freudenberger. It was Freudenberger who jumped on the running board of the detectives' automobile and put on the brakes, and after a battle caused the arrest of the Americans.

Stecher, with whom Bergdoll escaped from America, was born in Baden in 1887 and served twelve years in the United States Army before deserting in July and returning to Germany and becoming a citizen. Bergdoll also found it easy to become a citizen because he refused in America to fight against Germany.

The accused detectives face long imprisonment if the charge of abduction is proved. A charge of attempted murder also is likely.

Say Our Army Men Ordered Effort.

BERLIN, Jan. 27.—The Foreign Office and Ministry of Justice received this morning from the State's attorney at Eberbach, Baden, an official document, reciting the details of the attempted abduction of Grover C. Bergdoll and Isaac Stecher. The report refers to assertions by the American detectives that they were under orders of the American military authorities at Coblenz.

Until this point is definitely established the German Government can take no action, it was stated at the Foreign Office. Baden's jurisdiction extends only to the treatment of the episode with respect to its relation to the local criminal laws.

Up to noon no information from Coblenz was available for Americans in Berlin with regard to the attitude of the American military authorities there. The mission here also was non-communicative.

A news dispatch from Heidelberg says that the two detectives and their four German aides are still locked up at Eberbach.

The original warrant, which was for attempted murder and abduction, has been changed, as that charge, it is admitted, could not be upheld. The six men are now charged with illegal usurpation of authority.

COBLENZ, Jan. 27.—The German authorities state that two American detectives from the Department of Criminal Investigation have been arrested at Eberbach in connection with the attempt to kidnap Grover Bergdoll, American draft deserter. The military authorities are making an investigation.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 27.—The Public Ledger has received this cable dispatch from Bergdoll:

"EBERBACH, Baden, Jan. 27.—We captured six Department of Justice agents and threw them into prison. We are safe and sound. See The Associated Press report."

EX-KAISER'S HISTORIAN DIES

Prof. Schiemann, Long a Favorite, Lost Friendship by Opposing War.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 27.—Professor Theodor Schiemann, the ex-Kaiser's favorite historian, died yesterday at the age of 73. Schiemann was a native of Courland, but came to Berlin early in his life and was equally well known as a historian and a journalist. William consulted him on all East European questions, but seldom followed his advice, because Schiemann, though a conservative, was a decided opponent of Russian despotism, a fact which led him to urge the Kaiser to attack Russia at the time of the Russo-Japanese War. His advice was not taken because the Kaiser would not hear of any action that might diminish the glory of monarchism.

During and even before the World War Schiemann strongly opposed Germany's attitude toward England and disapproved of the wild plans of conquest of the men around the Kaiser and thus became quite estranged from him. It is stated, however, that after his exile William resumed friendly relations with Schiemann, who helped him write his memoirs.

JAPANESE POLICE WATCH AMERICANS

Greater Surveillance Over Visitors, Who Are Said to Study Army and Industries.

SIBERIAN STAND DEFENDED

Armament Cut Proposed to Opposition Party—Fujimura Warns on Militarism.

TOKIO, Jan. 26 (Associated Press).—The police, according to the Asahi Shimbun today, have decided to exercise greater surveillance over American visitors to Japan who "are busily engaged in investigating industrial and military conditions." The newspaper asserts that the police confirm this statement.

Major Gen. Tanaka, the War Minister, defending in the Diet today the Japanese occupation of Siberia, said that it was impossible to evacuate that country when the Czechoslovaks were repatriated. The Bolsheviki, he declared, would have pressed eastward in the event of the Japanese evacuating and would have overrun Trans-Baikalia, thus frustrating the object of the Czechoslovak operations. For this reason, Minister Tanaka asserted, the Japanese were retained.

Resolutions suggesting that Japan approach the world powers in the interest of an agreement relative to restriction of armaments have been submitted to the Kensei-Kai, or Opposition, party by Yukio Ozaki, a member of the organization and an advocate of the curtailment of military and naval programs in this country. He asks that the resolutions be submitted for passage to the Diet.

Allegations abroad that Japan is controlled by militarists, which have formed the basis of numerous interpellations in the Diet recently, culminated today in a comprehensive declaration by Baron Fujimura in the House of Peers to the effect that until the so-called Mizumachi case was explained to the satisfaction of the Peers, the accusation that Japan's diplomacy is conducted under two heads, one the Foreign Office and the other the War Department, must stand.

The Mizumachi case grew out of a letter which Colonel Mizumachi, who was sent by the War Department to Chentao, on the Korean-Manchurian frontier, dispatched to British missionaries concerning atrocities alleged to have been committed by Japanese troops in South Manchuria, warning the missionaries to keep out of politics and asking them what the British people would think if Japanese Buddhists should incite the Hindus of India to revolt.

Baron Fujimara called attention to the strong anti-Japanese sentiment in China, due to the belief of the Chinese that Japan was ever pursuing an aggressive policy, an impression which he said was strengthened by Japan's launching what he characterized as an unjustified military expedition to Chentao in contradiction of her constant professions that she would maintain the territorial integrity of China. Thus, he declared, it was only natural that Japan should be misunderstood as both militaristic and aggressive. So long as such an objectionable policy was maintained, the Baron added, a rapprochement between China and Japan was an impossibility.

Both Viscount Uchida, the Foreign Minister, and Major Gen. Tanaka, the War Minister, repudiated any responsibility for the communication of Mizumachi.

D'ANNUNZIO'S BOOK SUGGESTS NEW FIGHT

Poet Denounces Giolitti and Calls Himself 'Greatest Servant of the Fatherland.'

ROME, Jan. 27.—The Chamber of Deputies reopened today amid commotion as a result of the recent hostilities between the Fascisti and Socialists in the provinces of Modena, Bologna and Ferrara.

All the Deputies received a copy of the volume of Gabriele d'Annunzio, embracing 200 pages, describing the poet's viewpoint of the events leading to the downfall of the regency of Fiume. Several passages in the volume would indicate that d'Annunzio has not abandoned his fight, and that the present stage in the situation is to be considered a truce, during which he is preparing to resume his efforts to control Fiume.

Most of the session of today was taken up with a memorial service to Augusto Ciufelli, former Vice President of the Chamber, who died early in the month.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—Gabriele d'Annunzio indulges in violent invective against Premier Giolitti of Italy and the Italian Government in his book "Five Days of Fiume," which has been distributed among members of the Italian Chamber of Deputies, says a London Times dispatch from Milan. The poet-soldier describes himself as "the greatest servant of the fatherland," and attributes his importance to the fact that he gave Italy an Alpine frontier and secured for her the Eastern provinces of Friuli and Istria, it is said.

LABOR IN BRITAIN DEMANDS ACTION

Drafts Program on Unemployment and Gives Until Feb. 23 for Its Enactment.

OPEN THREATS ARE MADE

It Calls for Unemployment Benefits, Trade With Russia and Peace With Ireland.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—"The workers will not be satisfied with words, they want deeds," declared the Chairman of the Labor Congress on Unemployment today, but all the 800 delegates did was to adopt unanimously a lengthy manifesto reviewing a large part of the international as well as industrial field and adjourn till Feb. 23.

The resolution called for many things the Government is already trying to accomplish, such as re-starting the wheels of foreign trade, including that with Russia, and provision of work for the unemployed, and its main contributions to the pressing problems of the moment were a demand for an increase of "out-of-work" pay and doles to make up the earnings of short-time workers. These measures the labor members of Parliament were instructed to keep before the House of Commons continuously from its reassembling on Feb. 15 till Feb. 23, regardless of such other pressing questions as Ireland and the peace conferences.

Some of the delegates realized that in the face of heavy taxation and the remembrance the electorate in general has of the effect of doles during the war that there was no chance of such a program being accepted, and so J. H. Thomas, M. P., took up boldly the question of "direct action."

"The proposal to adjourn," he said, "neither affirms nor disagrees with adoption of direct action."

"And in the meantime the unemployed are to starve," shouted a delegate.

The resolutions proposed by the executive were carried, but before adjournment the labor members of Parliament had to listen to a bitter attack from the extremist section, who complained of their ineffectiveness. Thomas answered sharply, calling such assaults "humbug and hypocrisy" and asking how labor members would carry weight in the Commons when again and again the labor candidates were defeated in working class constituencies.

Comment on the labor congress follows the line that moderate leaders like Thomas and Clynes know it is hopeless for them to attempt a solution of a world-wide problem and are merely anxious to hold their jobs against the discontent of the extremist wing, hoping the adjournment for a month may see some improvement in the industrial situation.

Demand Immediate Action.

LONDON, Jan. 27 (Associated Press).—British organized labor at the National Conference of the Labor Party and the Trades Union Congress today demanded immediate action on the part of the Government to remedy the plight brought about by the steadily growing unemployment in the country, endorsed a policy which its authors assert will permanently remove the cause of the present industrial depression and adjourned until Feb. 23 in order to give the Labor members of Parliament an opportunity to press for the desired remedial steps.

"If we cannot achieve what this program suggests by constitutional means we will adopt some means of an extra-constitutional character," declared Robert Williams, leader of the transport workers, in supporting the resolution.

The conference was characterized by The Daily Herald, the labor organ, this morning as "either the most momentous or the most futile in labor's history," but it was productive of little of a sensational nature. It represented the culmination of numerous committee meetings of the workers, held during recent weeks, at which a common policy regarding unemployment and related issues was formulated.

Demands Security Against Destitution.

The conference adopted unanimously a joint resolution embodying its suggestions for a solution of the unemployment situation. The resolution urges that all the resources of the nation must be concentrated on affording complete security against destitution. It declares the Government's foremost obligation is to find productive work at standard rates for every willing worker.

The labor proposals embodied in the resolution call for trade with Russia, restoration of trade with other Continental countries, a cessation of wars, stabilization of international exchange rates, an extension of credits, organization of a European transport system, cessation of the military opposition and lawless reprisals in Ireland, State maintenance of unemployment benefits of 40s. weekly to each householder, 25s. weekly to each single man or woman over 18 years, with additional allowances to dependents and an under-employment allowance on the same basis to provide for the adoption of short time, the proportionate benefit to be calculated on the total days lost weekly.

The proposals ask for a legal reduction in working hours to forty-four weekly, drastic regulation of overtime, the undertaking of necessary public works, including the development of roads, railways and waterways, the withdrawal and restriction of juvenile labor, raising of the school-leaving age, Government training schools for women and unemployed male workers, a guaranteed minimum housing program for five years, safeguards against unemployment to building trades unions, the removal of Government restrictions on the expansion of building guilds and the control of building materials.

SWISS BLOW AT LENIN.

Vote Against Joining His Organization Is 3 to 1.

BERNE, Jan. 27.—At the referendum taken by the Socialists throughout Switzerland on whether they should join the Third, or Lenin's, Internationale, the voting was three to one against doing so. Those who voted included all trade union workers and all members agitators therefore have received the severest blow in all their experience.

Considering that Lenin, Radek, and their friends spent several years in Switzerland before leaving for Russia, it might have been expected that their influence would have been greater, especially as during the first years of the war they had a Socialist newspaper at their disposal.

GENEVA, Jan. 27 (Associated Press).—Revised figures show that the Swiss Socialist Party in the recent voting at Berne on the question of adhering to the twenty-one conditions laid down by the Moscow Internationale rejected the proposition, 25,334 to 8,723.

DEFENDS SOVIET REPRISALS.

Krassin Talks of "Painful Necessity of Taking Repressive Measures."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—Allegations made by the Labor Party that the Soviet has made reprisals by exiling a number of persons who gave information to the delegation that visited Russia has been replied to by Krassin.

"The Soviet Government," he says, "is conducting a struggle against manifestations of counter revolution, no matter what groups are engaged in it. There remains the painful necessity of taking repressive measures even against former friends and revolutionaries. The carrying out of these disagreeable duties causes bewilderment and disapproval among foreign Socialists, influenced by Russian citizens resident abroad and professing to be Socialists and Revolutionaries. This influence we believe also accounts to some extent for the protest of the British Labor Party."

'Coryza Closet' Is Expected To Cure Wellesley's Colds

WELLESLEY, Mass., Jan. 27.—A "coryza closet" to snuff the snuffles and nip the colds of Wellesley College girls is to be installed at Founder's Hall, according to an announcement made today. The coryza closet is an airtight little room, lined with zinc and filled with the healing and disinfecting vapors of eucalyptus oil and formaldehyde, the inhaling of which is expected to ward off colds.

A similar closet was recently tested in Simpson Cottage, the college infirmary. The results convinced Dr. Katharine P. Raymond, the college physician, of its value.

A census showed that 341 girls out of 367 had suffered from colds in the last twelve months. The students have been warned to discard the fashion of going about bare-headed on rainy days.

THIRD MAN KILLED IN BELFAST FEUD

Sinn Feiner Murdered in His Bed Soon After Shooting of Policemen in Hotel.

MISSING WITNESS FOUND

Steamship Arriving at Dublin Subjected to Careful Search by Authorities.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BELFAST, Jan. 27.—While police and military were searching for the assassins who killed two members of the constabulary and wounded a third in their beds at Railway View Hotel last night, another shooting affray took place in Bray Street, a quiet thoroughfare on Crumlin Road. A young man named Michael Garvey, 23, described as a chemist's assistant and said to have been an ardent Sinn Feiner, was shot dead in his bed in the house where he lodged about 12:50 o'clock this morning. Two masked men entered the house by means of a key and went straight to Garvey's room, where they shot him.

The three police victims recently came to Belfast in mufti on special duty, one of the men being concerned in important inquiries and his comrades acting as an escort. The Railway View Hotel, where they stayed, is close to the city headquarters of the R. I. C.

As the bar was about to be closed for the night about 9:30 o'clock five men who had been served with drink dashed toward the staircase leading to the bedrooms. They entered the room where the policemen had retired to rest and a series of shots rang out. Revolvers in hand, the assassins returned to the bar and ordered the barman to open a side door, by which they escaped. Two of the officers on the police being summoned were found to have been shot dead and the third was removed to a hospital in a critical condition. Later the authorities detained the two barmen employed at the hotel, but no charge has yet been preferred against them.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUBLIN, Jan. 27.—I was informed today that the missing witness in the court-martial trial has been found and is safe. Beyond this brief announcement no information was forthcoming.

Both the Wicklow farmers who were kidnapped during the week-end lost their lives. One was found dead in a bog and it is now officially reported that the other, William Charters, has been found dead in Corbeach Lake, two miles from Ballinalee. He had been blindfolded and shot.

A Constable stationed at Granard, in the district where the kidnapping took place, was wounded last night by a bomb which was thrown at him by an unknown man.

Claims for compensation arising out of the recent burning and destruction of property in Tipperary Town have been lodged to the amount of £220,000.

For some time past the police have been keeping watch at Dublin port for the arrival of the steamship Zena. She has berthed with a general cargo at last. The members of the crew were subjected to a careful search when they came ashore. Dockers who boarded her today to unload the cargo also were searched when they suspended work for meals, and it is understood the whole operation of unloading is to be under strict observation.

DUNSANY REARRESTED; HAD ARMS IN CASTLE

Irish Writer Taken Away to Unknown Place—Guns Said to Be for Hunting.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—Lord Dunsany, the well-known Irish author, was arrested at Dunsany Castle early on Wednesday morning, released on bail and subsequently rearrested. The Daily Chronicle's Dublin correspondent telegraphs. It is not known where he has been taken. It is stated the charge against him is being in possession of arms and ammunition.

The nephew of Sir Horace Plunkett, Dunsany owns extensive estates in County Meath. He is a poet and dramatist and served both in the South African and European wars, being wounded in the latter. He was wounded again by Sinn Feiners at the time of the Easter rebellion of 1916.

THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent learns that Dunsany is a keen sportsman and the arms were only shotguns of no military value. They were taken in a routine comb-out of the martial law district by the regular military officer. No proceedings are expected against Dunsany.

STINNES INVESTS IN AUSTRIA

German Magnate Said to Be Seeking Control of Newspapers.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Jan. 27.—Hugo Stinnes, the German industrial magnate, seems to be very anxious to obtain a firm hold on Austria. He recently bought a large holding of shares in Austria's largest iron and steel company, which owns enormous iron ore deposits in Styria.

Stinnes also seems to be desirous of moulding public opinion in Austria, as, following his purchases of German newspapers, he is reported to be negotiating for several Austrian journals. He is said to be anxious to obtain possession of a pan-German paper published in Vienna as well as several in the provinces, at Innsbruck and Salzburg, for example.

Stinnes's movements in this part of Europe are kept as secret as possible, but it is said that he is at present in Budapest or is going there with the object of obtaining control of the Budapest press.

AGAINST AMERICAN WIRELESS

Japan to Protest Use of Our Capital in Building Chinese Stations.

TOKIO, Jan. 26.—Japan will enter a protest against the construction with American capital of a large wireless station at Shanghai, with branches at Tientsin, Chi-fu and Harbin, says the newspaper Nichi Nichi of this city.

This action will be based on the claim that the work would infringe upon concessions granted Japan authorizing this country to build wireless plants at points in the interior of China.

DE VALERA IN TOURS; MAY BE GONE AGAIN

Traced by a Paris Reporter, Sinn Fein Chief Gives an Interview.

TALKED OF AIRPLANE TRIP

Said He Would Fly to Scotland —Sinn Fein Agent Confirms "President's" Visit.

SAYS HE LANDED IN IRELAND

And Has Been There Up to Ten Days Ago—Departure From France Reported.

PARIS, Jan. 27.—Eamon de Valera, whose presence in France has been rumored recently, has been found at Tours, Central France, according to a correspondent of the newspaper Oeuvre.

The journalist quotes the Irish republican leader as declaring he proposed to travel back from Tours by airplane with the intention of landing on Scotch territory in the vicinity of Glasgow.

In a conversation with the correspondent De Valera is quoted as saying:

"I left America because at a time when the English seek by an implacable policy of terrorism to frighten our people and weaken our moral forces, it is the manifest duty of the chief of the Irish nation's representatives to be among his compatriots. Really it was greatly to the advantage of Ireland that I remain in America."

Marcel Coulaud, the journalist under whose signature the interview appeared in Oeuvre, said that he obtained the interview without the assistance of the Irish representatives in France. He asserted he kept a close watch on the "Irish Legation" for four days and finally saw a man who answered the description of de Valera leave the rooms which had been occupied by the Irish delegation since the armistice, first by George Gavan Duffy and then by Sean O'Ceallaigh.

Follows de Valera to Tours.

Coulaud declared he followed the man, who went to the Orleans railroad station and bought a ticket for Tours. Coulaud did likewise and so did several men who appeared to take an unusual interest in the movements of the tall, thin man with tortoise shell eyeglasses. Two of them spoke English, while others spoke French. De Valera appeared to be perfectly aware that he was being shadowed.

According to Coulaud, de Valera did not wear the slightest disguise. He read a magazine all the way to Tours, refusing firmly, but not unkindly, all attempts by the journalist to start a conversation, Coulaud not yet having made known his identity. At Tours, Coulaud said, de Valera went to the Hotel de l'Univers, where he engaged rooms.

De Valera finally agreed to receive the journalist, greeting him with: "I thought you were another detective. You have been so persistent I shall give you an interview."

Coulaud said de Valera made him promise not to publish the interview before three days had elapsed, as he intended to leave France. "I do not intend to go to Ireland, but shall fly in an airplane to Glasgow," Coulaud declared de Valera told him. There is an aviation field near Tours.

Coulaud asserts he returned to Paris and offered the interview to several newspapers, which refused to accept and publish it, saying they did not wish to embarrass Lloyd George while the Premiers' conference was going on. L'Oeuvre accepted the article.

Asked by the correspondent what he considered to be a solution of the Irish problem de Valera said:

"The Irish people claim the right of self-determination. If England should concede that right there would be no further difficulties, either with her or with the Ulster minority. If Ulster should claim autonomy, we would be willing to grant it."

Peace offers by Premier Lloyd George, which have been reported by the press, were said by de Valera to be of little value.

"What Mr. Lloyd George says today he will not say tomorrow, if it suits his policy," he is quoted as declaring.

In conclusion de Valera denied there was any division between parties in Ireland on the subject of a settlement with England, adding: "The pretended division was only a British story. There is no division. We all want Ireland free and independent."

Says de Valera Has New Left France.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 28.—The Daily Chronicle's Paris correspondent has interviewed Sean O'Ceallaigh, Chief Sinn Fein representative in Paris, as to the genuineness of the interview which the Paris paper Oeuvre claims to have had with de Valera. O'Ceallaigh declared the interview genuine, that he saw de Valera in France three days ago, but was not authorized to reveal his present whereabouts. He could not tell whether he was still in France.

The correspondent learns on very good authority and from another source that de Valera has now left France.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—It was reported today in Irish circles here that Eamon de Valera would go from France to America. It was said he had accomplished his task in Ireland, which was to discuss policies with the leaders of that country, especially with a view to peace proposals now before the Irish people. It is not considered likely he will see Mr. Lloyd George in Paris, although this is not impossible.

REV. J. A. IRWIN RELEASED.

Presbyterian Minister Charged With Having a Revolver.

BELFAST, Jan. 27.—The Rev. J. A. Irwin, the Presbyterian minister who spoke in the United States with Eamon de Valera during the latter's recent stay in that country, and who was arrested on Monday and sent to the Ballykinlar internment camp, was released on bail today.

The charge against the Rev. Mr. Irwin was the possession of a revolver, a shotgun and seditious literature. He is the first Presbyterian minister to be arrested on a political charge since the 1798 rebellion.

U. S. CUTTERS TO LIMIT AID.

Will Put to Sea Only to Save Life, Coast Guard Officers Say.

Lack of funds has forced such economy in the United States Coast Guard Service that hereafter cutters will not be sent to sea to succor ships in distress unless there is grave danger of loss of life. This became known yesterday when it was asked at the coast guard headquarters in the Barge Office why cutters had not responded to S O S calls reported to have been sent out by the Lloyd Belge liner Cannonier and the freighter Polar Bear, both reported in trouble off the coast.

It was said at coast guard headquarters that an order from Washington making economy imperative was interpreted as meaning that cutters were not to be sent out unless it appeared that possible loss of life was involved.

PARIS HEAD IN STONE IS SOLD FOR $750

A. A. Kuhn Buys Marble Depiction of Trojan Youth at Anderson Galleries.

ANCIENT POTTERY BIDS HIGH

But Italian Reliquary Containing Bones of a Martyred Saint Brings Only $15.

A marble head of Paris of the Roman imperial period brought $750, the highest price, last night at a sale in the Anderson Galleries, Park Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street, of sculptures and ceramics and textiles of the Near East, Italy and Spain. The head was bought by A. K. Kuhn. This was the third of a series of six sales in the Anderson Galleries which began on Wednesday afternoon and will be continued this afternoon and evening and Saturday afternoon. The total sales last night amounted to $20,572.50, bringing the total of the three sales up to $37,373.50.

A Persian pottery bowl of the fourteenth century was bought by Miss H. Jounehan for $725, and a thirteenth-century pottery bowl with polychrome decoration, from Rhages, Persia, was bought by E. Collins, an agent, for $710.

Sixteen specimens of Anatolian pottery excited lively bidding. A Rhodes-ware bowl, on a high standard, of the sixteenth century was obtained by E. Collins, agent, for $505. Forty specimens or Rhages pottery also proved of interest. Mr. Collins also paid $510 for a Rhages ewer.

Dr. B. A. Baer bought five of the most expensive articles sold, among which were a Rhodos pottery pitcher for $500, a cinerary urn of the Roman imperial period for $425, and a large Anatolian pottery plate for $440.

The head of Paris, which brought the highest price, is from the Lord Hope collection. It was bought by the Hope family from James Millingen about 1824 and was mentioned by him in his "Ancient Unedited Monuments." It depicts the Trojan youth with loosely curling hair and a Phrygian bonnet.

W. R. Hearst acquired a portrait of a Persian dancer made of embroidery for $100. A large bronze Romanesque German door knocker was bought by E. Collins, agent, for $425, while a seventeenth century Italian reliquary, containing a series of eight relics of bones, among others of St. Abundantius, martyr, in a setting of gold and silver filigree embroidery and pearls sold for only $15.

"JEWELS OF THE MADONNA."

Mme. Raisa as the Heroine in Chicago Opera Co.'s Production.

The Chicago Opera Association's fourth evening at the Manhattan last night brought a return of another opera familiar in former visits here, the once shocking "Jewels of the Madonna," first sung in New York by the touring Philadelphia-Chicago company at the Metropolitan on March 5, 1912, and repeated both there and in later seasons at the Lexington, as well as by the Aborns at the Century.

Wolf-Ferrari's realistic work, so singularly set apart from his dainty "Donne Curiose," "Amore Medico" and "Secret of Susanne," is still a representative of the "young Italy" of turgid melodrama, relieved, however, by some rattling good Neapolitan serenades. These and their echoes in the entr'acte pieces last night, as always before, were heartily applauded.

Mme. Raisa as the ill-fated Maliella, for whom sacred jewels were stolen; Messrs. Lamont, well cast as the adopted brother, her mad suitor, and Rimini as the bully of the Naples Camorra, sang again the leading triangle of roles, originally done here by Carolina White, Bassi and Sammarco. Louise Berat, now of the Metropolitan, had been the Mother in that first cast, as Maria Claessens was in this. Campanini was then the conductor, in whose place last night there appeared Pietro Cimini, a competent newcomer at the bâton. Marjory Maxwell, Elsa Diemer and Frances Paperte were among the Camorrist women.

Pavley and Miss Nemeroff, Oukrainsky and Miss Ledowa, stirred the audience in the wild Camorra revel of Act III, the one pair in an Apache dance of sufficient danger and boldness to have been barred in Chicago, the others in an interpolated tarentelle. The house, heaviest in the galleries for this opera of the hovels, cheered the dancers with the shouting stage crowd. At each curtain, too, Mme. Raisa and her companions were repeatedly recalled.

HARLEM OPERA HOUSE SOLD

Paul M. Herzog Buys 125th Street Property Held at $750,000.

The Harlem Opera House at 216 to 226 West 125th Street, which was built by Oscar Hammerstein and was one of his first theatrical ventures in New York, was sold yesterday by the Lichtenstein estate to Paul M. Herzog, a lawyer and real estate operator.

It was held at $750,000, and the price paid is believed to have been somewhere near that figure. The property is between Seventh and Eighth Avenues on the north side of 125th Street and runs through to 126th Street.

Juan Reyes, Pianist, Makes Debut.

Juan Reyes, a pianist from Chile, and of a people called "the Yankees of South America," gave an unconventional début recital in Aeolian Hall yesterday afternoon in circumstances of difficulty, for he was not only unacclimated here, but actually convalescent from pneumonia, and appeared against a physician's orders. Mr. Reyes in all modesty made a capital impression; he is a musician of Spanish type, of ardent temperament, modified by training abroad. A pupil of Emil Sauer, two of whose "Etudes" he played, he proved a well-grounded, serious artist. His opening Beethoven rondo in G was classic in simplicity, while his most sensitive playing was in Schumann's "Kreisleriana." He gave also pieces by Liszt, Chopin and Raff.

Grace Kerns, Soprano, in Recital.

Grace Kerns, soprano soloist of St. Bartholomew's, and a volunteer in war time among those who sang to American soldiers in France, appeared in her first recital at Aeolian Hall last evening, before a large and cordial house. She sang, to Richard Hageman's accompaniment, lyrics of Schubert and Schumann, an American group by Horsman, Russell, Hageman, Jacobi and Hadly; airs in French by Debussy, Mourdrain and Mme. Poldowski, and half a dozen or more quaint melodies of Ireland, arranged by Hughes. Miss Kerns, already an accomplished artist, made a graceful start in the professional recital field. She received many flowers.

Polacco Coming to Chicago Opera.

Giorgio Polacco, formerly conductor for five seasons at the Metropolitan, will arrive tomorrow from France aboard the Aquitania, coming here to join the Chicago Opera Association's season at the Manhattan Opera House. Mr. Polacco will make his first appearance with the Western stars next Wednesday evening, when he will direct the performance of "Manon." He also will conduct "Thais" on Thursday. It was in "Manon" that Polacco made his New York début on Nov. 11, 1912, three years later succeeding Toscanini as principal conductor of Italian, French and Russian works at the Metropolitan.

THE PLAY

By Alexander Woollcott

The Return of Ruth Draper.

After her shining success in London, Ruth Draper has come back to New York and yesterday afternoon she began at the Princess Theatre the first of a series of recitals. The program contains some monologues that have been favorites here in other years and two new ones that will be. And this program, marked by the same charm and humor and the same astonishing variety, seems to be measurably richer in human sympathy and human appeal.

To its first performance yesterday there came whirring to the Princess more expectant automobiles than there are seats in that little theatre. This detail in the matter of what the doormen proudly describe as "carriage trade" is duly reported here because it is important; reported, mind you, not as a circumstance on which Miss Draper should be congratulated. It is reported rather as a circumstance on which she should be commiserated. For her own satisfaction and her own profit, as well as for the good that she can do, she should have a far wider audience than such fastidious patronage implies. The Princess is all very well, but Carnegie Hall is not a bit too large for the New York folk who would hugely enjoy the art of Ruth Draper.

One is tempted to say the incomparable art of Ruth Draper, and yet the phrase is singularly inept when, in her work, she is so immediately and inevitably comparable to Beatrice Herford, whose recitals are at once so like and so different from hers. Miss Herford, by the way, was in yesterday's audience. Miss Draper dodges the word recital, possibly as a chilling and dismaying word, and uses in her announcements and programs merely the description "Ruth Draper in Original Character Sketches." She might better bill the program more boldly by letting the posters and the folders proclaim: "Ruth Draper and the Rest of Humanity at the Princess Theatre." It would not be any more wildly exaggerated than most of the claims put forth in the practice of theatrical ballyhoo.

Certainly her stage is peopled multitudinously. As she stands there alone and talks a French dressmaker prances and gesticulates around two rich and susceptible American tourists. Three generations of Russian Jews come forlornly into court. A distracted New York débutante conducts her campaigns by telephone. An old Irish woman rocks placidly in her County Kerry farmhouse and tells of her dream the night her boy was killed. An English hostess struggles with the difficulties of exhibiting her garden at a time when all the flowers have either just stopped blooming or not yet bloomed. And a French mother stands watching a homebound regiment for news of her man.

But best of all is this new sketch of hers—the longest and most ambitious of those she gave yesterday—which is called "In a Railway Station on the Western Plains." It is just the talk of Nancy, the woman presiding at the lunch counter in the station on the snowy night that the Big Four runs off the tracks at the curve beyond Medford. In the telling of it Miss Draper spends a matter of twenty minutes, or something like that, but it would take columns of such type as this to picture that snowbound station, to report the chatter of the neighbors and the brakemen as they drift in to the glowing little lunch counter for a sinker and a cup of coffee and for a word of banter and friendliness from warm-hearted Nancy, whose quality you begin to savor even before word of the wreck comes over the telephone and the procession of the wounded is carried in for her ministration. This little sketch, as imagined and as expressed by Miss Draper, has in it the quality that is in such a play as "The First Year" and such a performance as Frank Bacon's, the quality that warms and kindles the stories of Edna Ferber. It is the quality we all try to describe, and, failing, escape by calling it humanity.

Two more programs of hers are announced. One will be given at the Princess next Tuesday afternoon. A third will be given at the Greenwich Village Theatre on the evening of the Sunday following.

SETTLING SHUBERT CASES.

Actors' Equity Forecasts an Amicable Adjustment of Differences.

An amicable adjustment of differences between Lee and J. J. Shubert and the Actors' Equity Association was forecast yesterday by officials of the latter organisation. Conferences between representatives of the two have been held almost daily for the last week and it was said at the Equity office that an agreement was rapidly being reached.

The Shuberts, it was said, had shown every willingness to adjust the cases which had caused the Equity Association to ask their expulsion from the Producing Managers' Association. A contract is to be drawn up between the Equity and the Shuberts, and will probably go into effect next week.

Benefit Concert in Astor Home.

A large assembly of society attended the concert given yesterday afternoon in the picture gallery at the home of Mrs. Vincent Astor, 840 Fifth Avenue, for the benefit of the French Restoration Fund. Professor John Erskine of Columbia University made a short address on the work of the organization, which is to rebuild schools in France through the co-operation of American children. He was followed by Mme. Gilda Varesi, who gave two readings from Browning's "The Light Woman" and "Galuppi." E. Robert Schmitz, the French pianist, rendered several compositions, and Gustave Tinlot, Hene Pollain and Lucian A. Schmit played.

'Aida' and 'Madama Butterfly' Sung

The Metropolitan was twice filled yesterday by great audiences that greeted a special matinee of "Aida," sung for the fifth time this season, and a subscription evening of "Madama Butterfly," its only rival among the most popular operas in the repertory. Familiar casts were engaged in both, Verdi's ensembles being headed by Mmes. Muzio and Matzenauer, Messrs. Kingston, Danise, Rothier and Gustafson, while the protagonists in Puccini's Japanese tragedy were Miss Farrar, Messrs. Crimi and Scotti. Mr. Moranzoni conducted both performances.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Arnold Daly last night reappeared in the leading role of "The Tavern" and will continue in it for several days. John Meehan, who has been playing it recently, was called out of town with the second company of "The Tavern," but will return to the New York company next week.

The opening of "Midnight Rounders of 1921," on the Century Promenade, has been postponed until Saturday night of next week.

Olive Tell has been engaged for "Cognac," which will be brought to town in a few weeks.

Al Jolson, after a month's rest, will reopen in "Sinbad" in Providence next Monday night.

"The Spring," a full-length play by George Cram Cook, will be presented by the Provincetown Players next Monday night as their third program of the season.

"Di Noodnikes" ("The Bores") will be given its first performance by the Jewish Art Theatre tomorrow night. Ossip Dymow is the author.

Oscar Shaw has been engaged for the 9 o'clock and midnight shows which Florenz Ziegfeld will present on the New Amsterdam roof on Feb. 8.

John Drinkwater will arrive in New York tomorrow on the Cedric.

Walter Hampden will come to New York in April in Shakespearean repertoire. He will play several roles in which he has not been seen hitherto, including Petruchio and Shylock.

MUSIC NOTES.

The University Glee Club of New York held its fifty-third private concert last evening at the Hotel Astor, under the leadership of Arthur D. Woodruff, and assisted in solo numbers by Frances Peralta of the Metropolitan.

Brooklyn's University Glee Club will sing Schubert's "Omnipotence" with the New York Philharmonic at the third of that orchestra's popular concerts tomorrow evening at the Brooklyn Commercial High School.

Pasquale Amato, the Metropolitan baritone, has received word from Italian Government representatives in this country, telling that he has been made a Cavalier of the Crown of Italy.

Cantor David Joseph Putterman will give a recital of tenor songs on Sunday evening at the Bronx Jewish Centre, 171st Street and Fulton Avenue, the Bronx.

MUSIC

By Richard Aldrich

The New York Symphony Society.

The historical cycle of the New York Symphony Society reached Brahms in the concert given yesterday afternoon (and to be repeated this evening) in Carnegie Hall. Mr. Damrosch suitably devoted the whole program to his music. It included the second symphony, the "Academic Festival" overture and the violin concerto, played by Mr. Fritz Kreisler.

There was nothing here entirely new or unfamiliar; in fact, the symphony and concerto have been played this season more than once, on non-cyclical occasions. But the performance of the concerto by Mr. Kreisler is always an event of exceptional importance and was so considered by the audience yesterday. Few artists have ever played it here, as he has been doing for now so many years, with more breadth and repose, more fire and eloquence, more deep-seated beauty of conception and performance. His playing roused much enthusiasm yesterday.

The symphony was given with much delicacy. Mr. Damrosch gave full utterance to the lyric note of the composition; there were fine tone and shading, elastic and freely modified tempo. Much pleasure was given by the "Academic Festival" overture a most ingenious and most musical treatment of students' songs.

The Philharmonic Society.

At the concert of the New York Philharmonic Society, which was heard by an audience that completely filled the hall, the soloist was Mr. Sergei Rachmaninoff, who played his own first concerto. He himself had played it at a concert of the Philharmonic Society just eleven years ago on his first visit to New York.

It has not been heard here since so frequently as his second concerto. Yet it is a composition abounding in musical beauties, poetical in its conception, distinguished in its workmanship. It is difficult and elaborate, yet its difficulties are not for the purpose of creating an external brilliancy, but are an expression of the musical thought. The themes are unusually long and complex, and for this reason not easy to follow.

Mr. Rachmaninoff played the concerto in his extremely finished and unobtrusive style, yet a style that is powerful and brilliant, making no account of difficulties. Mr. Rachmaninoff's performance was masterly and received long continued and most enthusiastic plaudits of the audience, and he was many times recalled.

There was also demonstrative appreciation for Mr. Stransky's performance of Beethoven's fifth symphony, which preceded the concerto. The concert was opened with Brahms's "Tragic" overture and was closed with the overture to "Die Meistersinger."

71 DEGAS PAINTINGS SOLD FOR $226,800

Great French Artist's "Portrait in White" Brings Highest Price of Auction, $17,000.

LIVELY BIDDING AT PLAZA

"La Promenade des Chevaux" Fetches $11,800; "Dancers in Green Room," $10,500.

Never has there been in this country a one-man painting sale which equaled that of the paintings and pastels by the big French painter, the late Hilaire Germain Edgar Degas, the private collection of Jacques Seligman, which was sold at the Hotel Plaza last evening under the auspices of the American Art Association.

Previous to last night's sale only eighteen works by Degas had ever been put up at auction in this country, Thomas E. Kirby told the big audience present. Of those, the greater number were sketches, and the larger paintings brought around $8,000. Seventeen thousand dollars was the top price last evening. All the prices were relatively high, and the 71 numbers sold for $226,800. There was a large attendance. Every seat in the big ballroom of the Plaza was occupied, and many people stood through the first half of the sale.

It is probable that the greater number of the Degas will return to France, for Bernheim of Paris, Vollard and Durand-Ruel were the names which figured most largely as buyers, though the Brooklyn Museum bought two of the pictures which will become permanently American. The bidding was brisk throughout the sale, and at the sale of one of the higher-priced pictures three bidders were calling $10,000 for the same picture. Large or small, oils or pastels, portraits or Degas's famous ballet girl studies, the prices were good.

A charming "Portrait in White," No. 51, the seated figure of a woman, with a meditative face, upon a white covered couch, wearing a soft flowing nebulous gown, brought the top price of the evening, $17,000, going to Knoedler & Co. It started at $10,000 and ran up to $15,000 by thousands. "La Promenade des Chevaux," No. 41, six thoroughbred running horses with their jockeys, in a grass-grown field, brought the second highest price of the evening, $11,800, going to Miss Rose Lorenz, agent, and that will remain in this country, as well as probably "Dancers in the Greenroom," No. 40, which went to Henry Reinhardt for $10,500.

"Portrait of a Man," a seated figure in an atelier, a strong portrait which was received with enthusiasm when it was shown, was one of the Brooklyn Museum pictures, No. 35, in the catalog and selling for $2,750.

"Drying Her Hair After the Bath," No. 54, a three-quarter nude figure, a pastel, was the second purchase of the museum, selling for $2,250. A wonderful picture, a pastel, which experts have claimed to be the masterpiece of this collection, "Femme au Tub," No. 32, a nude figure in a shallow tub of cerulian blue, with wonderful light effects upon the figure, brought $4,500 and was one of the Durand Ruel purchases.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The Southern storm was central Thursday night off the North Carolina Coast and moving northeastward. It has been attended by strong winds and gales on the Atlantic Coast at and south of the Virginia Capes and by rain in Florida and rain and snow in the Carolinas and Southern Virginia. Rains continue in the Pacific States under the influence of low barometer, which is general west of the Rocky Mountains.

There has been a general rise in temperature since Wednesday over nearly all sections east of the Mississippi River and over the plains States and the Southern Rocky Mountain region. There was, however, a decided fall in temperature in Florida.

The outlook is for generally fair weather Friday and Saturday in the States east of the Mississippi River; also it will become unsettled, probably with snow, Saturday in the upper lake region.

No important temperature changes are indicated for the States east of the Mississippi River, although a tendency will be toward somewhat higher readings. Storm warnings remain displayed on the Atlantic Coast at and south of the Virginia Capes.

GRASS FIRE ILLUMES SOUND.

Montauk Fights Blaze Which Approaches Navy Radio Station.

The glare of flames reflected in the sky at the eastern end of Long Island led dwellers on the Connecticut shore of the Sound last night to believe a big fire was burning in the vicinity of Fort Pond Bay. The flames were in two patches of dried grass, each about a mile square, one just outside of Montauk and the other near Napeague Harbor.

No town was endangered, but some thirty residents of Montauk, fearing a shift in the wind might drive the flames toward the village, fought the fire with shovels. The blaze came within 100 yards of the navy radio station at Montauk, but was cut off there by a concrete road. The naval radio compass station in the village was not endangered.

Proved Integrity

Present-day investors should not fail to investigate the opportunities offered by time seasoned bonds which have paid their interest promptly and uninterruptedly for a long period of years, through good times and bad, and which are now selling far and away below their original offering prices. To include such bonds among those to be purchased is to strengthen and diversify one's investments as a whole. Our circular "January Investments" mentions bonds of this character.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Time Money Higher, Stocks Again Irregular — Another Rapid Advance in Sterling.

The interest of the financial community again converged yesterday on sterling exchange; which, after opening a full cent higher in response to an early advance in London, moved up 3 cents further before the day was over. At the top figure of $3.88¾, sterling had almost reached the rate which prevailed when last year's prolonged reaction began, in the early days of July, and it stood 33 cents above the rate of exactly a year ago. Other European exchange markets moved more irregularly; the French and Scandinavian rates declining while the Dutch, Spanish and German rates advanced again.

Not the least striking of the day's movements in foreign exchange was the further rise in the rate on Montreal. At a fraction over 90 cents, as compared with 89⅛ the day before, this rate showed the discount on the Canadian dollar to have narrowed from 16⅛ per cent. some seven weeks ago to less than 10 per cent. No new influences appeared to be at work on the exchange market; it was the general comment of Wall Street exchange dealers that the buying originated even more extensively than yesterday in Europe itself.

The stock market moved precisely as it has moved for more than a week; prices fluctuating irregularly, with a few sharp advances and a few noteworthy declines, but generally with the day's changes unimportant. In the money market, rates for time loans on mixed collateral were advanced again; they are now not far below the December closing.

The Bank of England's rate was not reduced at the weekly meeting of its Directors yesterday. No one had seriously expected that it would be lowered at this time, but the open market in London hardened after the announcement, day-to-day money rates being quoted ⅛ of 1 per cent. over Wednesday and discount rates for short periods ¼ to ⅛ per cent. higher. This leaves Lombard Street discounts at 6½ to 6⅝ per cent. as against the low rate of 5⅞ to which they fell in the first day or two of January, and nearly up to the end-of-December rate. The higher London money market may have reflected Wall Street tendencies; it did not result from a weaker Bank of England position. The Bank's weekly statement of yesterday showed further rise in the ratio of banking reserve to deposit liabilities; it is now nearly 14¼ per cent, as against 13⅝ a week ago and 7 1-3 at the end of December.

But in the corresponding period a year ago the ratio rose from 9¼ per cent. to 19⅝. This is one reason why the 7 per cent. bank rate is retained. The French Bank's weekly statement of yesterday reported a further reduction of 239,800,000 francs in outstanding banknote currency, making total reduction of 676,000,000 from the high total of the beginning of the month. This makes a distinctly favorable comparison with the similar period in last January, when the maximum reduction during the month was less than 100,000,000 francs. Yet even so, the outstanding circulation is still 330,000,000 francs above that of a year ago.

Yesterday's statement from Washington, of the country's agricultural exports, in December, was interesting in several ways. For one thing, it showed that, although our wheat exports last month were 2,100,000 bushels less in quantity than in November and $6,400,000 less in value, their quantity was 16,800,000 bushels greater and their value $38,500,000 greater than in December of 1919. Also it showed that, although December's cotton exports decreased in quantity only 10 per cent. from 1919, in value the shrinkage was 48 per cent. An equally interesting side-light is obtained by deducting agricultural exports from total exports, by which it appears that in non-agricultural commodities our export as compared with 1919 increased $55,000,000 in December and $567,000,000 for the whole year 1920.

MONEY.

THURSDAY, Jan. 27, 1921.

PENNSYLVANIA RAIL BONDS GO ON SALE

$60,000,000 Fifteen-Year Issue to Net Investors Return of 6.58 Per Cent.

Kuhn, Loeb & Co. announced yesterday that they had purchased and would offer for subscription today $60,000,000 fifteen year 6½ per cent. gold bonds of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. The offering price is to be 98¼, and accrued interest, at which figure the yield will be 6.58 per cent.

Associated with Kuhn, Loeb & Co. is a syndicate composed of the National City Company, the Guaranty Company, Dillon, Read & Co., Harris, Forbes & Co., Kidder, Peabody & Co., Lee, Higginson & Co., Blair & Co., and Cassatt & Co., of New York, the Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh, and the Continental and Commercial Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago.

The bonds are secured obligations by $60,000,000 of general mortgage 6 per cent. gold bonds of the Pennsylvania Railroad and $6,000,000 general mortgage 6 per cent. gold bonds of the Philadelphia, Baltimore & Washington Railroad Company.

This is the first big offering of railroad bonds in the present market. The proceeds of the issue, it was said yesterday, would be used to provide funds for taking care of Pennsylvania Company maturities during the present year.

The offering is similar in many respects to that which the same bankers brought out last Spring, just after the roads had passed back into private control. The previous issue was of $50,000,000, of ten-year maturity and the rate was 7 per cent. Those bonds also were secured by collateral of the same description and in the same ratio as the present bonds.

The syndicate letter announcing the offering was sent out last night and the subscription books will be opened this morning. Bond men yesterday were of the opinion that the bonds would be oversubscribed within a very brief time, and it was said that orders had been taken by dealers for amounts which aggregate more than the total.

It is expected that this flotation will bring out others, and the prediction was made yesterday that several roads, notably the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, would announce financial programs.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

Sterling Advances 4 Cents Further —Rates on Other Countries Irregular, Canadian Up.

Sterling again led the movement of rates in yesterday's foreign exchange market, advancing 4 cents over Wednesday's final rate and closing at a reaction of only ¼ cent. The market appeared to be moved almost entirely from the other side; in New York the trading was less active than that of the day before. French exchange, on the other hand, declined from 7.20 cents per franc to 7.12, where it closed, and Belgian from 7.57 to 7.54.

Exchange on other markets was equally variable in the day's movement. The rate on Madrid advanced ¼ cent; Berlin and Rome were slightly higher; the Dutch rate advanced ⅜ cent per florin, and there were small fractional gains in exchange on Hungary, Jugoslavia and Rumania. But the Danish rate fell from 20 cents to 19.80 and the Norwegian from 19.10 to 18.80, and Austria, Greece, Poland and Czechoslovakia closed quotably lower.

Argentine and Brazilian exchange advanced ½ cent each. The Montreal rate rose sharply to 90.1 cents per Canadian dollar and at one time sold slightly above that figure; comparing with 89⅛ cents on Wednesday, 88.6 on Tuesday and 87.8 a week ago.

Pennsylvania Bonds Decline.

Announcement of a new offering of Pennsylvania Railroad bonds, to bear 6½ per cent., was looked upon as the direct reason for some of the older Pennsylvania issues showing a bit of weakness yesterday. The easing off was most noticeable in the general 5s and the general 4½s. In the case of the former, from the high of 88¼ the bonds sold down to 86 and recovered to 86⅞. The 4½s dipped from a high of 81¼ to 79 and closed a half point above that price. The ten-year 7 per cent. bonds put out last year also sold down, but recovered to within a half point of the high for the day.

Premium on Belgian Bonds.

The new issue of Belgian bonds, which was put out a few days ago, sold up to 100⅝ yesterday on a "when issued" basis. This is the highest premium that has ruled since trading began early this week. From this high point the bonds sold down to par yesterday and closed at ½ premium.

Mexican Petroleum Gains.

A strange situation prevails as to Mexican Petroleum. When the stock is declining all sorts of rumors are heard bearing adversely on the shares, the one most prevalent being that insiders are unloading stock. When the price moves up rumors flood the market of a heavy punishment being inflicted on the bears. And, while the play of prices is going on the trading is each day turning over much more stock than actually exists in the floating supply. There is no great amount of Mexican Petroleum outstanding, the supply having been cut down largely by the conversion of Mex Pete shares into Pan American Petroleum stock on the basis of two of the latter for one of the former. The only interpretation that could be put upon rumors that insiders were unloading would mean that Pan American was selling Mexican Petroleum, which is looked upon as almost out of the realm of possibility.

American Linseed.

There has been much talk during the last four months about a pending deal whereby Lever Bros. were going to take over American Linseed. The recovery in American Linseed stock recently convinced many that the deal is nearing completion. It was reported yesterday in one quarter that an extra dividend of $4 a share might be declared on American Linseed as a part of carrying out the plan for the taking over of the company by Lever Bros.

***

Money Goes Higher.

Time money made a further gain yesterday, being quoted 7@7½ per cent. for mixed collateral and 7½ per cent. asked for all industrial money. This represents a gain of about one-half of 1 per cent. on the day and a rise of a full 1 per cent. from the low levels of the middle of last week. Call money was unchanged at 7 per cent. Just what is making the money market tighter at this time is not clear. The statistical displays all point to cheaper money and most people expect that the real trend will be downward. Business, of course, is so light that quoted rates have little significance, but, even making allowances for this, the performance is puzzling.

Sterling's Big Gain.

At the high yesterday sterling was up a full 4 cents from the high of the preceding day, and at the close the bid and asked prices showed even greater gains. Bankers here were not unanimous in explaining the rise except that they agreed the strength was "coming over the cables." There is a paucity of bills here and the demand is large, especially in a relative sense, but the persistence with which the sterling rate is climbing is not easily explained. In the last week the rate has advanced about 11 cents, since the first of the year about 35 cents, and since the low of Dec. 7 the net gain has been more than 46 cents.

No Soldiers' Bonus Bonds.

Advices received by bond men are to the effect that there will be no soldiers' bonus bonds floated by the State for the time being, notwithstanding that the measure was approved at the last general election. The trouble seems to be that the State Treasurer has no power to put out the bonds and will have to wait until enabling legislation is passed. At the same time, the New Jersey authorities also are encountering some difficulty in getting their bonds, which the voters approved in the last election, out. The New York State soldiers' bonus issue called for $45,000,000 and the New Jersey amount was $17,000,000, of which $12,000,000 was for soldiers' bonus and $5,000,000 for bridges and tunnels. The Jersey proposition was to have been out by Feb. 15, but it was said yesterday that it had been deferred for from thirty to sixty days.

The Consolidation Report.

The special report covering consolidations of American railroads into a number of rate-making groups which has been prepared after months of exhaustive study by Professor William Z. Ripley of Harvard will be filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission on Monday, according to rumors yesterday. The report was made at the request of the commission and Professor Ripley consulted railroad men from all parts of the country. It is generally expected that the report will offer specific recommendations for mergers which will combine the railroads into a number of large systems. That it will be more or less preliminary is also believed, as the working out of such a plan is a task that will take a long time. How the commission will act upon the report is a matter of conjecture, although it is said that certain of the commissioners have indicated that mergers should be set to one side until more pressing railroad problems are disposed of.

Traction Shares Neglected.

That uncertainty again rules in regard to the future of local traction issues was plainly demonstrated by the manner in which the traction shares were neglected in yesterday's market. This inactivity and lack of interest was further proof that a fair part of the interest displayed in the shares immediately following the publication of the Governor's traction message was professional. Apparently the enthusiasm and approval which immediately followed the message has evaporated, while a more careful survey of the situation from all angles has resulted in some expressions of pessimism regarding the final outcome.

The Wage Reduction Request.

There was a conflict of opinion yesterday as to how soon the heads of the railroads would make their application to the United States Railroad Labor Board for wage reductions. In some quarters it was the opinion that it would be made as soon as the board hands down its decision regarding the continuation or abolishing of national agreements. In others it was the belief that the procedure would be much more deliberate, as the conservative element is known to be against an immediate antagonizing of railroad labor and does not feel that this is the time to have a showdown on wage reductions.

Two Roads Seek Equipment Loans.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The Illinois Central Railroad applied today to the Interstate Commerce Commission for permission to issue $3,564,000 of equipment trust certificates to be sold at not less than $96 per $100. The Western Maryland Railway Company applied for permission to issue $3,000,000 of equipment gold notes, of which $1,500,000 will bear interest at the rate of 7 per cent. and the balance at the rate of 6 per cent.

Today's Opportunities

LIQUIDATION of commodities, the consequent fixing of more permanent values and easier money rates, are some of the factors which indicate that bonds will not continue to sell at prices that permit the very large returns at present obtainable.

Some Facts Regarding Liberty Bonds

United States is by far the richest nation in the world; in comparison with other countries our national debt is ridiculously small. More nearly normal money rates and industrial conditions will mean that obligations of the United States will return to a basis where the yield will approach that of pre-war days. In the meantime Liberty Bonds are selling to yield more than certain standard issues of railroad and municipal obligations.

If some of the tax features of Liberty Bonds are not clearly understood we invite requests for information.

BETHLEHEM STEEL NETS $37,351,553

Preliminary Report for 1920 Shows $14,458,835 Available for Dividends.

MANY ORDERS ARE ON HAND

Three Big Shipyards to Continue Full Operations All Year—Grace Thinks Ebb Reached.

The preliminary report of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation for the last year shows gross sales amounting to $274,431,236. The gross sales in the preceding year were $281,641,907. Total net earnings of $37,351,553 in 1920 almost coincide with the $37,441,218 reported in 1919. After all charges and allowances to cover Federal taxes the net income available for dividends was $14,458,835, or the equivalent, after preferred dividends, of $18.35 a share on the A and B common stock. This net income represents a profit of 5.27 per cent. on the total volume of business. In the previous report the earnings applicable to dividends amounted to $15,356,860, or $19.80 a share after allowing for the preferred disbursement.

The following table shows the chief items of income account for the last two years:

Gross sales	$274,431,236	$281,641,907
Expenses, taxes, &c.	238,468,865	246,494,150
Net mfg. profit	35,962,371	35,147,749
Other income	1,389,182	2,293,469
Total net earnings	37,351,553	37,641,218
Interest and discount	8,951,204	9,518,206
Balance	28,400,350	27,923,013
Depreciation and depletion	13,941,515	12,566,132
Net income	14,458,835	15,356,860

The following statement was issued in connection with the report:

"The allowance of $13,941,000 for depreciation and depletion exceeded last year's allowance by $1,375,000. This increase was caused by the increased value of plants in operation throughout the year and in addition all inventories were adjusted in value to either the cost of production or purchase price, using the lowest figure in each case.

$145,287,000 Orders on Hand.

"Orders on hand Dec. 21, 1920, amounted to $145,287,000 as compared with $231,422,000 Dec. 31, 1919. New business booked during the year amounted to $168,296,000.

"The steel plants of the corporation producing commercial tonnage are operating at about 25 per cent. capacity while a considerably better rate of operation exists in departments where more highly finished commodities are produced, and in the shipyards. The three large shipyards of the corporation have sufficient work on hand to insure reasonably full operations throughout the year.

"The 20,000-ton drydock at the Fore River plant is completed and it is the purpose of the management to set aside sufficient capacity at this plant to meet the New England ship repair needs. With this installation completed the corporation has three large ship repair plants, all with drydock facilities, located respectively at the ports of Boston, Baltimore and San Francisco.

"There was spent during the year $22,900,000 for extensions and additions to the property, the expenditures for new construction during 1921, eliminating the $20,000,000 to be spent on the five 20,000-ton ore ships to transport Chilean iron ore, and which has already been provided for by the sale of marine equipment trust certificates, should be relatively small as compared with the last few years, all the more important present construction programs having been completed. No new financing is required nor is there any in mind at this time."

Believes Low Point Reached.

Eugene G. Grace, President of the corporation, said he believed the low point in the iron and steel industry had been reached and that from now on production would increase, depending upon the rapidity with which all interests recognized the necessity of a return to more nearly normal conditions. Liquidation in many cases has not been completed, but is surely taking place.

"All interests, manufacturers, merchants, employers and employes," said Mr. Grace, "should do their part; there can be no valid excuse for exceptions. When this has been done we can expect business to revive and go forward on a good, sound basis."

The Directors of the corporation declared the regular dividend on both classes of preferred stock for the entire year, 1921, payable in four quarterly instalments, April 1, to stock of record March 15, July 1, to stock of record June 15; Oct. 1, to holders of record Sept. 15, and Jan. 2, 1922, to holders of record Dec. 15. The regular quarterly dividends of 1¼ per cent. on both classes of common stock also were declared, payable April 1, to stock of record March 15.

HAS NO EQUIPMENT DISPUTE

Pere Marquette R. R. President Denies Break With Unions.

Frank H. Aldred, President of the Père Marquette Railway Company, denies that his road is involved in the controversy between the unions and other roads on the question of farming out equipment repairs. In a statement Mr. Aldred says:

"This company has handled the entire amount of repairs to its motive power in its own local shops, and up to the beginning of the present depression the force employed in its local shops was the largest in the history of the road. During the last several years a very large proportion of the road's freight cars were away from home lines for long stretches at a time. In the latter part of 1920 these cars commenced coming home in large numbers, and, as they had not been well maintained during the period of Federal control, this company was confronted with a very unusual volume of car repairs.

"This company, accordingly, made a contract with the International Car Company for repairs to 500 cars, which is a comparatively small number, in order that our equipment might be kept in condition to perform the maximum service, but the prices paid in this contract are not greater than the costs of similar work in our own shops. The present reduction of forces in the locomotive and car shops of this company is due entirely to the existing financial depression, and we hope it is only temporary."

The Père Marquette, according to authoritative information, has organized a Board of Adjustment for the settlement of disputes with its employes, in compliance with the Transportation act, and it will have jurisdiction in all disputes involving grievances, rules and working conditions. Disputes over wages must go to the United States Railroad Labor Board.

DIRECTORS QUIT UNDER LAW

J. P. Morgan and Two Others Out of Northern Pacific Board.

Three more resignations were announced yesterday from the directorate of a railroad company and four new members of boards were announced in conformation with the Clayton act against interlocking railroad directorates.

At the meeting of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, J. P. Morgan, Lewis Cass Ledyard and Payne Whitney resigned as members of the Board of Directors, and Frank L. Polk, former Acting Secretary of State; E. M. Willis and A. H. Gillard were elected to succeed them.

Samuel McRoberts was elected a member of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Board of Directors to succeed John D. Ryan, who resigned some days ago because of the Clayton act.

Similar resignations are expected from time to time among the railroad companies in compliance with the law, in spite of the fact that an amendment to some of its sections is being prepared. The changes now would have been much more numerous if there had not been a great many changes when the law was originally passed.

American Brass Earnings Increase.

The report of the American Brass Company for last year shows net profits of $3,354,564. This was equal to $22.36 a share earned on the $15,000,000 stock, compared with $2,856,140, or $19.04 a share earned on the stock in the preceding year. The surplus after dividends was $1,554,564, compared with $1,056,140 in 1919, and the profit and loss surplus as of Dec. 31, 1920, amounted to $24,056,776. In the preceding year it was $22,502,212.

OIL COMPANY THRIVING.

Huasteca Petroleum Official Predicts Doubled Earnings in 1921.

At a meeting of the Directors of the Huasteca Petroleum Company, which is the Mexican operating company of the Mexican Petroleum Company, Herbert G. Wylie, Vice President and General Manager, announced that the year just passed had been the most prosperous in the company's history and that it was expected that earnings this year would double those of 1920.

"Twelve new wells are now in process of drilling and three are nearing completion," said Mr. Wylie. "These will add largely to the production and the developed area. The company's pipe lines now have a capacity of and are moving over 100,000 barrels daily from the oil fields to the harbor of Tampico. The company's production and sales for 1921 will be greater by 50 per cent. than for 1920, and the prices obtained will average 10 per cent. in excess of those of last year. In brief, 1921 promises to be the banner year in the history of the company."

These officers were re-elected: E. L. Doheny, President; Charles E. Harwood, Vice President; Norman Bridge, Vice President and Assistant Secretary; Herbert G. Wylie, Vice President and General Manager; J. M. Danziger, Vice President; Franklin K. Lane, Vice President and Counselor; O. D. Bennett, Secretary and Assistant Treasurer; E. L. Doheny Jr., Treasurer; R. M. Sands, Assistant Secretary, and H. A. Andrews, Assistant Secretary.

Safe for 39 Years—Safe Today —And Safe Tomorrow

EVER since this House was founded in 1882, the Straus Plan has meant unfailing safety, unceasing protection of our clients, and prompt payment of both principal and interest to investors. You can find no better guide to security in investment than such a record—particularly in a time like this.

We have never departed from our conservative policies.

We have not been swept off our feet by the current craze for exorbitant interest rates at the cost of security. Straus Plan Bonds continue to offer the sound interest rate of 6%—6% plus safety, prompt payment, and freedom from care.

If you regard safety as more important than a promise of a high yield —if you believe it is not wise to risk $1,000 in principal to gain an extra 50 or 75 cents a month in interest—then the Straus Plan will make a powerful appeal to you. Write today for our Current Investment Guide. Ask for

B. & O. TRAFFIC DROPS, LEAVING A DEFICIT

December Operating Revenues Gain $5,329,012 Over Last Year —Expenses Jump $5,392,179.

BIGGEST SLUMP IN FREIGHT

Revenues Decrease From $18,982,058 to $16,591,417—Withdrawal of Coal Priority Orders Blamed.

The monthly earnings statement of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company as submitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission for December shows that the company suffered severely through a decline in traffic compared with the preceding month, although a comparison with the corresponding month a year ago shows increases in many items. Even so, December net railway operating revenue declined from $775,647 in the corresponding 1919 month to $712,507. This item in November was $2,612,793, showing that the loss from then was almost $2,000,000.

In addition, the statement shows a deficit in place of net income of $436,880 for the month compared with a deficit in December last year of $140,514. This was traceable chiefly to an increase in the debt on equipment rents and joint facility rents.

The detailed statement shows that railway operating revenues for the month increased $5,329,012 to $21,074,826 compared with December, 1919, but this was more than offset by an increase of $5,392,179 in railway operating expenses. In the preceding month the situation was much better, the statement showing that in November the increase in railway operating revenues over the same month a year before was $7,933,840, while the increase in railway operating expenses was only $6,614,644.

The December statement shows that the big slump last month came in revenues from freight transported, the drop being from $18,982,058 to $16,591,417. This was attributable largely to the withdrawal of coal emergency priority orders by the Interstate Commerce Commission as well as to a slower movement of coal from the mines, due to the open Winter.

It is expected that the December reports of other coal carriers probably will reflect a similar condition.

FOREIGN BANK STATEMENTS.

London Reserve Ratio Advances Again—French Note Circulation Down 239,000,000 Francs.

The statement of the Bank of England shows the following changes for the last week:

A year ago it was 6 per cent., having been advanced to that rate on Nov. 6, 1919. At this date of 1919 and 1918 it was 5 per cent., against 5½ in 1917, 5 in 1916 and 1915, and 4 per cent. in 1914.

Circulation—	37,913,105,370	37,582,499,001	31,963,027,510

The highest point which the French bank's outstanding note circulation has ever reached was the 39,044,392,000 francs of Nov. 3, 1920; the lowest point of 1920 was 36,914,357,000 francs on April 1. The bank's official discount rate remains at the 6 per cent. fixed on April 8, last year.

TWIN CITY TRANSIT INCOME INCREASES

With Six-Cent Fare for Part of Year, Street Railways Netted $999,099.

WAGES 20 PER CENT. HIGHER

Service Improved Under Arbitration Agreement, but Higher Fare Is Desired.

The report of the Twin City Rapid Transit for last year, which was issued yesterday, showed a net income, after charges and taxes, amounting to $999,099. This was equivalent, after preferred dividends, to $3.59 a share earned on the $22,000,000 common stock, compared with $788,352, or $2.63 a share, on the stock in the preceding year. The balance sheet showed a decrease in cash to $171,059 from $1,132,330 in 1919, while there was an increase in materials and supplies from $868,838 to $1,346,415. Reserves were shown in the liability side of the balance sheet to have increased from $9,030,901 to $9,743,894. In his remarks to stockholders President Horace Lowry said in part:

"During the year, in both Minneapolis and St. Paul, the employes made demands for a substantial increase in wages, which demands were coupled with threats of strikes. What promised to be a most serious strike was averted by negotiations between the company, its employes, and a board of arbitration appointed in each of the cities of Minneapolis and St. Paul. The net result of this arbitration was that the employes received an increase in wages of approximately 20 per cent., and the Minneapolis Street Railway Company was granted the right to charge a 6-cent fare effective on and after Aug. 16, and the St. Paul Street Railway Company was granted the right to charge a 6-cent fare effective on and after Dec. 13.

"In connection with this increased fare the cities insisted upon substantial increases in service, which the company has exerted every effort to put into effect, and there has been a very material improvement in the service furnished in both Minneapolis and St. Paul.

"The increases in fare which were granted provide emergency relief only, and do not afford a permanent basis nor the stability of earnings necessary to enable the company to finance any larger construction program."

United Retail Candy Stores

This Company is now operating nineteen retail stores in New York, Newark and Philadelphia. Two additional stores will be opened next week, one in this City, the other in Brooklyn.

In Philadelphia where the Candy Company has made quite as remarkable a hit as in New York, a location for another store, the fourth in that City, has just been signed up.

It stands to reason that this Company would not expand in this vigorous manner if its business prospects did not fully warrant it.

Indeed, we do not hesitate to predict, that just as the United Cigar Stores Company of America has absorbed the cream of the retail tobacco business in all the large cities in this country, so will the UNITED RETAIL CANDY COMPANY become the most popular chain of candy stores in this country.

This Company you must remember is now reaping the full benefit of a substantial reduction in the cost of all raw materials and supplies of every kind that enter into the manufacture and sale of candies.

You need not be an expert in merchandizing to appreciate the fact when you visit one of the United Candy Stores, that in quality, service and prices it is already a top-notcher.

You may recall our advertisements just a few years ago discussing the possibilities of the UNITED CIGAR STORES COMPANY in much the same terms that we are now employing in this candy business, which as you know is managed by the same interests.

We were more than correct in our forecast then—we are confident we are just as right now.

We would appreciate your orders for this stock—we have no margin accounts—if you are willing to go along with us in this remarkable investment opportunity.

CANADA BRACING FOR DROP IN PAPER

Companies Building Up Against It, to Hold the American Market, When It Comes.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Jan. 26.—Developments of a nature to influence prices lately have been very few and far between, and the local market seems to be waiting for some new impulse to create a wider interest in stock. Even the paper stocks appear to be losing their interest and attractiveness and bulls do not see anything to make them move for the time being. On the other hand, traders think they see reasons for taking the short side, largely in the belief that bullish developments are not in sight, and that, on the theory that what will not go up should go down, there ought to be a fairly safe short sale. The experience of the shorts in Riordon has, however, been a deterrent factor, and they do not want a repetition.

Even with the prospect of a downward revision of news print rates in the near future, the position of the industry will remain remarkably strong, and there will be extraordinary earnings and excellent profits for some time to come—so that, on that score, the bears will have to beware. They might try to make some capital out of financing which may have to be undertaken by some companies to recoup themselves for large outlays paid for largely out of current earnings and even borrowings from banks, which are properly chargeable to capital expenditures.

So far as that is concerned, corporations financing may be construed as bullish or bearish, as the general market circumstances warrant. In a liquidating market, such as the Street witnessed last year, a bearish construction would have been placed on financing. On the other hand, when monetary conditions are favorable and the general market attitude is a constructive one, it is conceivable that any future financing in the pulp and paper field may be readily turned into bullish capital.

The extensions which have been going on will eventually add very materially to earnings, and a number of companies are already receiving benefits therefrom. If there is any criticism about such matters, it may be that managements became too ambitious along those lines. But the large profits were tempting and the desire to expand almost irrepressible. It may be some time before the shareholders will get the full benefit of what is going on; but there is little doubt that, when world-wide competition becomes keener and Canadian producers have to face some rate cutting on the part of manufacturers in other countries, the home mills will be in a position, with their up-to-date equipment, raw materials and water powers, to stand anything that comes along and hold the American market, which is their largest and handiest customer.

QUIZ RAILROADS ON REPAIRS

Questionnaires Require Facts on Alleged Effort to Break Labor Unions.

Questionnaires have been sent out by the Interstate Commerce Commission to all railroads asking for information covering repair work contracted for with outside agencies and covering those repaired in home shops. This is the result of the inquiry and investigation which the commission instigated as soon as railroad labor representatives made their allegations that the roads, in an effort to break the unions, were letting out work which should have been done in their own shops.

While the filling out of the questionnaires will take considerable time, it seems to be the disposition of railroad managers to welcome the investigation, as they feel that their answers will thoroughly explode the allegations which have been made by some labor leaders.

Reserves Highest in Year

At the close of business on January 14, reserve ratio for the entire Federal Reserve system stood at 48.1%, the highest for a period of over a year.

Call money has recently been as low as 4½%.

A continuance of easier money should result in a gradual increase in Bond Prices.

Prudent investors, since the first of the year, have taken advantage of these facts.

Opportune purchases still exist, some of which are described in our letter T.

STERLING RATE RISE AIDS COTTON RALLY

Trade Now Discusses Chances of Export Revival—Spots Drop to 15 Cents.

A good advance at Liverpool, after its poor opening, and more encouraging reports from Manchester than any received in the last week or ten days, helped our cotton market to open 18 to 25 points higher yesterday. After the call there was a further slight advance, but before the session really could get into its stride profit-taking checked the advance and took prices back to levels which showed net gains from the previous night of only 10 to 12 points. These prices, however, turned out to be the low of the day, for the market turned upward again almost immediately thereafter and continued to make a firm showing for the remainder of the day.

A further sharp advance in sterling, which took the rate up to $3.88¾, was a factor in improving sentiment. Exports have been rather low of late and the trade is now beginning to speculate on the possibility, if not the probability, of the stimulating effect this advance in sterling is likely to have. Sterling has been going up steadily since the middle of November, when it was down around $3.33, ann in the last week it has added something more than 11 cents to the pound. Some of the foreign exchange experts are now predicting that the rate will go to $4.25 on the present movement, and if it does, cotton men are convinced that exports will pick up considerably.

A good deal was made of this yesterday. Exports have been a disappointment thus far this season. To date, the movement to Great Britain is about 800,000 bales below what it was at this time last year. France has taken substantially the same amount this year as last, but the rest of the Continent is about 200,000 bales behind and Japan and China are about 250,000 bales below their takings of the same period in 1920. Improvement in the exchanges probably will not regain all of this lost ground, but it is possible that a material rally in foreign rates would help the movement from now on and might also increase forward buying for delivery after the present cotton year is ended.

Yesterday's advance took the market up 40 to more than 50 points, and most of the gains were held to closing time.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

	Open	High	Low	Close	Previous Day
March	14.50	14.75	14.45	14.73@14.74	14.33

SURPLUS OF WHEAT REDUCED

Total in U. S. 97,000,000 Bushels Less Than in January, 1920.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Wheat stocks on hand in the United States Jan. 1, 1921, totaled 220,000,000 bushels, according to an estimate made public today by the Department of Agriculture. This figure compared with 417,000,000 bushels on hand a year ago.

The stock on hand this year was 40 per cent. of the total amount of wheat available July 1, 1920. Deducting the average annual carry-over of about 70,000,000 bushels, there remained available for export and domestic consumption during the six months from Jan. 1 to July 1, 1921, about 150,000,000 bushels.

GERMANY SWAYS IN WHEAT AT CHICAGO

Hope That Season's Carry-Over in Europe Won't Exceed 170,000,000 Bu. Tones Market.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 27.—May wheat and all deliveries of corn and oats sold at a new low on the crop today, but the inside figures were not maintained, due to an oversold condition developing; and a sharp rally came, toward the last, when some of the early sellers started to cover. Wheat closed ⅝@1¼ cents higher; Chicago corn, ⅛ cent lower to ⅜ cent higher; oats, ⅛ cent lower to ⅛ cent higher; rye, ¼@2 cents lower, and barley, ¾ cent lower.

The grain trade is paying more attention to the world's economic and financial conditions than anything else at present. The continued failure to fix the German indemnity was the main factor in inducing selling and the decline in wheat early. A large New York trader was credited with selling heavily and was followed by the local element, but the latter covered toward the last, while foreign exchange continues to advance. This attracts little attention although it increased the purchasing power of the various countries.

There is a disposition now, as there usually is when prices have had a good decline, to discredit everything of a bullish character. Reports that Germany would be out of the market until April 1, and that Italy would secure the balance of its supplies in Argentina attracted a great deal of attention; but the export sales of 800,000 bushels to the two countries were ignored.

An estimate that the United States, Argentina, Australia, and Canada had 394,000,000 bushels of wheat for export on Jan. 22, while prospective purchases by Europe for the balance of the crop year were 224,000,000 bushels, led to a great deal of pressure, as it indicated a carry-over of 170,000,000 bushels into the 1921-22 season. George E. Marcy, President of the Armour Grain Company, construed the report as bullish, as his expert figures that the average pre-war carry-over was 250,000,000 bushels. It is one of the particular features of the wheat situation that no two statisticians will agree on anything at the present time. The estimate as to the amount to be shipped from Argentina is 20,000,000 bushels above the official estimate and 40,000,000 bushels above the private returns.

There were rumors that 3,000,000 bushels of wheat had been sold for export at the seaboard, but they could not be confirmed. Reports that France would take only 19,000,000 bushels of wheat for the season, also supposed to come from official sources, were regarded as a joke, as that country took 30,000,000 bushels from North America alone from July 1 to Nov. 1.

Exports of domestic wheat from the United States in December aggregated 30,170,000 bushels, compared with 15,000,000 bushels last year, and the total from July 1 to Dec. 31 is 206,000,000 bushels, the largest on record, compared with 118,000,000 bushels. January exports are estimated by the trade at around 25,000,000 bushels.

Kansas City bakers estimate that the consumption of bread in that territory has been cut 15 per cent as compared with last year, and reports as to the flour demand are very conflicting. Sentiment after the close was very bearish and lower prices were expected tomorrow.

Arrivals of wheat at terminal markets were 977,000 bushels; week ago, 1,268,000; last year, 461,000. Shipments were 791,000; week ago, 726,000; year ago, 628,000.

Receipts of corn were 1,415,000 bushels; week ago, 1,343,000; year ago, 825,000. Shipments were 1,041,000; week ago, 801,000; year ago, 438,000.

THE BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday—7¾ per cent. for the best names. Wednesday—7¾ per cent. for the best names. The quotations are for six months' paper.

Gray Goods Sales Fair.

Gray goods trading in the local market had a fair snap to it yesterday. Printcloth sales included February-March deliveries of 38½-inch 64-60s at 8¼ cents, and January shipments of 39¼-inch 68-72s and 38½-inch 60-48s at 9 5-8 and 7¼ cents, respectively. Trading in 5-yard and 5.50-yard sheetings was done at 7¼ and 6½ cents, respectively. Buyers of sateens took them again at 14 cents a yard.

Silk Hosiery Doing Well.

Buyers of the better grades of silk hosiery are reported to be placing business for Spring deliveries more freely, although this was said yesterday to apply more to those from out-of-town than ... local establishments. In ... have to be allotted ... ments are rapidly ... call for gray is still the feature, this hue outselling other specialties by a wide margin. Gray hose for immediate delivery is also in active demand, and sellers are not having an easy time in meeting the desire of buyers for prompt shipments.

May Set Record for Buyers.

A large portion of the business being placed by buyers who are now in the market is understood to be merchandise required for immediate delivery. Estimates run as high as 75 per cent. For this reason manufacturers are counting upon a large number of buyers to visit this market in March for actual Spring purchases, which have been more or less neglected up to date. Inquiry at the resident buying offices supports this view and according to present plans, March may set a record for arrivals. Many of the smaller merchants who have not yet come into the market are expected to do so at that time, as it will probably mark the end of price unsettlement.

Rebates on Dye Purchases.

The Textile Alliance, Inc., yesterday mailed checks amounting to $563,221.99, covering the first refund due to consumers for whom the Alliance imported dyes under the so-called "Herty option" and from the first importations of reparation dyes. In a letter accompanying the remittances it was explained that the expenses of getting the dyes here were placed at 15 per cent., the unexpended balance of which was to be returned. The rebates now made cover the period up to Oct. 31, 1919. A portion of the balance has been retained in order to provide for further liquidation of expenses and additional charges which may come up.

Price Stability in Piece Goods.

A strong tendency toward the stabilization of prices in both men's wear fabrics and dress goods has developed in the piece-goods market, but the shifting of values has by no means reached an end. Quotations on desirable dress patterns are somewhat unsettled, with the trend upward, and in materials for the clothing trade, despite the prices established for stock goods, the market continues rather weak. The spot goods demand from clothiers has been more active recently, which is regarded as a favorable sign. Openings for Fall wait upon the buyer's disposition to consider future contracts, which have been put in the background for the time being.

Raw Silk Prices Firm.

The Yokohama raw silk market continues moderately active under a steady demand from American importers, which is strengthening the price views of holders, and daily transactions are reported at 500 bales and over. Cables received by H. L. Gwalter & Co. of this city say that the Canton market is well sold out on spot silk and nearby deliveries in new style reelings for American consumption. The demand there for some of the special sizes, especially 20-22s, is a feature. The Shanghai market reports a large business in steam filatures, as well as in improved tsatlee "raws." Although the local demand is less active than it was, due to the mills having filled their immediate requirements, the market continues strong at unchanged prices.

Dues and Discounts.

A manufacturers' association which has taken a strong stand against increasing discount is understood to have offered, among other reasons for joining the organization, the rather unique plan of having the saving in discounts pay the membership dues. It was pointed out that on a small amount of business this saving would be sufficient to cover the expense of belonging to the association. During the sellers' market the plan is said to have worked very smoothly, but with the return of highly competitive business, it is understood that what is saved in the smaller percentage of discount is often lost now in turning away business that can be placed elsewhere at more attractive terms.

Do Not Look for Big Season.

It would not come altogether as a surprise to local secondary distributers of woolen dress goods if the present season passed without their doing a normal business. Not only did the Spring start much later than is normally the case, but in certain quarters at least there is a disposition to cut it fairly short in order to get back on schedule for Fall. With prices readjusted for the Fall season, as they have already been in the case of one of the most prominent producers, it is figured that a normal demand will develope and that from then on business will pursue its usual satisfactory course. In the business now passing a sizeable part of it is supplied by the cutting up trade.

Warns Against Fur Speculation.

Rumors of speculating in furs that have been heard locally since the Winter auction was held here were given a definite foundation yesterday when a statement was issued by the Fur Merchants' Association of New York, through J. H. Bleistein, its President, advising against a resumption of the practice and warning speculators that their action is likely to retard indefinitely the recovery of the fur industry from the depression it has suffered for nearly a year. In effect, it is pointed out in the statement that this is no time for advancing prices of any commodity beyond the level set by the law of supply and demand, and that any attempt to do so through speculation will incur the enmity of the public and be generally harmful to the trade.

Small Operators Take the Lead.

Basing his statements on recent developments in merchandise lines which have shown a tendency to advance in price under the stimulus of renewed demand, a resident buyer explained yesterday that many of the increases have originated with smaller manufacturers rather than with the larger and established houses. At the same time, he added that a good many of the small operators are chiefly after quick turnover and if they do not get their advanced price immediately they appear willing to compromise. "In this period of constant readjustment," he said, "the small operator in both the manufacturing and wholesale lines is taking the lead and forcing business whenever it is possible. They were the first speculators and the first to liquidate. The best index to developments in the market is to watch their prices and the progress they make."

NEW POST FOR KAUFMANN.

Appointed Aid to Attorney General to Prosecute Building Frauds.

Word came from Washington yesterday that Joseph Kaufmann, who has been acting as a special assistant to United States Attorney Francis G. Caffey, in investigating and prosecuting violations of the Federal anti-trust laws, had been appointed a special assistant to the Attorney General and that his field of work include the United States.

The new power conferred upon Mr. Kaufmann will enable him to appear before the Grand Jury in any jurisdiction and to prosecute offenders in any Federal District Court. It was Mr. Kaufmann who obtained the indictments recently against a number of sand and gravel men, who pleaded guilty and were fined.

Mr. Kaufmann said:

"The investigation I intend to make will take in practically every branch of the building material trade throughout the country. I intend to follow the trails of violators of the law, no mater where they lead. Full authority to do this has been conferred upon me by the Attorney General."

FRICK ESTATE APPFALS.

Says Appraisement for Tax Purposes Is Excessive.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 27.—Helen C. Frick and the executors of the H. C. Frick estate filed today an appeal in Orphans' Court from the appraisement made by William Conner, Register of Wills, for the assessment of collateral inheritance tax.

They assert that items of property amounting to millions of dollars have been improperly included in the appraisement and that valuations placed upon holdings in Pittsburgh are excessive.

Tangible personal property in New York State, valued at $13,310,203, and in Massachusetts, valued at $325,434, is not subject to taxation by Pennsylvania, it is claimed. The appeal sets forth that valuations placed upon certain stocks, mortgages and real estate are excessive.

An answer to the appeal will be filed on or before March 1, the return day fixed by the court.

GERMANY RELEASES AMERICAN PROPERTY

But Final Settlement Must Wait Until United States Ratifies Peace Treaty.

NO LIQUIDATIONS FORCED

Dr. Von Haimhausen Explains Policy Followed by Custodian of Enemy Property.

BERLIN, Jan. 26.—American property in Germany taken under control by the German Custodian of Enemy Property after the United States entered the war has been unconditionally released, Dr. Haniel von Haimhausen, Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, said today. Final settlement fith the American owners, however, has been impossible, owing to the provision of the Versailles treaty which stipulated that such settlements should be made through an international clearing house, he added, and this operation could not be carried out until the United States ratified the treaty or a new pact was negotiated.

In cases where American factories were placed under German control, the Under Secretary said, their staffs were permitted to remain. Out of 186 of such factories and corporations taken over by the Custodian Germany received only 26,000,000 marks out of their administration. The German Custodian of American funds has been instructed to provide Americans with whose interests he was intrusted with funds for their maintenance, pending ultimate settlement.

The Under Secretary cited the case of the International Harvester Company, the Vice President of which, he said, had recently thanked the German Foreign Office personally for the "efficient and generous manner in which the Custodian had protected the company's German interests during the war," as an example of the care with which American property was safeguarded.

Dr. Haniel von Haimhausen said the German Government was opposed to the seizure of private enemy property at the beginning of the war, but that "England's procedure had forced her to adopt such measures." When the United States entered the war and proceeded against German property there Germany advised Washington she would apply the same measures to the same degree adopted by United States officials. The Under Secretary declared he had successfully opposed demands from the German military command that American property in Germany be subjected to the same treatment as that of other belligerents.

American patents and licenses were neither sold nor transferred, he said, and there was no forced liquidation of American holdings. Where there were temporary transfers, they occurred only with a view to protecting American holdings, which could be transferred back to American control at any time, he said. He added that there were only a few instances of such temporary transfers. No stocks or bonds were put up for forced sales, but were merely liated for the purpose of control and were permitted to remain in German banks.

SAYS BRITAIN WANTS DELAY ON OUR LOANS

'Pertinax' Asserts Chalmers Will Seek Postponement of Payment Until 1936 and 1947.

PARIS, Jan. 27.—Lord Chalmers, Permanent Secretary of the British Treasury, whose visit to the United States has been deferred for a short time, will be intrusted with a mission to obtain a postponement of the payment of the British debt to the United States until 1936 and 1947, says Pertinax, political editor of L'Echo de Paris. He declares Sir Auckland Geddes, British Ambassador to the United States, came here to report to Premier Lloyd George on the matter.

Sir Auckland has arranged to return to the United States on the liner Aquitania, which leaves Southampton on Feb. 15, said this morning's Paris edition of The Daily Mail.

Sir Auckland took breakfast with Mr. Lloyd George this morning, the two having a long conference. The Ambassador, on leaving the Premier, had nothing to say regarding the conference, declining to see the newspaper men.

Credits established by the United States Treasury in favor of Great Britain from April 24, 1917, up to Nov. 15, 1920, totaled $4,277,000,000, upon which there has been a repayment of $80,181,841.56. For these credits the Treasury Department holds obligations in the form of certificates of indebtedness payable as to principal and interest upon demand.

PICK PERFECT BOY AND GIRL.

Two High School Pupils Chosen for Physical Superiority After Test.

Marie A. Kuhn of 278 East Seventy-first Street and Thomas Dewiney of 391 Eleventh Street, Long Island City, both 17-year-old seniors in the Bryant High School, were chosen, it was announced yesterday, to receive diplomas of the Life Extension Institute, because they approach nearer to physical perfection for their years than any of the other seniors of the school who have undergone a test as to health and physique.

The institute is carrying on a campaign to educate school children to overcome remedial physical defects. The ideal measurements for the age of 17 were announced as the following:

	Height.	Weight.	Chest.	Girth.	Skin.
Boy	5 ft. 8 in.	143 lbs.	44 in.	28 in.	Clear
Girl	5 ft. 4½ in.	123 lbs.	33 in.	31 in.	Clear

Ill health was found by the institute to be one of the causes why a large majority of pupils drop out of high school. Of a typical class of fifty-five freshmen, only eighteen remained to be graduated.

WIDOW GETS HOYT ESTATE.

Residuary Interest Will Go to Children After Her Death.

The will of Henry R. Hoyt, a well-known attorney, who died on Jan. 4 last in Chicago, was filed for probate yesterday. It disposes of a large estate, the value of which is not named. Mr. Hoyt bequeathed all of his personal effects and $350,000 in cash to his widow, Mary O. Hoyt of 3 East Seventy-fifth Street, and also left her the residuary estate for life.

Upon her death it will be distributed among his children, Alfred O. and Henry R. Hoyt Jr., and Elizabeth H. Frothingham of 1 East Seventy-fifth Street and Mrs. Gretchen H. Corbett of Portland, Ore.

The will stated that Mr. Hoyt left no direct bequests to his sons and daughters because he had paid them "such sums as in my judgment are ample for their needs."

CUBA TO CUT VOTE TANGLE.

Special Law Will Speed Decisions in Election Cases.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, Jan. 27.—Tomorrow, at the extraordinary session of Congress, will be considered the "special act of legislation" designed to insure against an ad interim administration of the country. Should adoption without amendment result, and that has been practically agreed upon by the joint Parliamentary Committees of both parties tonight, provision will be made for the President, Vice President and Congressmen-elect to take possession of their offices upon the dates designated by the Constitution.

This measure has been characterized in some quarters as an "amendment to the Crowder law," but it is otherwise designated as a special relief act which has been sanctioned by General Crowder without having received his endorsement through any public utterance. In this connection it may be stated that there is a growing belief here that General Crowder will terminate his visit to Cuba at a date much earlier than was expected last week. The belief is expressed that he may sail within ten days. It cannot be learned whether this would conclude his mission.

The special act provides that the central electoral boards, in cases where new elections are held as the result of decisions of the courts on appeals relating to the Presidential elections of Nov. 1, shall issue such regulations that all decisions under either the electoral law or the civil code shall be hastened in order that the new Congressmen may take office on the first Monday in April and the Executives on the constituted date of May 20.

USES FILM IN TELEGRAPHY.

New Norwegian Apparatus Transmits Picture of Writing.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 27.—The Petersen copying telegraph, which is being tested in Norway, is acclaimed as revolutionary in its effect.

The system is said to be cheaper than ordinary telegraphing. Regular telegraphers are not necessary, only a few persons to serve the apparatus.

The telegrams appear as photographic pictures of the sender's writing.

When the customer has filled out his blank, this is placed with the written side against a metal cylinder, prepared with something like a photographic film. The cylinder is then exposed to a strong light, penetrating the paper and pressing the writing on the cylinder. This is then treated with developer and the writing appears in green on the cylinders, which are brass.

After drying the cylinder is put on another piece of apparatus like a phonograph cylinder and the writing is transmitted to the receiving apparatus, on which is a similar photographic paper which shows an exact picture of the writing.

In actual operations the apparatus will be still more simple, the cylinders being displaced by plates. The copying telegraph can be used at longer distance than ordinary telegraphy and even by wireless, it is said.

MOON ROCKET READY SOON.

Prof. Goddard Expected to Try Out Invention Next Summer.

Special to The New York Times.

WORCESTER, Mass., Jan. 27.—The first trials of the rocket which, it is hoped, will reach the moon will be held early next Summer, it is announced by Professor Robert H. Goddard of Clark University, the inventor, who is making his first "workable model."

Professor Goddard declared today that he was more convinced than ever of the possibility of making a rocket that would reach the moon, designed in such a manner that it would give off a flash when it struck that could be seen from the earth. The Smithsonian Institution is said to be financing him up to $5,000, and he frankly says that he hopes some one will give him additional assistance.

"There seems to be a great deal more interest on the part of the general public in my effort to perfect a device to reach the moon than in the more practical objects of my experiments," the professor said.

The propelling force of the rocket would be smokeless explosive powder. The gases would be ejected at high velocity, and with each successive explosion the rocket would be boosted higher.

FIRE CHIEF SAVES JEWELS.

Crawls Under Eaves of Blazing Home and Saves $50,000 Worth.

Special to The New York Times.

ENGLEWOOD, N. J., Jan. 27.—Electric sparks set the attic of the $100,000 home of George E. Hardy here alight this afternoon and forced Mrs. Hardy and her maid to flee. The flames were shooting through the roof by the time Chief Michael Murray of the Fire Department had four streams at work.

Mrs. Hardy told the Chief she had secreted jewelry worth $50,000 under the eaves in an alcove of the attic because her husband, President of Hodenpyl, Hardy & Co., brokers at 14 Wall Street, Manhattan, was away. The Chief chopped through the roof at the spot indicated, crawled inside and rescued the jewelry. A pipe organ in the music room was spared damage by a thick covering of tarpaulin, and paintings, silverware and bric-a-brac were carried out unhurt. The damage was estimated at $25,000.

LARGE METEOR FALLS.

Alarms Pennsylvanians—Shock Felt for Many Miles.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Jan. 27.—The falling of a large meteor north of Somerset, Pa., late today caused hundreds of residents throughout the Somerset-Westmoreland district to believe that an explosion had occurred. When the meteor struck the shock was felt for many miles, points as far away as Connellsville reporting that earth tremors had occurred.

The exact spot where the meteor landed had not been located at a late hour tonight. Residents of the mountains in the vicinity of Somerset reported that the meteor, in its descent, caused a white streak through the air resembling steam and that the object looked like a ball of fire.

STUDENT ATTACKED IN ROOM

Seymour W. Ely of Yonkers Found Unconscious in Wesleyan Dormitory

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Jan. 27.—Seymour W. Ely, of Yonkers, N. Y., a freshman in Wesleyan University, was found unconscious in his dormitory room tonight. The room was in great disorder and the University authorities believed that the student had been attacked and had fought with his assailant.

Ely recovered consciouaness an hour later at the Middlesex Hospital, where it was said his condition was serious. Money and jewelry in his room was not taken.

TWO PROMINENT MEN ILL.

Cyrenus Seeley, Gaston Hand Taken to Bellevue With Erysipelas.

Two wealthy men, both suffering from erysipelas, were removed to Bellevue Hospital last night and placed in the isolation ward.

Cyrenus Seeley, 62 years old, a banker, living at the Hotel Pennsylvania, was taken to the hospital when Dr. Durfee of New York Hospital was called to attend him. An hour later Gaston Hand, 50 years old, Vice President of the Kansas City & Southern Railway Company, was taken to the hospital in a private ambulance from the Hotel Berkley, Seventy-fourth Street and Amsterdam Avenue, where he has been living.

RESIDENCE BUYING ON THE EAST SIDE

Herbert Parsons Joins the Turtle Bay Colony in Forty-eighth Street.

ROCKEFELLER BLOCK SALE

Doctors Purchase Fine Dwelling—John A. Hoagland Buys East Side House.

Considerable activity was shown in the private dwelling market yesterday and among a number of good sales was that of another of the houses in the select Turtle Bay Gardens district, the residences being on the north side of Forty-eighth Street, between Second and Third Avenues. Herbert Parsons was the purchaser, buying the four-story dwelling at 233 East Forty-eighth Street from the Turtle Bay Holding Company.

There are twenty-one houses in the development which were acquired for the company in 1918 by the Ruland & Whiting-Benjamin Corporation, and the latter acted as brokers in the recent sale. A few days ago the house at 241 was bought by Arthur E. Cushman and among other owners there are Mrs. C. H. Sorchan, Winston Churchill, Mrs. James Townsend, Miss Chapin, Schuyler Smith, George Rublee, Ernest Poole, Gillet Lefferts, Miss Arnold and Porter H. Hooper.

The houses have been altered into American basement residences, the rear fences removed and the old back yards transformed into an Italian court, with attractive landscape gardening features.

The English basement residence at 126 East Eightieth Street has been purchased by John A. Hoagland through George Hewe in co-operation with Douglas Gibbons & Co. and George Levy. The house has a private elevator and the rear yard has been laid out as a Japanese garden. The property was sold for Martin L. Fearey.

In the Rockefeller residence block the four-story dwelling at 37 West Fifty-fourth Street, lot 20 by 100.5 feet, has been purchased by Dr. Joseph Collins and Dr. Edward G. Zabriskie, the present tenants. The house was recently transferred to James B. Mackie.

Pedro J. Condeau Jr., who recently leased from Silas K. Everett the dwelling at 272 West Eighty-fourth Street, with an option of purchase, will exercise the option, and has secured from the Foster estate an option on the adjoining house at 270. He has formed the 272 West Eighty-fourth Street Realty Company to take title to the property.

Catharine J. Ball sold to Robert C. Morton the three-story dwelling at 3,682 Broadway, 16 by 78, adjoining the northeast corner of 152d Street.

Irene Patrick sold to Mary J. Leahy the four-story dwelling at 232 East Seventy-first Street, 20 by 100.4.

Benjamin Menschel resold to Mrs. Johanna Bender the four-story dwelling at 234 East Twelfth Street, on a lot 22 by 105, which he recently bought from Dr. Theobald.

Commercial Leases.

P. M. Clear & Co. have leased for ten years, in conjunction with Brown, Wheelock Company, the four-story building at 185 Bowery, adjoining the northeast corner of Delancey Street, for the estate of Samuel D. Babcock. The present lease does not expire until May 1, 1923.

MacLean & Co. leased the store at 429 Sixth Avenue to M. Robinson, drugs.

Ames & Co. have rented for Intner & Fromm the store at 127 West Twenty-ninth Street to J. Blidner & M. Schey; and for Hannah Plant the store at 61 West Fifty-fifth Street to Elias J. Audi.

Samuel H. Martin leased the store at 1,985 Broadway to Weissman Bros. for William B. May & Co.

J. & T. Cousins, shoe manufacturers, leased from Mrs. Clara D. Frazier, through S. Osgood Pell & Co., from Feb. 1, for twenty-one years, the four-story dwelling at 17 West Fifty-seventh Street, at an aggregate rental of $700,000. It will be rebuilt into a store and salesroom.

The six-story garage building, on plot 50 by 100.11, at 227 and 229 East Fifty-sixth Street, has been leased by the Almo Garage Company to the H. M. F. Garage for a little more than seventeen years at a total rental of approximately $400,000.

Henry Brady has leased space at 149-151 West Thirty-third Street for the Hanover Lunch Company to Isidore Krimik, wholesale and retail ladies' wear.

Suburban Trading.

The two-family dwelling at 418 South Seventh Street, Newark, has been sold through Feist & Feist for David Hall to John Beattee. The plot is 25 by 100.

Henry Brady sold for Dr. William H. McKay his residence on Bell Avenue, Bayside, on a plot 100 by 200, to Dr. G. Willard Dickie.

District Attorney Edward Swann yesterday confirmed the report that he has bought the estate of Alejandro Angel at Park Ridge, N. J., to whom he sold it three years ago. The estate, which is understood to be worth about $40,000, consists of a large red sandstone house and about eleven acres of land.

Burgoyne Hamilton and Adrian Iselin 2d sold for the Wampage Real Estate Company their large Colonial residence at Sands Point, L. I., to Frank S. Hastings of New York. The property was held at $75,000.

John H. Pratt sold the vacant plot 50 by 105 on the north side of 132d Street, 300 feet east of Cypress Avenue. J. Clarence Davies and Porter & Co., negotiated the sale.

Byrne & Bowman sold in conjunction with J. M. Nimhauser for Ossorman & Gottlieb, Inc., the northwest corner of Jerome Avenue and 192d Street, a five-story apartment house with seven stores and twenty-nine suites on a plot 97 by 100, renting for $20,000. In part payment the sellers take the three five-story flats at 224 to 228 West 124th Street, on a plot 75 by 100, renting for about $13,000. A resale of the 124th Street flats to the Meister Builders, Inc., was reported Wednesday and was arranged by the same brokers. The entire deal involved about $300,000.

TO DIVORCE HUSBAND WHO WANTED SUPPORT

Mrs. Helen Cobb Declares He Asked $200 a Month and $1,000 Extra Each Year.

CHICAGO, Jan. 27.—Mrs. Helen Cobb, who is a buyer for a Chicago department store, and receives an income of between $10,000 and $15,000 a year, told Judge Sabath in the Superior Court today, that her husband, Norvell Cobb, manager of the brokerage branch of the American Surety Company at 68 William Street, New York, demanded that she pay him $200 a month and $1,000 at the end of each year as a bonus for living with her. Mrs. Cobb, who asked for a divorce, which Judge Sabath indicated he would grant, also told of various acts of cruelty which she said occurred at the Plaza and at the Ritz-Carlton Hotels in New York, when she and her husband lived there.

Mr. Cobb conceived his quaint contradiction in matrimonial custom, the wife declared, about a month after their marriage in May, 1920.

"Mr. Cobb," she explained, "had a good income, but his tastes were too extravagant for it to do him any good. He couldn't hear of our living anywhere except at the Ritz-Carlton and Plaza Hotels. When he found he couldn't pay his bills he wanted to use my earnings."

"What's more," she said, "he made me hand over $200 a month each month we were married. On June 19 he came home and was very angry because I had spent my own money for a house party. He struck me and told me the only way we could get along was for me to pay him $200 a month and $1,000 at the end of each year. On another occasion, when I refused to let him drive my automobile, he struck me in the face, stepped on a girl friend who was with us and jumped out of the car."

Judge Sabath, with a smile, asked Mrs. Cobb if she were going to ask alimony.

"Judge," responded Charles Erbstein, her attorney, "Mrs. Cobb waives all alimony, she waives all property rights, and when she gets her decree she is going out in the street and wave a flag."

CITY'S GIFT OF PARK TO NAVY IS OPPOSED

Commission Is Asked if Rockaway Beach Is the Only Site for Air Station.

The Commissioners of the Sinking Fund held a hearing yesterday on the proposal to cede to the United States ninety-seven acres of the Jacob A. Riis Park at Rockaway Beach, the land to be the site for an aviation station. The Legislature has passed an enabling act authorizing the city to give the land, which cost $836,837, if the city officials advise it.

Rear Admiral J. H. Glennon argued for the gift. He laid stress on the protection an air station would give the city, adding that if the land were not given to the department he thought the station would be transferred to another point on the coast. Raymond V. Ingersoll, Secretary of the City Club and former Park Commissioner of Kings County, opposed the gift.

"We would like to find out from the Navy Department its real requirements," said Mr. Ingersoll. "The land applied for is on the Jamaica Bay side of the Jacob Riis Park and it will affect the recreation of the whole city. The beaches are getting more and more crowded and the beach in this section will be needed."

Leonard M. Wallstein, for the Citizens Union, the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce and the Real Estate Board of New York also opposed the grant.

Admiral Glennon, replying to the opposition, pointed out that if the land were not used as an air station it would revert to the city. He said that it would cost the Government $300,000 to build a breakwater to protect its property.

Others whose remarks indicated partiality to the scheme, remarked that it would be cheaper for the city to grant the application of transfer than to build the breakwater.

"That is," said the Mayor, "it will be cheaper to give the land away than have it washed away."

The hearing was adjourned to Feb. 17 in order to give the civic organizations time to examine their opposition more thoroughly and to give the Chief Engineer of the city an opportunity to determine the progress of erosion of the land.

KYLE'S PARTNER ARRESTED.

Second Man Held in the Mail Robbery Sought Reward.

MOUNT VERNON, Ill., Jan. 27.—Loren Williamson, business partner in a garage with Guy Kyle, former preacher, who has confessed complicity in the $216,000 mail theft here Jan. 14, was arrested today in connection with the robbery. Williamson has denied participation in it.

Since the arrest of the former preacher, Williamson has been endeavoring to collect a reward of $25,000 offered by security companies.

BIBLE SOCIETY CONVICTED.

Accused by Tenants in Special Sessions of Violating Terms of Leases.

The American Bible Society, Inc., owner of the Osmund apartment hotel at 1,140 Pacific Street, Brooklyn, was convicted in the Court of Special Sessions yesterday of violating the terms of its leases in not furnishing hot water to its tenants and failing to provide other required facilities. Sentence was deferred until Feb. 18, pending an investigation as to whether the conditions complained of have been corrected.

More than twenty-five of the tenants of the building were in court, but only four testified. They said that the supply of hot water was cut off from Oct. 1 to Nov. 11. The restaurant on the ground floor, they said, also was discontinued for more than five weeks.

PIGMY HIPPOPOTAMUS BORN

Weighs Ten Pounds, and a Zoo Goat May Be Her Foster Mother.

Gaida, one of the six pigmy hippopotami in captivity, yesterday presented the Bronx Zoological Park with a ten-pound son. It was the second animal of the species born in captivity, the first having died seven years ago a few days after birth.

Dr. Blair said that if the mother, which weighs only 200 pounds, refuses to feed her offspring he will requisition one of the goats in the park to act as foster mother.

New Diseases Must Be Reported.

The Board of Health, at its meeting yesterday, placed sleeping sickness and bottulism, the latter being caused by eating infected olives or other vegetables, on the list of diseases that must be reported to the Board of Health.

DISCUSS MEXICAN OIL TAX.

Representatives of Sixteen Companies Confer With De la Huerta.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 27.—Proposed legislation which would establish a fixed rate of taxation on the quantity of petroleum produced by development companies in Mexico was discussed here today by representatives of sixteen oil companies and Adolfo de la Huerta, Secretary of the Treasury. This legislation has been incorporated in a bill which will be considered by Congress, which will convene in extraordinary session on Feb. 7, and is described as an effort to avoid many difficulties relative to taxes which have been constantly arising between petroleum companies and the Government.

Several oil men who have arrived here stated yesterday that the project had not been amply considered by all the petroleum companies in the country, and that today's conference would probably lay only the groundwork for future meetings at which attempts would be made to reach a complete settlement.

If we don't watch out, the Blue Law men
Will bar apartments, and what then?
They've led us all a merry dance;
But say, old duck, right here's your chance
To get a home on Central Park.
Three sunny rooms, and a kitchen—Hark!
You'll find the price is not too steep.

The Allerton Idea

Allerton House, a residence for business and professional men, is the fulfillment of a new idea in city housing.

The sociability and privacy of a club, the conveniences of a hotel, the pleasant quiet of a home, these are provided at a fraction of the cost of accommodations at a first-class hotel, because essentials have been substituted for useless extravagances.

The Allerton idea of service is expressed in the pervasive atmosphere of comfort to be found equally in its lounges, roof garden, sun parlor, gymnasium and music room.

Allerton House is a residence men are proud to speak of as their home.

NOTE TO THE PUBLIC

The rentals of the new Allerton Houses, a 17 story residence for men, at 85th Street and Madison Avenue, NOW READY FOR OCCUPANCY, are the same as those prevailing in the present Allerton Houses.

ASKS PHILADELPHIA TO BACK 1926 FAIR

Mayor Requests Councils to Vote a Preliminary Appropriation of $50,000.

WORLD EXPOSITION PLANNED

Committee Has Been Named to Direct Arrangements for Independence Anniversary.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 27.—Mayor Moore today asked Councils to appropriate $50,000 to defray expenses for the sesqui-centennial exposition to be held here in 1926.

This action was taken as the result of a resolution adopted by a meeting of citizens in the Mayor's office last November. Mr. Moore recently appointed a committee of 100 to supervise arrangements for the big exposition. In his message to Councils the Mayor said:

"A patriotic movement to fittingly celebrate in Philadelphia the 150th anniversary of American Independence in 1926 has reached proportions which induce me to submit in your honorable body the suggestion that an appropriation be now made toward the end in view.

"The proposal to hold this celebration originated with citizens, trade and scientific bodies and is appropriate because the first great international exposition was held here in 1876, where the Declaration of Independence was signed 100 years previously, and where so many of America's historic landmarks now repose, a treasured heritage.

"But underlying the proposal generally is the consciousness of a wonderful world progress since the Centennial Exposition—a progress which, while it has been marred by a great World War, has presented so many new and varied developments in art, science, agriculture, manufacture, inventions and devices, on land, on water and in the air, as to make desirable, in the interest of a better, more useful, happier and more peaceful world, a coming together of the nations, States and communities under such auspices as an international exposition at the shrine of American independence will provide.

"Although it is expected the general celebration committee, when fully organized, will seek financial aid from both the Federal and State Governments, as well as from individuals, for the promotion and support of the great enterprise, it seems proper the first move should be made by Philadelphia, which, if the expectations of our citizens are fully realized, will be host not only to the peoples of every clime, but through this attraction of the newest and best of the world's products will render inestimable service to mankind in establishing universal peace and good will."

MEXICANS LIKE U.S. SCHOOLS

Founder of Exchange Scholarship System Tells of Its Success.

The interchange of Mexican and American scholarships inaugurated a year ago by the American Chamber of Commerce of Mexico is making decided progress, according to Will A. Peairs, a manufacturer of Des Moines, Iowa, who visited the TIMES office yesterday. Mr. Peairs originated the system, to encourage trade relations between Mexico and the United States.

"Since last November I have had more than five hundred letters from young Mexicans who want to study business and agriculture in this country," he said. "We are getting splendid support from the schools and colleges in their offers of free tuition, and manufacturers in the towns where the young men come to study are helping to pay their living expenses and giving them jobs in factories to gain practical experience. The success of the undertaking has been proved beyond a doubt."

A list of twenty American colleges and schools providing free tuition to Mexicans, published in THE TIMES last November, has been augmented by these institutions, said Mr. Peairs:

Johns Hopkins University, Oberlin College, Washington University, St. Louis; Randolph-Macon College, Northwestern University, Colorado School of Mines, Brown University, Drake University, University of Denver, Willamette University, Colorado College, Carlton College, Ohio-Wesleyan University, Bryant and Stratton Business College, Buffalo, and the Iowa State Agricultural College.

ENDS STUDY OF DEBS CASE.

Department of Justice Will Probably Make Recommendations to Wilson.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Recommendations of the Department of Justice as to a pardon for Eugene V. Debs, now serving a prison term at Atlanta for violation of the Espionage act, will probably be submitted to President Wilson within the next few days.

Officials of the department said today a study of the case had been completed by the department's attorneys and put before Attorney General Palmer. They gave no indication as to whether a pardon would be recommended.

President Wilson has said, however, that he would not pardon Debs, as he believed such action might lower the morale of the people in the event of another war.
